KASIUS ISSUES ULTIMATUM IN ROW WITH RELIEF GUILD

Demands Retraction of Welfare Workers' Charge That His Assistant Sanctioned Use of Police.

SAYS CRITICISM IS NOT BASED ON FACT

Prof. Fuchs Also Questions It, Asserting Officer Turned in Riot Call at Demonstration.

The newly organized St. Louis Welfare Guild, formed by salaried employes of the St. Louis Relief Administration and of the private welfare agencies, was confronted today with a demand that its officers resign or retract a statement criticising officials of the Relief Administration for "sanctioning" the use of force by police to break up a demonstration in front of relief headquarters by the American Workers Union. The union was organized by persons on the relief rolls to present demands for larger relief allowances.

Members of the guild committee, at a meeting of the guild last night at the Y. M. H. A., said Peter Kasius, Relief Administrator, had given them until 4:30 o'clock this afternoon to meet his requirements.

The ultimatum was the topic of vigorous discussion at the meeting, attended by about 125 relief agency employes, of whom about 20 were Negroes. Sam Katz, president of the guild, denounced it as an interference with the right of free speech. "Because we are on the payroll, must we stand by and not criticise?" he asked.

Resolution Adopted.

Just what would be the outcome remained to be seen after the meeting, at which a resolution was passed to the effect that the ultimatum shoud be "rescinded." Other resolutions indorsed the action of the Executive Committee in voicing its criticism, and called for appointment of a fact-finding committee to determine whether the criticism was supported by the facts.

Some doubt that the criticism was warranted was occasioned by the talk of Prof. Ralph Fuchs of Washington University, president of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee. Prof. Fuchs, as did the guild's Executive Committee, wrote letters to the newspapers and the Board of Police Commissioners criticising the conduct of police at the demonstration.

The committee had gone further and said: "We regret that the ranking official of the Relief Administration, who was present at the time, did not see fit to request the withdrawal of the police, although requested to do so by the committee of the American Workers' Union, thereby tacitly sanctioning such use of force."

Prof. Fuchs, who witnessed the demonstration last week in front of relief headquarters at 2221 Locust street, said the riot call was turned in by a policeman, without suggestion from relief officials, and that the crowd was dispersed so rapidly that relief officials could have done nothing about it even if they had been so disposed.

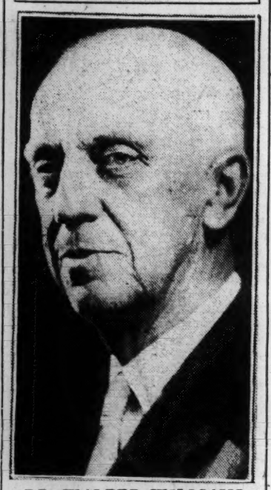

Kasius' Position.

Kasius viewed the Guild's statement as unwarranted criticism of Miss Caroline Bedford, his assistant, who was in charge during his absence. A statement of the official attitude was handed to each member of the Guild at last night's meeting. It said that the relief administration, by its handling of such demonstrations in the past, had shown that it was tolerant toward peaceful assembly and that it had approved and encourged the right of organization and free speech.

The Guild's criticism was not founded on fact, the statement added, and "because of this inaccuracy Mr. Kasius asked Mr. Katz to see that a correction was made, or, failing to get such action by his committee, that he resign from the committee or from the relief administration." Although the statement referred only to Katz, it was said at the meeting that all members of the executive committee, or at least the six employed by the Relief Administration, have the same problem to face. Three members of the committee are employed by private welfare agencies.

The Guild is said to have a membership of about 400 of the 1200 eligible to poin. Many of its members are apprehensive that they will lose their jobs in the lightening of the direct relief rolls with development of the new Federal work program. The Relief Administration has already dropped 240 employes, reducing its force to 984, and further reductions are to be made. Katz, at last night's meeting, quoted Kasius as saying that engineers, not social workers, would be needed in the new program.

GERMANY PROTESTS TO U. S. OVER SEIZURE OF NAZI FLAG

Note Calls Attention to Last Week's Disorder on Bremen in New York Harbor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A formal protest was made by the German Government today against the action of anti-Nazi demonstrators in tearing the swastika emblem from the liner Bremen at New York City last Friday night and throwing it in the Hudson River.

The note protesting against the incident was sent to the State Department by Dr. Rudolph Leitner, Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, under instructions from Berlin.

William Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, informed newspaper men at noon that a communication had been received from the German Embassy. He said, however, that the note had not yet been translated and he could not make public its contents.

It was reported reliably that the German Government, under pressure of public opinion at home, decided the State Department's previous expression of regret over the incident was not sufficient.

It was said that the note, while protesting against treatment of the Nazi flag, did not demand an apology.

MOTOR TRUCK KILLS BOY, 8, AT PLAY IN THE STREET

Victim on Coaster Wagon, Rolled Out of Driveway Into Path of Machine.

Bobby Drewer, 8 years old, was killed shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon by a motor truck in Glasgow avenue, between Benton and North Market streets. He was the son of Mrs. Violet Drewer, 2839 Benton.

The boy was playing with a coaster wagon, on which he rolled out from a driveway into the path of the southbound machine.

Bernard Schulte, 2624 University street, who was driving the truck, took the boy to the Dayton Street Police Station and police took him to City Hospital, where he was found to be dead.

WALTER WILLIAMS, NOTED MISSOURI EDUCATOR, DIES

Founder of First School of Journalism Retired Last June as President of State University.

NEVER ATTENDED COLLEGE HIMSELF

Had Only High School Education, but Became Known Over World as Leader of Profession.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 30.—Walter Williams, lately president of the University of Missouri, founder and Dean Emeritus of the university's School of Journalism, died at his home here last night of a complication of diseases, which followed an attack of sciatica 18 months ago. He was 71 years old, and retired from the presidency in June.

The funeral will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at the Presbyterian Church, of which Dr. Williams was long a member, and will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Joseph M. Garrison, and the Rev. Dr. A. A. Wallace of Mexico. University activities will be suspended from the funeral hour until noon, and Columbia stores and offices will close. Flags on the campus were at half-staff today.

Honorary pallbearers will be President Frederick A. Middlebush and deans of all the divisions of the university, members of the Columbia Round Table Club, past presidents of the Missouri Press Association; H. H. Banks and James H. Moss of Columbia, Dr. Robert S. Johnson, president of St. Louis University; Gov. Guy B. Park; Richmond C. Colburn, St. Louis, president of the University Alumni Association; and Charles G. Ross and Dr. Isidor Loeb of St. Louis. Active pallbearers will be C. C. Bowling, J. S. Rollins, E. Sydney Stephens, Chester L. Brewer, R. B. Urice and R. L. Hill, all of Columbia.

At the time of Dr. Williams' death, at 9:10 p. m., his wife, Mrs. Sara Lockwood Williams; his son, Edwin Moss Williams of New York, and his daughter, Mrs. John F. Rhodes of Kansas City, were at his bedside.

Though his illness had appeared hopeless to physicians and friends, Dr. Williams continued, almost to the last, his writing on newspaper subjects and his world travel plans. He talked in the last few days of going to London in the fall to address the British Institute of Journalists.

Never Attended College.

Dr. Williams, native Missourian who never attended college, was one of the most liberally educated men in America. In his five years at the head of the university, he handled educational problems with as much ability and familiarity as he showed in the public and political relations of the institution.

But his most important and best remembered work was not in the office of President. It was in the school of journalism, which he organized in 1908, before any other American university had a separate department of this kind.

In directing the school of journalism, Dr. Williams' contacts and his influence became world-wide. As John Wesley said, "The world is my parish," so the Missouri dean could have said, "The world is my print shop." He was the teacher, the friend, or the adviser of editors and publishers in nations, large and small, around the globe.

Boonville was his home town, its high school was his only alma mater, and the Boonville Topic, now remembered chiefly for its connection with his career, gave him his first job, as printer's devil at 75 cents a week, when he was just out of school, in 1879.

Before he was a voter, young Williams was editing the Boonville Advertiser, oldest Democratic weekly in Central Missouri, in the stirring Blaine-Cleveland campaign of 1884. He was president of the Missouri Press Association before he left the Advertiser, in 1889, to take a job as bookkeeper at the penitentiary in Jefferson City under Gov. Francis' administration. This, and a brief term on the Columbia School Board, were the only positions of a political nature which he held.

In 1890 he went to the Columbia Missouri Herald as its editor. Here, for 18 years, he was closely associated with E. W. Stephens, proprietor of the Herald. During this period, Mr. Williams was president of the National Editorial Association for a year, edited the St. Louis Presbyterian for two years, directed the Daily State Tribune at Jefferson City four years, ran a monthly, the Country Editor, and wrote for St. Louis and Kansas City newspapers.

Within this period came the

PRESIDENT DESIGNS HALF CENT COIN WITH HOLE IN IT

Also Proposes Square Mill Piece—Will Not Use Aluminum.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—President Roosevelt has designed a coin which soon may be in use, Congress willing.

It is a half-cent piece, and Secretary Morgenthau said it had a hole in the center. The President also sketched a one-mill coin, which, unlike all other American metal money, is square.

Morgenthau said he liked both designs. The midget coins have been proposed as an aid to states having sales taxes.

The half penny may be of copper. The metal in the mill has not been decided, but it won't be aluminum. The source of virgin aluminum virtually is controlled by the Aluminum Co. of America, known as a "Mellon interest," and the relations between Andrew W. Mellon and this administration are not so good.

"I can't imagine this administration manufacturing its currency out of aluminum," said Morgenthau.

ENGLISHMAN FAILS TO KEEP WIFE FROM ENTERING U. S.

Immigration Officers Decide in Favor of Mrs. Guy M. Liddell, Despite Old British Law.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—An attempt by Capt. Guy M. Liddell to bar the entry of his wife, the daughter of the late Lord Revelstoke, to the United States failed today when a special board of inquiry at Ellis Island decided she was within her legal rights in coming to this country.

A suit for their divorce is pending in England, and under English law, it was stated, the husband has a right to bar entry of his wife if she leaves England without his permission.

The wife, Calypso Baring Liddell, arrived yesterday and at the request of Capt. Liddell was taken to Ellis Island. With her were her four children—Peter, 8 years old; Elizabeth, 7; Kuno, 5, and Mary, 4. The inquiry board permitted Mrs. Liddell, who has an estate at Runson, N. J., to land under a re-entry permit for six months, but the entry of the children, who hold no permits, was stipulated as temporary.

ROBBERS GET $50,000 IN LOOT AT FIFTH AV. JEWELRY STORE

$10,000 Necklace Said to Have Been Owned by Marie Antoinette Is Taken in New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A ruby necklace which jewelers say once belonged to Marie Antoinette was stolen by thieves yesterday. The necklace, valued at $10,000, was seized with other jewelry valued at $40,000 during the rush hour from the store of Nicolai Miller at 743 Fifth avenue.

Two robbers bound and gagged two clerks, and within 10 minutes cleaned out the show windows and showcases. Before the clerks could free themselves, the thieves had disappeared in the crowd.

The Marie Antoinette necklace was displayed in the window. Beside it was a card purporting to be certification of its ownership from the French Government. The necklace was made up of 25 flat-cut rubies of one to two carats each, set in gold filigree with small diamonds and with a ruby and diamond clasp.

By the Associated Press.

FREDONIA, Ariz., July 30.—Seven persons were killed in the plunge of an automobile from the Houserock Hill highway 75 feet into a canyon last night.

A deputy sheriff said only one of the party of eight in the machine survived.

J. W. Bingham of Tucson identified members of the party as Mrs. Howard Martineau and her daughter, Madge, 18 months old; Mrs. Frank Webb; Mr. and Mrs. Raeburn E. Bischoff, their daughters, Raeburna, 8 years old, and Jo Ann, 7, and their son, Robert, 3, who was reported to be the only survivor.

Bingham, father of Mrs. Bischoff, said all were from the Mormon settlement at Tucson.

FORT MONMOUTH, HIGHLANDS, N. J., July 30.—Army officers here are studying a new ray device said to be capable of detecting the presence of a ship 50 miles at sea through fog and darkness.

Signal Corps technicians declined to confirm reports that they had begun a series of nightly tests designed to demonstrate the ray's effectiveness in spotting not only ships but airplanes at high altitudes.

CHARGES RFC LETS 'INSIDERS' DIRECT REORGANIZATIONS

Dirksen of Illinois Questions Jesse Jones on Mortgage Refinancing at House Hearing.

BONDHOLDERS 'GET IT IN NECK,' HE ASSERTS

Declares Lending Agency Waits for Persons Responsible for Investors' Losses to Offer Plan.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The charge that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was permitting the persons responsible for losses of hundreds of millions of dollars to investors to direct mortgage refinancing was made before the House Banking and Currency Committee today by Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois.

Dirksen made his charge in questioning Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC about his stand on the proposed bill to take the supervision of mortgage refinancing away from the RFC.

"I don't want to be personal about this," Dirksen said, "but I have had word from bondholders of the Houston Properties that they have got only 20 cents on the dollar."

The Houston Properties is a corporation in Houston, Tex., which holds numerous buildings which Jones has promoted. Participating in the refinancing of these properties were Jones' brother, John Jones, and Jones' personal attorney, George Butler.

"But those must have been persons who refused to come in on the plan," Jones said. "They must represent less than 5 per cent of the bondholders."

"I'm not so sure of that," Dirksen replied. "I can think of hundreds who got 5 and 10 cents on the dollar under these mortgage refinancing plans approved by the RFC."

Opportunity He Wanted.

For weeks Dirksen has sought an opportunity to question Jones about facts brought to light by investigators for the House Committee investigating mortgage refinancing. The name of Jones' brother and his personal attorney, Butler, recur in a number of mortgage refinancing plans, according to Dirksen.

Dirksen had charged that administration members on the committee, headed by Representative Sabath (Dem.), Illinois, have suppressed this data and have succeeded in preventing Dirksen from questioning the RFC chairman.

Jones appeared today before the Banking and Currency Committee of the House, not in regard to the mortgage refinancing bill, but to give his opinion on the measure introduced by Representative Kopplemann of Connecticut, which would create 12 intermediate credit banks to advance loans to small business and industry. Dirksen seized the opportunity, however, to question Jones about the mortgage refinancing policy of the RFC and drew a promise from Chairman Steagall of the Banking and Currency Committee that Jones would appear again at a later date for further questioning on this phase of the RFC's loan program.

The RFC chairman expressed strong opposition to the Kopplemann measure, insisting that the RFC had given all possible aid to small industries.

"The fact is," said Dirksen, "that the RFC must wait for the smart gentlemen on the inside to come forward with their plan, while the bondholder waits, too, and gets it in the neck. The insiders take all the grapes through enormous fees. Isn't it essential that some agency of the Government should be able to act, so that it would not be necessary to wait for a plan?"

"Smart Racketeers."

"But the conservator proposed in the Sabath bill couldn't do it any better than we can," Jones replied. "There would be delays just the same."

"I disagree with you," Dirksen said. "Take the instance of the hotel in Palm Beach that Henry L. Doherty, the utility operator got for $250,000. A hotel worth $6,500,000, and Henry L. Doherty got it for $250,000. That is an example of the kind of thing I mean."

Dirksen referred to the insiders responsible for mortgage refinancing plans approved by the RFC as "smart racketeers."

"We must feel that the plan is fair to all interested parties before it is approved," Jones insisted.

Kopplemann, urging his bill for more credit for small business and industry, said that large textile corporations had fought loans to small concerns in New England.

"The big fellows don't need these

WOMAN, HIRED TO KILL MAN, TELLS OF CRIME

Evelyn Smith Says She Strangled Ervin Lang, Cut Off Legs With Hacksaw.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30. — Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said today Mrs. Evelyn Smith, 47 years old, former burlesque dancer, confessed early this morning that she alone killed Ervin Lang, cut off his legs and, with the aid of her Chinese husband, Harry Jung, threw his body into a swamp near Hammond, Ind., the morning of July 6.

Dougherty said he and Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the State's Attorney police obtained the admission in his office after eight hours of questioning during which Mrs. Smith was twice confronted by Mrs. Blanche Dunkel, 43-year-old mother-in-law of the dead man, and confessed instigator of the killing.

Mrs. Smith, after confessing, prosecutors said, wisecracked: "Well, boys, I'm heading for the last roundup!"

Mrs. Smith at first denied Mrs. Dunkel's story that she had hired the former to kill Lang for a fee of $500, of which $100 was paid, according to Mrs. Dunkel. However, after Mrs. Smith was taken before her accuser the second time, she made what Dougherty said was a "complete confession," saying her only motive was the $500, but that she didn't get even the $100.

The Assistant State's Attorney said her statement corroborated the story told by Mrs. Dunkel after her arrest July 10 when she admitted hiring Mrs. Smith to kill her son-in-law because of jealousy over Lang's attention to other women since the death of Mrs. Dunkel's daughter, Mallie, in December.

Dougherty quoted Mrs. Smith as saying she and Mrs. Dunkel invited Lang, 28-year-old grocery clerk, to Mrs. Smith's place on the night of July 5 and that after he became unconscious from drinking whisky, Mrs. Dunkel left. Then, Dougherty said Mrs. Smith related, she strangled him with a rope.

Then, according to Dougherty, she placed the body in a closet, fearing to carry it outside to the car in which Jung waited because of a party being given by neighbors.

Mrs. Smith left the apartment, next morning, her statement continued, and purchased a hacksaw at a nearby hardware store, and with the saw and knives cut off the victim's legs, putting the legs and torso in a trunk. Mrs. Smith, Dougherty said, then called Jung upstairs and together they carried the trunk to the automobile and drove to a spot near Hammond, Ind., and dropped the torso into a marsh, and near Munster threw out the trunk containing the legs.

TIFF MINERS VOTE TO STRIKE AUG. 12

Meeting at Old Mines, Mo., Gives Company Two Weeks to Increase Pay.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OLD MINES, Mo., July 30.—A mass meeting of 600 tiff miners, held yesterday afternoon on a Washington County hillside near this town, voted to call a strike Aug. 12 unless the National Pigment & Chemical Co. accedes to the men's demand for an increased pay rate. They ask for an increase from $3.50 to $5.50 a ton, declaring that many of them are now unable to earn more than $2.50 a week at the prevailing scale. Many of the workers are on relief.

The men attending the meeting were a representative group of the 2600 engaged in tiff, or barytes, mining in the county, which is the center of production of this commodity, used as a base in paint manufacture.

Priest Talks to Meeting.

The Rev. John H. Cook, pastor of the Catholic church at the town of Tiff, was the principal speaker at the strike meeting. He counseled the strike vote, but argued against an immediate walkout, which some of the workers favored.

Tiff production is dependent on the weather, and the rain of recent months has limited the working time of the miners, and kept the earnings so small that the workers have been unable to subsist on them.

Father Cook, speaking to the men, stood on a flatcar loaded with tiff, in the broiling heat of the sun, and told them that the time had come for a strike. "You have tried to get better pay by peaceable means," he said.

"God put you men on earth to live, not to starve," the priest said. He urged, however, that time be given for possible concessions by the employers.

To Dig Tiff, But Not Move It.

It was decided that, in the two weeks' interval, the men would dig tiff and pile it up, but that they would try to prevent the product from being moved.

The tiff miners are members of three organizations, none of them affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Some belong to the National Barytes Association, to which some land-owners also belong. Others are in the Workmen's Benefit Association or the American Workers' Union.

They will endeavor, it was decided, to put pressure on the paint company, through unions in the A. F. of L., and to prevent the moving of the product, unless a settlement of their demands is made.

Officers of the company were invited to the strike meeting. A local superintendent was expected to attend, but did not appear.

BASIL O'CONNOR'S WORK EXPLAINED

President's Former Associate Hired for Advice on Recapitalization, Not in Connection With Fight on Legislation.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A fee of $25,000 for "a small amount of work" was paid to Basil O'Connor, former law partner of President Roosevelt and brother of Chairman John J. O'Connor, of the House Rules Committee, it was disclosed at today's session of the Senate Lobby investigation.

The testimony was given by Fred Burroughs, vice-president of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., which paid the fee.

It was not paid, Burroughs said, in connection with the company's $800,000 propaganda campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill, but for advice in a recapitalization program.

The House Rules Committee is now conducting a parallel lobby investigation.

"What services did Mr. O'Connor perform?" asked Chairman Hugo Black (Dem.), Alabama.

"He did a small amount of work," Burroughs replied. He did not describe its nature.

$25,000 Fee to Hurley.

Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Hoover, also received a legal fee of $25,000 for opposing the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill, it was testified by O. E. Wasser, comptroller of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., who audits its accounts. He was unable to tell what services Hurley performed.

"Mr. Hurley has been very indignant recently over the way the Government is being run, hasn't he?" asked Senator Schwellenbach (Dem.), Washington. "I wouldn't know about that," Wasser replied.

"You would if you read the newspapers," said the Senator. "I would merely like to observe that from my experience, $25,000 will buy a lot of indignation. No wonder Mr. Hurley regards the Wheeler-Rayburn bill as an outrage."

Chairman Black announced that committee investigators had traced $791,000 spent by Associated Gas in its efforts to defeat the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Officers of the company stated last week that it spent $700,000 opposing the measure.

Draws $1080 a Month.

Wasser, a spectacled man with a pronounced German accent, testified that he authorized the expenditures, but knew very little about them. Although he is a director of the $100,000,000 Associated Gas system, he owns no stock. His salary is $1080 a month, and he has no other compensation.

At the last stockholders' meeting, held two weeks ago at Ithaca, N. Y., to elect directors, Wasser said, two stockholders were present. The company has 240,000 stockholders. Wasser couldn't remember the names of the two who attended.

All the questions and answers tended to emphasize that the system, covering 26 states and more than 2000 cities, is dominated by J. T. Mange, the ailing president, and H. C. Hopson, miscsing vice-president, for whom the committee investigators are still looking.

Means to Bring in Hopson.

Black declared that unless Hopson appeared at once, "a supena for him will be put in the hands of every United States Marshal in this country and its territories."

"It is perfectly obvious," he said, "that no man could be in the United States, and able to read the newspapers, without knowing that this committee wishes to examine Mr. Hopson. We do not wish to be severe, but we are going to have

HOUSE COMMITTEE COMPLETES WORK ON NEW TAX BILL

Chairman Doughton Expects to Call Up Measure on Floor Tomorrow—"Thursday at Latest."

WILL TRY TO OBTAIN PASSAGE THIS WEEK

Final Action Certain by Monday, He Says — Republicans to Attack Rates in Minority Report

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON July 30.—The new $275,000,000 tax bill was formally approved by the House Ways and Means Committee today.

Chairman Doughton hoped to call up the measure on the floor tomorrow. He said that if he failed it would be taken up "Thursday at the latest."

"I hope we can get it passed by Saturday," Doughton said. "If we don't, we certainly can get it through by Monday."

Indications were that Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee would file a minority report criticising the bill. They contend it would do little toward balancing the budget.

The vote on the bill in committee was 17 to 7, with Democrats agreeing solidly to approve the bill and the Republicans voting against it. The only member not recorded was Representative Lamneck (Dem.), Ohio, who is ill.

No attempt was made in the committee to permit corporations to deduct from taxable income their gifts to community chests and other charitable organizations.

The bill imposes new taxes on inheritances and gifts, increases the levies on incomes exceeding $50,000; boosts existing excess profits taxes and levies a graduated tax on corporation incomes.

Republicans' Attitude.

The attitude of Republican House leaders was expressed by Representative Martin of Massachusetts, who was asked whether Republicans would hold a special conference to decide their stand on the bill.

"We don't have to have a conference to decide to vote against it," he said. "It's neither a share-the-wealth bill nor a bill designed to balance the budget."

He disagreed with a Democratic estimate that 25 of the 113 Republicans in the House would vote for the bill.

Hearings in Senate.

The House bill's surtax provisions reaching into income brackets lower than recommended by President Roosevelt were questioned by Democratic Senators as the Senate Finance Committee opened hearings on the measure today.

L. H. Parker, chief of staff of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation, told the committee the bill increased surtaxes beginning at $50,000, while Roosevelt used the excess of $1,000,000 as "an example" for consideration of increases.

"Have you followed the President's recommendations?" asked Senator King (Dem.), Utah. Parker, who helped draft the measure, said he followed the recommendations of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"So you construed the President's message to start the increases at $50,000?" asked Chairman Harrison.

"It was the declaration of the committee," Parker said, adding: "Of course no substantial revenue can be obtained by graduating surtaxes from $1,000,000 up. That would only raise about $5,000,000 or $6,000,000."

Regarding surtaxes, Parker said if the President's $1,000,000 "example" were used it would have stepped up surtaxes only on 46 individuals in 1933. By starting the increases at $50,000, he said, 7974 taxpayers would be affected.

The Senators called Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to appear tomorrow to explain the bill.

In yesterday's committee discussion, it was brought out that the bill would permit railroads to continue filing consolidated corporation income-tax returns and pay a 15¾ per cent tax as they have since the 1934 revenue act was passed. If they do not choose to file consolidated returns, those with incomes of $15,000 or less will pay 13¾ per cent and those which make a net of more than $15,000 will pay 14¾ per cent. These are the proposed rates for other corporations. The advantage of consolidated returns is that losing lines may be balanced against those which make profits. Only railroads, under existing law, may file consolidated returns.

Provisions of Bill.

The new taxes, in brief, as proposed in the bill, follow:

Individual incomes—An increase in the surtax levies on all incomes exceeding $50,000. The present 30 per cent levy on that part of an income between $50,000 and $56,000 would be increased to 31 per cent. The tax on the portion of an income over $5,000,000 would be 75, instead of 59 per cent. Estimated to produce $45,000,000 a year.

Placing Buoy in Lusitania Search

OFFICERS of the Orphir, salvage ship seeking the treasures of the sunken Lusitania, supervise the placing of one of the buoys marking out the 12-mile square area in which the wreck is thought to lie.

Excitement Aboard Orphir Over Large Hulk in Area Where Lusitania Sank

Day Spent in Charting Exact Spot of Bulky Wreck Which Captain Thinks Is Torpedoed British Liner.

By GILBERT McALLISTER.

(Copyright, 1935.)

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, July 30.—The excitement of a new hope, highest of any held so far, gripped the 30 men aboard the Orphir today after a day spent in charting the exact spot occupied by a bulky wreck which Capt. Russell said he was "almost convinced" is the sunken British liner Lusitania.

The hulk beneath us lies about seven miles off the old Head of Kinsale, well inside the area designated by Capt. Turner of the Lusitania as that within which the liner went down. The Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine May 7, 1915.

Shortly after dawn yesterday morning we steamed out of the cove near Kinsale where we had spent the night. Capt. Russell directed his course straight for the buoy marked with a white flag which he had dropped a week ago to mark one possible position of the Lusitania. The sea was calm and clear.

We quickly reached the buoy. In the control room our echo-sounding expert, William Stephens, began to chart the bed beneath us. Slowly we rounded the buoy.

Even Captain Becomes Excited.

Suddenly there was a command from the bridge. Seamen astern heaved over the anchor of a second marking buoy topped with a red flag, not more than 200 yards from the first position. I went to the bridge and found the echo-sounding apparatus again had indicated the outlines of a giant hull. Capt. Russell hailed me excitedly, "there's something there, something big." In ever narrowing circles the Orphir was maneuvered about the buoy, in arcs as small as its speed and rudder would permit. Capt. Russell ordered that the ship zigzag hard aport and astarboard by turn.

There came a second shout that the depth of the wreckage had suddenly increased in the graph to 78 feet or 13 fathoms. The position was given as north 19 east from Old Head of Kinsale. Again and again we sounded for depth, the graph moving sharply within a short range as though what lay beneath us might make its outline more distinct.

More Sounding for Length.

All day we plied our path across the hulk, sounding for every angle across the mark held fast by the red buoy which had been dropped at the first command. In the afternoon we sounded for length, and found it took four minutes to drift the entire distance according to our echo sounding chart. But, because the echo sounder indicates objects at a considerable angle from the ship, it will be necessary to fine-comb the sea about the red buoy until the angles can be correlated and the exact position of the hulk determined. The echoes travel with mathematical precision to and from the bottom with such uncanny accuracy that we can measure these angled depths by means of them.

The wreck beneath us is larger than that we sighted last Friday less than half a mile from the spot where we concentrated our efforts yesterday. We know, however, that the bottom off Kinsale is dotted with the wreckage of vessels of war and peace. We recognize that our search may be long and hard, that we may have to search countless hulks before our object is found. Nevertheless hope is high that the wreck sighted yesterday will prove to be the Lusitania.

Last night, as we sailed at dusk from the scene where our hope for today lies, we could see the two markers receding in the half darkness; the white flag that designates the scene of the expedition's first search, and the red where the first diver to stand on the sunken Lusitania's decks may see the surface close over his headpiece as he descends slowly in search of gold and historical facts.

NEGRO MURDERER OF WHITE MAN LYNCHED BY MOB

Hanged by Men Who Take Him From Sheriff and Deputy Near Louisburg, N. C.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISBURG, N. C., July 30.—Sweat Ward, 25-year-old Negro murderer of C. J. Stokes, Franklin County farmer, was lynched today by a mob which took him from officers and hanged him to an oak tree half a mile from the scene of the killing.

While State highway patrolmen, a National Guard company and county officers sought the mob in an effort to prevent the lynching, its members hanged the Negro, described by Sheriff J. T. Moore as insane, near the place where he killed Stokes with an ax this morning. His body was filled with pistol and shotgun wounds.

The Sheriff's office was informed the Sheriff and Deputy T. P. Bean, who were taking the Negro out of the county as a precaution against violence, were halted 10 miles from here and the Negro taken from them.

Ward killed Stokes and cut off his head with an ax this morning when the farmer sought to calm the Negro, who had attacked a Negro woman and another farmer Sturgeon Ayscue, in what apparently was a mad frenzy.

Officers who brought the Negro to Louisburg after the killing said witnesses told them Ward suddenly ran wild about 9 a. m. at the home of his sister and struck her down with a stone. Ayscue, who was passing by, intervened and was knocked down with a bottle. Stokes was working in a field across the road from the woman's home and started to the assistance of Ayscue. As he tried to reason with the crazed Negro, he was knocked unconscious with a stone. Ward then seized an ax and killed Stokes.

Negroes working nearby overpowered Ward and held him until officers arrived.

Ward was taken to the office of Dr. H. G. Perry for an examination, but tried to escape. He was overpowered after he had broken up furniture in the physician's office. He was then taken to the jail. Shortly afterward Sheriff Moore decided to take him to Rocky Mount, fearing there would be a mob attack on the jail here.

TWO RUSSIAN WOMEN SENTENCED TO DEATH

Wife and Mother-in-Law of Farmer Plead Guilty of Killing Him With Ax.

By the Associated Press.

ROSTOV-ON-DON, U. S. S. R., July 30.—Two women were sentenced to death for murder by a military court yesterday.

They pleaded guilty of killing Michel Popoff, farmer and Communist party candidate, with an ax. Kopsaya Popoff, one of the defendants, was the victim's wife. The other was Elena Levchenka, his mother-in-law.

They said they killed him because he ejected the mother-in-law from his house.

Mr. Hopson here if we are able to get him."

"I Don't Know."

Frank E. Martin, who described himself as "head of the treasury department" of Associated, knew even less about its affairs than Wasser. His salary is $172 a month.

"What is the outstanding financial obligation of the company?" Schwellenbach asked. "I don't know."

"You are head of the treasury department of the company, and don't know what its obligations are?" "Senator, I have no idea."

"What are its assets?" "I don't know."

"Which of the company's stock is voting stock?" "I don't know."

He didn't even know the names of the companies in the Associated system.

$1,000,000 on $1800 Investment.

It was disclosed that an engineering subsidiary, with an original investment of $1800, paid dividends in 1928 and 1929 of $1,046,000. It has been shown that the system was systematically milked by several service companies personally owned by Hopson.

Senator Schwellenbach, a stockholder of Associated Gas, injected a note of comedy when he read a letter addressed to him from the company headquarters, urging him to write to "your Senators and Congressman" in opposition to the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

"Just what did you want me to say to my Senator?" he asked. The reply, if any, was drowned in laughter.

Like all the Associated Gas officers and employes, Wasser could shed no light on Hopson's whereabouts. Mange is in Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, dangerously ill.

$60,000 a Year Officer.

The committee, which has been repeatedly surprised at the comparatively meager salaries received by ranking Associated officers, finally struck pay dirt in Burroughs, who gets $60,000 a year, and is a specialist on financing. He was with the Chase National Bank before joining Associated Gas—"and," he remarked, "at a substantially larger salary."

Burroughs testified that he was a director in 30 utility companies in the Associated system, but could not remember their names. Associated Gas, the "top" holding company, owns 150 companies.

"How many companies of which you are director can you name from memory?" Schwellenbach asked. 'I wouldn't attempt to answer," was the reply.

Black elicited from Burroughs that Hopson and Mange controlled a voting trust which enabled them to name the directors of Associated Gas and its subsidiaries.

"That's bunk," Burroughs shouted once, in reply to a question. Again, when Black was asking him about holding company control of Associated operating companies, he yelled: "You don't know what you're talking about."

"All right," replied the imperturbable Black, "what am I talking about?" "I don't know, and you don't either," said Burroughs.

Among the expenses incurred by Associated Gas in opposing the bill were these items: For telegrams to members of Congress, $132,000; telephone calls, $14,000; postage, $46,000; traveling expenses, $36,000.

Burroughs said he thought the destruction of Associated Gas records in connection with the Wheeler-Rayburn bill "was the dumbest thing I ever heard of." He said he said so to Wasser and N. E. Beach, company officers who ordered the records destroyed.

"What did Mr. Hurley do for you?" Black asked. "I just don't remember," Burroughs replied.

"You can't remember what he did that was worth $25,000," Black snorted. "That was just a mere trifle."

"Well, he went with me when I appeared before the House committee against the bill."

"A sort of bodyguard," remarked Schwellenbach.

Witness Grows Angfry.

For a moment it looked as if there wolud be a fist fight at the afternoon session. Burroughs was asked to read a form telegram sent by Associated Gas stockholders to Senators, admonishing them to "observe their oaths."

"If you have read the record here you will realize that an oath does not necessarily mean very much," remarked Senator Minton. "I resent that," Burroughs shouted. "My word is just as good as yours, and maybe better."

"I haven't said anything about your word," Minton replied. "I am talking about testimony that has been given here," Minton replied.

"I think you meant to make an insinuation against me, and you can't get away with it," declared Burroughs.

Polish Court Gives Men 18 Months in Prison; Secret Code Reported Found in One's Room.

COPENHAGEN, July 30.—George Mink and Nicholas Sherman, who claim United States citizenship, were sentenced to 18 months in prison and ordered deported after serving their terms, by the Danish appeal court today, on charges of espionage.

The Court limited its announcement to the fact that they were sentenced under section 105 of the criminal code, which fixes a two-year penalty for anyone proved to have aided a foreign power's intelligence system while in Danish territory.

Other sources, however, disclosed that damaging evidence against them had been uncovered. There was one account of a secret code discovered in Mink's apartment which police experts could not decipher. They sent it to Berlin, where Gen. Wilhelm Goering's secret police, the Gestapos, will try to read it. Other evidence was reported to have turned up in the Mink apartment, invoving not only Sherman, but 11 others. All were arrested, but the 11 were released after investigation.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—State Department records show that George Mink and Nicholas Sherman, sentenced in Denmark for espionage, are residents of New York City.

TRAIN ROBBERS KILL PASSENGERS IN MANCHOUKUO

Hold Up Hsinking-Tumen Express and Single Out Japanese for Death, Tokio Reports.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 30.—Manchoukuan bandits were reported by the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency today to have held up the Hsinking-Tumen express and killed several passengers.

Dispatches said the bandits derailed the express last night about 50 miles east of Hsinking, capital of the Japanese-sponsored State of Manchoukuo and sought out Japanese passengers for death.

Of the 11 or 12 killed, the Rengo correspondent at Hsinking reported, one was a Russian and four were Manchoukuans, apparently mistaken for Japanese.

Sergt. Imamura of the independent guard corps of the Kwantung (Japanese continental) army was the first victim of the bandits, the correspondent said, and after he was shot the brigands burned his body and danced around it, shouting: "Down with the Japanese."

An unestimated number of persons were wounded, among them five Japanese and three Manchoukuans. Twelve guards were reported to have been kidnaped after attempting to beat off the bandits. Japanese and Manchoukuan troops hastened out in an effort to rescue the prisoners and capture the killers.

INHERITANCE TAX $37,788 ON ST. LOUISAN'S ESTATE

Payment to State on Valuation of $462,000 for Property of Mrs. Mysenburg.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—The estate of Mrs. Lucretia B. Meysenburg of St. Louis, who died Nov. 22, 1932, paid into the State Treasury today an inheritance tax of $37,788 on a net estate of $462,000. The estate has been in litigation much of the time since her death.

An inventory filed a month ago valued the estate at $469,770. Mrs. Meysenburg, widow of Theodore A. Meysenburg, head of the old Tudor Iron Works, left the bulk of her estate to fou rwoman friends, a niece and a cousin, who will receive about $68,000 each.

loans and they fight them so the little fellows can't get them," he said. "They want to drive the little fellow out. They appeal to you to help drive out the little fellow.

"You have acted in such a way as to crush out the little fellow on behalf of the big fellow."

Loans to "Small Business."

Kopplemann pointed out that of the $300,000,000 which the RFC was originally authorized to lend to small business and industry, only $24,000,000 had been actually advanced. And this, he added, was seven months after the date when Congress had assumed that the $300,000,000 would have all been lent.

"Not in any direction have we loaned all the money advanced," Jones said. "We have not had applications for the entire $300,000,000."

Of a total of 4600 applications for small loans, but 2800 were forwarded from the regional offices to the main RFC office in Washington, and of the 2800 only about half were finally approved, Jones said.

Representative Kennedy (Dem.), New York, said that he had been informed that small business men seeking loans in the New York City area felt it was entirely futile to go to the RFC regional office there. He sought to draw from Jones whether the personnel of that office was adequately trained to pass on commercial loans.

"I don't believe there is any need for this bill," Jones said, in reply to a direct question from Kopplemann as to his position on the measure.

This drew from Kopplemann vigorous criticism of the RFC's policy toward small business and industry. The committee showed only a lukewarm interest in the Kopplemann measure.

Sabath Defends Committee.

A little later in the House Sabath defended the work of his committee and advocated passage of his bill creating a conservator to supervise mortgage refinancing.

"The bondholders never had any right whatsoever," Sabath said. "Through misrepresentation, the holdings of bondholders to the value of millions and millions of dollars were taken away from them. The bondholders have been defrauded."

"We accomplished much more than we had ever hoped to accomplish," Sabath said, speaking of the committee's work. Legislation is absolutely necessary to stop these frauds, he added.

Jones' next appearance before the committee, to testify regarding mortgage refinancing, will be within the next few days, Chairman Steagall assured Dirksen.

MAYOR TO FIRE 110 MORE UNLESS ALDERMEN YIELD

Jobholders to Get Notices Friday or Saturday if Board Rejects Dickmann's Peace Terms.

DEMANDS POWER BE GIVEN TO MASON

Insists President Be Permitted to Name Committees—Eight Discharged Workers Reinstated.

A total of 110 more city employes will be dismissed Friday or Saturday unless the 17 anti-Dickmann Aldermen accept Mayor Dickmann's peace terms at their meeting Friday by restoring to President Mason of the board the power of appointing aldermanic committees, it was learned at City Hall today. This power now is vested in Vice-President Fitzsimmons, a leader of the anti-Dickmann faction.

Of the total slated for dismissal in the event the Mayor and the Aldermen fail to come to terms, about 20 are from the Twenty-second Ward, where William L. Igoe, president of the Police Board; Alderman Nick Reidy and Committeeman John J. Sweeney, all anti-Dickmann leaders, reside. The rest are from other wards which have factions opposing the Mayor, such as the Twenty-fourth, home ward of Recorder of Deeds John P. English, chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

No Conferences Held.

There have been no conferences between the Mayor and the hostile Aldermen since last week. Mason said today he had not yet been consulted by the Aldermen. Some of the anti-Dickmann members of the board have been discussing a compromise whereby Mason would appoint the committees and give pro-Dickmann and anti-Dickmann Aldermen equal representation. At present, most of the committees are comprised of five anti-administration and two pro-administration members.

The Mayor has indicated, however, that the Aldermen must give Mason complete control over committees, in view of their rejection of his first proposal that the committees should be selected by a steering committee of six, three pro-Dickmann and three anti-Dickmann members, consulting with Mason and the Mayor.

Proposal Is Rejected.

This proposal was rejected at a caucus of the anti-Dickmann Aldermen last Tuesday. Alderman Fitzsimmons stating that it would give the Mayor complete control over the city's legislative body, in violation of the spirit of the city charter.

Eight Get Jobs Back.

Eight city employes who were sent notices of dismissal effective Thursday have been reinstated, following investigation which showed that while they obtained their appointments on recommendation of anti-administration committee members and Aldermen, they are loyal to the Mayor.

The Mayor and his advisers are continuing the investigations with a view to determining whether any more of the 159 dismissed since June 6 are loyal to the Mayor in spite of their sponsors. The Mayor has indicated there will be no widespread reinstatements, however.

Five of those reinstated obtained their jobs through Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, Fourth Ward committeeman.

Those Reinstated.

Those reinstated are:

Michael Hodges, janitor, Public Safety Department, 1721 Carr street, Fourth Ward.

John W. Williams, janitor, Public Safety Department, 1721 Carr street, Fourth Ward.

John P. Broderick, laborer, sewer division, 1004A Cass avenue, Fourth Ward.

Charles Poston, park guard, 1404 Semple avenue, Miller appointee.

Thomas J. Carey, lineman, department of the President, Board of Public Service, 4543A Clarence avenue, Miller appointee.

William Kaider, janitor, Park Division, 604 Barton street, Ninth Ward.

Alice Smith, Deputy Marshal, 3320 Park avenue, Sixteenth Ward.

James T. Hennessy, electrician, Department of Public Utilities, 3138 Easton avenue, Nineteenth Ward. Hennessy now resides at 5965 Maple avenue, in the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Cancelation of dismissal in these eight cases was sent to department heads yesterday. George B. Tracy, secretary and chief examiner of ten Efficiency Board, said an investigation had proved the "capability, efficiency and loyalty" of the persons involved.

Determining Whom to Fire.

In determining those to be dismissed, the Mayor and his advisers have consulted Efficiency Board lists showing the committee member or Alderman who made the recommendation for appointment, the intention of the administration being to discharge most of those recommended by a committee member or Alderman who has been fighting the Mayor.

In the case of the eight reinstated, it was found that although appointed on recommendation of hos-

Alice Smith, Deputy Marshal, 3320 Park avenue, Sixteenth Ward.

James T. Hennessy, electrician, Department of Public Utilities, 3138 Easton avenue, Nineteenth Ward. Hennessy now resides at 5965 Maple avenue, in the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Cancelation of dismissal in these eight cases was sent to department heads yesterday. George B. Tracy, secretary and chief examiner of ten Efficiency Board, said an investigation had proved the "capability, efficiency and loyalty" of the persons involved.

Determining Whom to Fire.

In determining those to be dismissed, the Mayor and his advisers have consulted Efficiency Board lists showing the committee member or Alderman who made the recommendation for appointment, the intention of the administration being to discharge most of those recommended by a committee member or Alderman who has been fighting the Mayor.

In the case of the eight reinstated, it was found that although appointed on recommendation of hostile committee members or Aldermen, the employes were loyal to the Mayor and not in sympathy with their sponsor or sponsors in their fight on Dickmann.

Eleventh Ward Club Formed.

The formation of pro-Dickmann organizations in wards where the committee members or Aldermen are opposing the Mayor is continuing. The Eleventh Ward Progressive Democratic Club was formally organized last night at a meeting at Compton avenue and Utah street, attended by about 125 persons, some of them city employes. Charles D. Sparwasser, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Alderman of the ward in 1933, was elected president.

A resolution was passed unanimously, stating that the members and officers of the club, by passage of the resolution, "affirm our faith in the Democratic party and its principles and pledge our aid and support to our Mayor, the Hon. Bernard F. Dickmann, who has maintained so faithfully the principles of the party, and pledge him our loyal support in defeating those who would destroy our party."

The anti-Dickmann faction in the ward is headed by Committeeman Andrew J. Murray, a Deputy Sheriff, and Alderman Eilert F. Gummels. Mrs. Mary Kelly, ward committeewoman, heads another pro-administration faction.

STREET PHOTOGRAPHER TAKEN TO COURT BY ANGRY SUBJECT

Salesman Objects to Snapshot, but Case Is Referred to Parole Officer.

Edward King, salesman, 1558 Lafayette avenue, was in "a careless condition" when Elton Stone, "flash" photographer, snapped his picture on Olive street last Wednesday.

King voiced his objections to sidewalk photography yesterday in Police Court, where Stone was tried on a charge of disturbing the peace.

"I had my hat tilted and my coat slung across my shoulder when this man snapped his camera and tried to hand me an order card," King explained. "Next thing you know these fellows will take a picture on some dark corner at midnight and get a man in a lot of trouble. I didn't want my picture taken."

Asked if, in his capacity as a salesman, he did not frequently assume a "bold front," the complaining witness replied that boldness was necessary, but added "this picture business is too bold."

No sentence was imposed and the case was referred to the parole officer.

"Flash" photographers snap informal pictures of persons passing on the street and endeavor to sell copies to the subjects.

RETRIAL FOR OREON E. SCOTT IN $666,000 SUIT AFFIRMED

State Supreme Court Upholds Order in Dispute Involving Part of Federal Building Site.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30. — The Supreme Court of Missouri today affirmed the action of Circuit Judge Calhoun of St. Louis on July 29, 1934, in granting a new trial to Oreon E. Scott, real estate dealer, in the suit ... heirs of Mrs. Caroline J. Peper involving former ownership of two-thirds of the site of the new Federal Building in St. Louis.

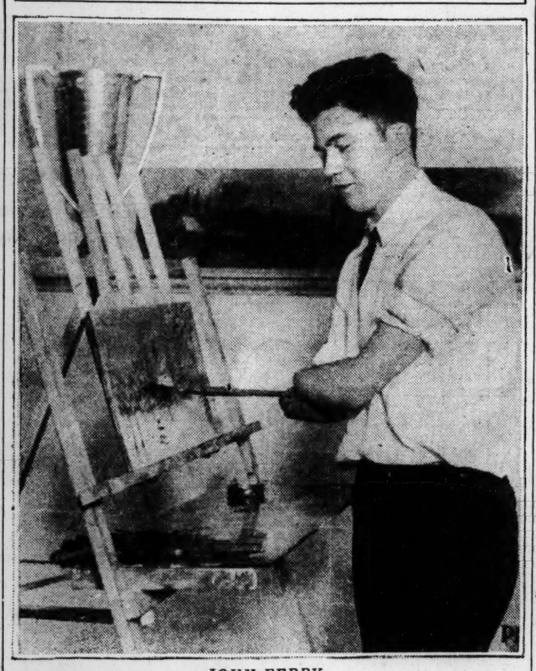

Scott bought the property in 1922 at foreclosure sale. It was alleged by the heirs that there was an agreement by which Scott was to convey title to them when certain conditions were carried out. Scott asserted that the conditions were not carried out. The foreclosure occurred before it was known the Government wanted the property. A fund of about $800,000 has been held in escrow to pay the eventual winner of the dispute for the purchase by the Government.

A decree in favor of the Peper heirs had been signed in Circuit Court in 1933.

Chauffeur Fires at Robbers.

Eugene Regh, chauffeur for the J. M. Donley Truck Service Co., 5401 Bulwer avenue, fired three shots at two men he found looting the company warehouse at 10 o'clock last night. The shots apparently went wild and the burglars fled. A check showed that five cases of soap powder, valued at $9, were missing.

Drowned in Big River

JOHN FERRY,

HANDLESS SWIMMER DROWNS IN BIG RIVER

John Ferry, Artist and Ice Cream Vender, Loses Life Near Byrnes Mill.

John Ferry, who became a painter although he had lost both hands when he was 9 years old and who made a livelihood as an ice cream vender when the depression closed the market for his landscapes, was drowned Sunday in Big River near Byrnes Mill, Jefferson County.

Ferry, who was 27 years old, left his rooming house at 4031 Delmar boulevard Sunday moring with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lynch, 1251 Aubert avenue, for a picnic. Late in the afternoon Ferry went for a swim by himself.

A short distance below Byrnes Mill, he was swimming where the current was swift due to a narrowing of the channel. Members of the picnic party heard him cry for help but he had disappeared when they reached the bank. Deputy Sheriff August Selter of High Hill made an unsuccessful attempt to recover the body yesterday.

Injured by Explosion.

Ferry lost both hands as the result of the explosion of a dynamite cap he was holding. The blast also destroyed the sight of his right eye. In spite of this handicap, he took up painting and sketching, holding his brush or crayon between the stubs of his arms. He obtained such books of instruction as he could find in the mining settlement of Bear Creek, Mont., where his family resided.

His father having been killed in a mine accident, there were no funds for painting lessons. Ferry persisted and about nine years ago made his way to St. Louis, quitting work as a candy salesman, setting up his easel in the window of a paint store on Olive street near Grand boulevard, and turning out landscapes which brought him a comfortable income and permitted him to obtain some instruction.

At one time he appeared at a St. Louis theater, making crayon sketches for the amusement of the audience. He was able to ride a horse and drive an automobile.

Turns to Selling Ice Cream.

In recent years, finding no market for his paintings, he became a familiar figure as an ice cream vender along Delmar boulevard between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway, continuing his painting for his own amusement.

Surviving are his mother and several sisters and brothers, who reside in Montana.

The truck, driven by William Hord, was crossing Michigan avenue when it collided with the northbound street car. Sand spilled into the car, in which windows were shattered and a door smashed.

KATTELMAN HELD NOT IN CONTEMPT FOR NOT REPLYING

U. S. Judge Moore Decides Head of Brokerage Firm Is Within His Constitutional Right.

Harold J. Kattelman was within his rights when he refused, on the ground that he might incriminate himself, to answer questions about his business at an examination before Referee in Bankruptcy Plowman, United States District Judge Moore ruled today in dismissing a contempt citation.

Judge Moore held that the witness was the judge of whether an answer might incriminate him and that aKtatelman should be allowed "considerable latitude" in determining whether to answer, because he was in a business regulated by many laws. His stock-selling firm, the H. J. Katatedman Co., has been closed since the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission filed suit against it June 29, alleging that it was an insolvent bucket shop.

The inqiiry before Referee in Bankruptcy Plowman will be resumed tomorrow, with other witnesses on the stand.

Opening tSatement.

In an opening statement to the Court, Victor Packman, attorney for two customers of the Kattelman firm whose questions Kattelman refused to answer, said that good faith was a necessary prerequisite for one who would invoke the constitutional privilege of refusing to answer on the ground that a reply would tend to incriminate him. Kattelman, the attorney said, had not shown good faith because some of the questions he declined to answer called for responses that obviously could not tend to incriminate him.

Kattelman's attorneys, however, took the position that the witness was the sole judge of whether a reply would tend to incriminate him. He was represented by Patrick H. Cullen, Clem F. Storckman, and former Assistant United States District Attorney C. J. Stattler, whose son was one of Kattelman's salesmen.

Argument of Cullen.

Cullen argued that the charges in the injunction suit of the Securities Commission, if they were presented in the form of an indictment and if they were proved would be sufficient to convict his client of using the mails to defraud.

Enumerating the dangers which confronted Kattelman. Cullen spoke of the new Securities and Exchange Act, "which is as full of teeth as a shark's jaw," the postal laws and regulations, the bankruptcy law, the Federal conspiracy statute and various State laws.

The first of the 19 questions which Kattelman refused to answer, Cullen recalled, was whether he had ever had any partners on a "fee splitting" basis. "Had he answered that question," Cullen said, "he might have opened up an investigation by Federal authorities to have him prosecuted for conspiracy. It was with the greatest reluctance, and after a long conference, that Kattelman's counsel decided the best course to pursue would be for him to refuse to answer questions. It is his privilege, and the privilege of every man against whom charges are brought, to cloak himself in silence."

Cites Coles' Decision.

Storckman cited various court decisions which, he said, upheld the position taken by Kattelman. Among them was the ruling of Referee in Bankruptcy Walter D. Coles, now on the State Supreme Court, that William H. Young and his brother Fred could not be compelled to answer questions about the William H. Young Bros. (Inc.) brokerage firm which failed five years ago. Subsequently both were sent to prison for mail fraud.

Kattelman's company was associated with the Young Bros.' firm by an arrangement under which Kattelman resold securities taken by Young Bros. in exchange for preferred stock of that firm.

THREE 60-YEAR-OLD BUILDINGS TO BE RAZED ON OLIVE STREET

Brick Structures East of Sixteenth Street to Be Torn Down to Save Upkeep.

A city permit has been issued to wreck three old three-story brick buildings fronting on the north side of Olive street, just east of Sixteenth street. John L. McDowall, agent in charge of the property which has a 60-foot frontage, said the ground probably would be used for a parking lot.

The owners will save the taxes of about $110 a year on the buildings. Value of the ground was estimated by McDowall at $30,000.

The property belongs to the family of the late Charles Hays, who was president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad and was drowned in the sinking of the Titanic. McDowall said the owners did not wish to continue upkeep of the buildings, which are more than 60 years old.

PERMIT ISSUED FOR RAZING OF DAVID R. FRANCIS HOME

Property at Maryland and Newstead Now Owned by Catholic Sisters of Mercy.

A permit to wreck the David R. Francis home and its adjoining buildings on the Francis tract at Maryland and Newstead avenues was issued today by the Building Commissioner to A. Traxler, wrecker.

The house and the property are now owned by the Catholic Order of the Sisters of Mercy, which acquired it from the Francis Investment Co. in return for a lot at the southwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street and an unannounced amount of cash. Traxler will receive the materials and pay $650 for wrecking the mansion, a three-story brick building.

When the Sisters of Mercy acquired the property, plans for the erection of a business women's home on the site were announced, but construction of the home will not begin immediately. The home originally was the property of David R. Francis, former Governor of Missouri and Ambassador to Russia.

OIL FIRM'S SUIT TO PREVENT FORECLOSURE SALE DISMISSED

Circuit Court Acts on Litigation Instituted by Doerr-Engel Co.

The suit of the Doerr-Engel Oil & Supply Co. to prevent foreclosure of five parcels of realty to satisfy a $15,000 note held by the Tidewater Oil Co., was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Douglas. The Court previously had sustained defense demurrers to the petition, following which ruling the plaintiff declined to file amended pleadings.

In the petition it was alleged the Doerr-Engel firm had a three-year contract to sell and distribute Tidewater products, the contract being with Sid's Petroleum Corporation, selling agent. The suit charged that the contract was revoked by the defendant company without cause. In addition to a restraining order, the Court was asked to award $54,000 damages to the petitioner.

MOVIE FIRMS' TRIAL SEPT. 30

Anti-Trust Case Set by Federal Judge Moore.

Federal Judge Moore yesterday set Sept. 30 as the date for trial of the case in which a group of movie corporations and some of their officers were charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trist act through alleged withholding of pictures from theaters here operated by the Fanchon & Marco interests.

The Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters were the houses concerned. Interests of Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O were made defendants under the indictment. Judge Moore overruled a demurrer to the indictment by the R-K-O Distributing Corporation and Ned E. Depinet, its president. He sustained a motion by the same defendants for a bill of particulars and directed Government counsel to furnish it to their counsel by Sept. 9.

Temperature in St. Louis Is Above 90 for Seventh Consecutive Day.

One man died yesterday of heat exhaustion, and six persons have received medical attention at City Hospital for conditions caused by the heat. Today was the seventh consecutive day of temperatures above 90 degrees.

The mercury reached 100 degrees for the first time this year at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Weather Bureau on top of the Railway Exchange Building.

Beginning last Wednesday and including yesterday, the following maximum temperatures were recorded: 94, 93, 93, 91, 94, 94, 94. The percentage of humidity on the corresponding days was 64, 62, 52, 54, 61 and 59.

Several cases of heat exhaustion were reported during the week.

COUNTY LOSES SUIT OVER HIGHWAY COST

Commission Need Not Refund $216,676 for Improvement of No. 77.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—The State Supreme Court today held that the State Highway Commission did not have to refund $216,676 to St. Louis County for taking over the right-of-way on traffic relief highway 77 six years ago and making it a part of the State highway system. The Court upheld the contention of the Highway Commission that the county agreed to purchase the right-of-way out of its own funds, and therefore, was not entitled to any refund credit.

"The road was still a county road at the time the county agreed to secure and pay for the necessary right-of-way to widen it," Judge William F. Frank pointed out. "The mere fact that the county did not perform its part of the agreement until after the adoption of the resolution by which the State took the road over did not convert the agreement relating to a county road into one relating to a State road."

After the Highway Commission took over the road on July 2, 1929, the county expended $96,069 to purchase right-of-way in widening it. The remainder of the amount sought was spent earlier.

40-HOUR WEEK FOR POSTAL EMPLOYES VOTED BY SENATE

Bill Held Up, However, By McKellar's Objection to Amendment Affecting Rail Clerks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—A 40-hour week for postal employes was voted by the Senate yesterday, but Chairman McKellar of the Postoffice Committe moved to reconsider the action because of an amendment added from the floor.

A House bill, authorizing the 40-hour week, was passed without a record vote. McKellar's motion, however, held up its transmittal back to the House for action on Senate amendments.

The amendment to which McKellar objected was offered by Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, to prevent discrimination against railroad mail employes on the new high-speed trains. It provides for an eight-hour day for 254 days a year for such employes, or annual mileage of 44,450 miles on lines up to 350 miles long and annual mileage up to 50,800 miles on lines more than 350 miles long.

McKellar objected to the amendment on behalf of the Postoffice Department, which he said opposed it.

In order to provide a 40-hour week for postal employes, the bill authorizes compensatory time off for work performed on Saturdays.

WEATHER AGAIN POSTPONES TAKEOFF OF SOVIET FLYERS

Little Chance That Russians Can Start on Flight Across Pole to U. S. Before Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 30.—The weather along the proposed route of the polar flyers continued to be unfavorable today, and no improvement was expected tomorrow. It appeared unlikely that Sigmund Levaneffsky and his companions could start for the United States by way of the North Pole before Thursday.

Their low-winged monoplane has been stocked with a supply of concentrated food, fur clothing and firearms to permit the airmen to exist on polar ice in case they are forced down. The plane has a 950-horsepower motor, retractable landing gear and a closed cabin. The cabin is qquipped with a bed and an electric stove.

The co-pilot, George Baidukoff, an expert in flying blind, has been trained for emergency medical duty. He will carry a supply of medicine and surgical instruments.

The crew of three is now in care of physicians who, during a few months of special feeding, have increased their weight more than 22 pounds each.

MANY PERSONS REPORTED INJURED IN TYPHOON IN CHINA

Storm Hits Foochow After Doing Damage on Formosa Island.

FOOCHOW, China, July 30.—Many persons were reported to have been injured tonight as the severest typhoon in many years struck Foochow.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 30.—A typhoon sweeping toward China caused heavy property damage on the Island of Formosa today. Communications were disrupted. No loss of life was reported.

The central section of the island was reported to have been hardest hit. The storm passed at 5 a. m.

Houses were destroyed in closely populated areas, and banana and sugar plantations were badly damaged. Trains were halted.

The typhoon—the third this season and one of the worst ever to strike the island, which is about 800 miles south of Japan off the coast of China—damaged the power house and lift the capital city of Taihoku without electricity.

The City of Shinchiku, which experienced two disastrous earthquakes earlier this year, also was hard hit.

TWO SUSPECTS IN KIDNAPING AT WASHINGTON ARRAIGNED

Arlington Cemetery Employe Held for $8000 Ransom, but Released, Federal Agents Report.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, July 30.—Warner W. Wood and George Hewitt, arrested following the kidnaping last week of Benjamin H. King, 60-year-old Arlington National Cemetery employe, were ordered held today by U. S. Commissioner James K. Cullen in $25,000 bail each. Cullen entered a plea of "not guilty" for the men, pointing out that neither was represented by counsel. He set Aug. 8 for a hearing on the two charges against them, transporting a person held for ransom across state lines and conspiring to kidnap King.

King was said by Bureau of Investigation men at Washington to have been taken across Washington from his cottage at Fort Myer, Va., to upper Marlborough County, Md., and held for $8000 ransom.

The department at Washington announced it had "full confessions" from Hewitt, said to be on parole, and Wood. The ransom, Federal agents said, was not paid and King was released.

OBJECTION FILED TO LABOR CONDITIONS AT FORT PECK

Montana Official Tells President Men Are Underpaid, Trucks Are Overloaded.

HELENA, Mont., July 30.—Edward O'Byrne, Montana Labor Commissioner, charged yesterday that labor conditions at the Fort Peck reclamation project were "a disgrace to civilization" and that employes "do not seem to get any redress for the wrongs imposed." He sent letters of complaint to President Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Perkins about the work on the Missouri River dam.

He said carpenters, who are supposed to be paid $1.20 an hour, actually get from 70 to 75 cents; a mechanic foreman on a salary of $150 a month was required to work from 12 to 14 hours a day and when he complained to the NRA adjuster was discharged, and that contractors, to save money, are overloading trucks, creating a hazard that has resulted in many accidents and at least one fatality.

ACCUSED OF MURDERING WIFE

Man Released From Maine Hospital for Insane Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

SANFORD, Me., July 30.—County Attorney Seidel said Edward Hill, 51 years old, had been arrested on a charge of murdering his wife, Sarah, 61, who died yesterday, supposedly from injuries suffered in a fall down a flight of stairs.

Hill was discharged Saturday from the State Hospital for the Insane at Augusta. He had been there since July 10, 1934. He was arrested after blood and hair was found on a stick of firewood lying a few feet from the spot where Mrs. Hill's body was discovered.

17 PACKERS SUE TO ENJOIN PORK TAX COLLECTION

Petitions Filed by Chicago Firms Which Attacked Validity of Processing Levy Yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A temporary injunction against collection of Federal processing taxes on hogs was asked for today by 17 meat packing companies. United States District Judge John P. Barnes set Thursday for hearings on the petitions. The petitions were filed by the same companies which yesterday began suit in the United States District Court against validity of the AAA taxes. The firms include Swift & Co. and Armour & Co.

Judge Barnes received the assurance of the Internal Revenue Department that no attempt would be made to collect back taxes from the companies pending a court hearing on the preliminary injunction.

Assistant United States Attorney Perkins asked for a brief continuance in court today and suggested he might agree to a temporary restraining order if the packers deposited checks for the full amount of their back taxes plus enough to cover damages and costs of the suit.

Packers' Lawyers Object.

Counsel for the packers objected, however, and Judge Barnes said: "The Court is not contemplating issuing a temporary restraining order. It would prefer a hearing on the preliminary injunction." Perkins assured the Judge he would not demand that an attempt be made before the hearing to collect the back taxes.

United States Attorney Igoe announced the Government would contend at the hearing that no suit to restrain the assessment or collection of taxes may be brought "in any court."

He cited Section 3224 of the Internal Revenue act, which he quoted: "No suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court."

Igoe also referred to a Supreme Court decision in 1916 in which Chief Justice Edward Douglass White said: "This doctrine (Section 3224) has been repeatedly applied until it is no longer open to question that a suit may not be brought to enjoin the assessment or collection of a tax because of the alleged unconstitutionality of the statute imposing it."

More than 440 suits against processing taxes have been filed in recent weeks.

Contentions in Suits.

Six arguments are set forth against the validity of the tax, which is $2.25 a hundred pounds of pork. These are:

Regulation of production of agricultural commodities subject to the AAA contravenes state rights.

Processing taxes were imposed solely for the benefit of a particular class, the producers.

The act is a violation of the fifth amendment of the Federal Constitution because it takes property of one class for payment of gratuities to another.

Legislative power is delegated to the Secretary of Agriculture without fixing clear and adequate standards.

The act is unconstitutional because no judicial review is provided. The production of agricultural commodities is not interstate commerce.

The Other Plaintiffs.

Besides Swift and Armour, the plaintiff firms were Oscar Mayer & Co., P. Brennan & Co., Miller & Hart Inc., Roberts & Co. Inc., the Illinois Meat Co. and C. A. Burnette & Co. Ten other packers joined in a blanket suit filed by Burnette & Co.

C. F. Swift, president of Swift & Co., said that decision to file suit was "reached reluctantly" and that action was taken because of "our belief, reached after the most careful study, that the Agricultural Adjustment Act is unconstitutional. All firms filing suits here since the ruling was given have obtained temporary injunctions. The suit filed by the Staley company, manufacturer of corn products, was the first to be brought on the tax on corn.

$5000 Voted to Widow.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The Senate passed a House bill yesterday authorizing payment of $5000 to the widow of Olin H. Reed of McAlester, Ok., who was killed in Kansas City, Mo., June 17, 1933, when assisting Federal officers in their effort to arrest Frank Nash, gang leader. Nash and several Federal officers also were killed by gangsters attempting to free Nash.

Court Criticises Collection of Taxes With Validity in Doubt.

DENVER, July 30.—The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday criticised the Government for collecting AAA processing taxes while constitutionality of the act is being questioned.

Judges Orie L. Phillips and Robert E. Lewis overruled the decision of District Judge J. Foster Symes, who last week refused to issue an injunction to prevent collection of $185,000 in processing taxes from the Colorado Milling and Elevator Co. They ordered the money impounded until constitutionality of the tax is determined by the United States Supreme Court.

Judges Lewis and Phillips said the Government's policy of collecting the tax and then forcing the taxpayers to sue to recover it, pending a Supreme Court decision, was unfair.

Another Processing Tax Suit Filed in Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 30.—Seeking to recover approximately $750,000 paid the Government in processing taxes, the A. E. Staley Co. of Decatur today obtained in the United States District Court a temporary order restraining Federal officials from collecting the tax. The order was signed by Judge Charles G. Briggle, who recently held the processing tax provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act apparently were unconstitutional.

Five Investigating Conditions in Alabama Report Attack.

By the Associated Press.

CLANTON, Ala., July 30.—A party of five persons investigating the alleged infringement of civil liberties in Alabama and Georgia reported to Sheriff J. R. Hardy today that their automobile was fired on 10 miles south of here by two men in another car.

Bruce Crawford of Horton, Va., spokesman for the party, said they left Birmingham early today for Montgomery to see Gov. Bibb Graves regarding the anti-sedition bill now before his for signature. He said that shortly after they passed Clanton another car pulled in front of theirs and one of two men in it fired "at least six shots at us, two of which struck our car." They telegraphed to Gov. Graves for protection.

Walter Williams, Noted Missouri Educator, Dies

Louisiana Purchase Exposition, the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904. Mr. Williams wrote "The State of Missouri" for the State's Board of Commissioners to the Fair. The 600-page book, packed with facts and pictures about Missouri, its history, resources and institutions, was distributed to all parts of the world, and is still a valued reference work.

His Visit to Spain.

The Exposition management, headed by former Gov. Francis, sent him in 1902 as commissioner to the European press, in behalf of the Fair. Visiting Cadiz, Spain, he called on the editor of the principal newspaper and told him of the coming exposition and the event which it commemorated, the purchase of Louisiana territory from France in 1803. The next day the Cadiz paper informed its readers that "Senor Williams of St. Louis has just purchased 17,000,000 square miles from France, has named it Louisiana, and is going to hold a fiesta to which the entire world is invited." Mr. Williams called on the editor again and endeavored to make matters more clear to him. This resulted in the publication of a correction stating that "Gov. Francis of Missouri has purchased Louisiana, instead of Senor Williams."

Presided at Press Conference.

As part of his work for the exposition, Mr. Williams presided over the North American section of the International Press Congress at Berne, Switzerland, in 1902. He visited more than 1000 newspaper offices.

In his stay-at-home years he became known as teacher of the State's largest Bible class, which grew to 400 members and overflowed the Columbia Presbyterian Church into a storeroom.

At the exposition, Missouri editors drifted into a discussion of the teaching of journalism, then an academic subject. Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the Post-Dispatch, had written an article for the North American Review, outlining the plans which, years afterward, were carried out at Columbia University, New York.

The State editors indorsed the idea of such a course of instruction at the University of Missouri. Mr. Williams, a member of the university board of curators by appointment of his former Boonville townsman, Gov. Stephens, talked with the other members of the board about carrying out the idea.

First Journalism School.

The curators decided that a chair of journalism should be added to the professorships of the university, and asked Mr. Williams to take such a chair. He told them that a chair was not enough—that it was time for journalism, as a profession, to have its own department, with facilities for training its workers.

Early in 1908 the board voted to create the new department, and elected Mr. Williams to be its head. He accepted, resigning from the board of curators and severing his connection with the Herald.

That summer the new dean organized his faculty of two instructors, outlined his four-year journalism course and correlated it with the regular instruction in English, history, economics and other branches, arranged for getting out the daily University Missourian as a laboratory for the school, and waited for the students to come.

They came—the School of Journalism had no difficulty, from the start, in getting students. The first year 97 were enrolled and one received the degree of Bachelor of Science in Journalism, since shortened to Bachelor of Journalism. The first few months were the hardest for Dean Williams and his little faculty. The paper had to come out every day, and had to be newsy, and the work fell on the instructors, until they were able to train a staff to gather and assemble the matter.

The St. Louis and Kansas City dailies—the dean's assistants were men from St. Louis and Kansas City papers—were the chief models and subjects of study for the embryo journalists; but Walter Williams considered and called himself a country editor, and his school was a training place for the makers of county-seat weeklies and of trade journals, as much as for the workers of metropolitan dailies.

His Journalism Creed.

Nor did he promise to turn out full-fledged newspaper men and women. "To train for journalism, not to make journalists," was his modest statement of the school's aims. His definite purpose was to ground his graduates in principles, and to this end he laid emphasis on his creed, which many of the school's alumni still know by heart. It follows:

"I believe in the profession of journalism.

"I believe that the public journal is a public trust; that all connected with it are, to the full measure of their responsibility, trustees for the public; that acceptance of lesser service than the public service is betrayal of this trust.

"I believe that clear thinking and clear statement, accuracy and fairness, are fundamental to good journalism.

"I believe that a journalist should write only what he holds in his heart to be true.

"I believe that suppression of the news, for any consideration other than the welfare of society, is indefensible.

"I believe that no one should write as a journalist what he would not say as a gentleman; that bribery by one's own pocketbook is as much to be avoided as bribery by the pocketbook of another; that individual responsibility may not be escaped by pleading another's instructions or another's dividends.

"I believe that advertising, news and editorial columns should alike serve the best interests of readers; that a single standard of helpful truth and cleanness should prevail for all; that the supreme test of good journalism is the measure of its public service.

"I believe that the journalism which succeeds best—and best deserves success—fears God and honors man; is stoutly independent, unmoved by pride of opinion or greed of power, constructive, tolerant but never careless, self-controlled, patient, always respectful of its readers but always unafraid; is quickly indignant at injustice; is unswayed by the appeal of privilege or the clamor of the mob; seeks to give every man a chance and, as far as law and honest wage and recognition of human brotherhood can make it so, an equal chance; is profoundly patriotic while sincerely promoting international good will, and cementing world comradeship; is a journalism of humanity, of and for today's world."

The school grew to an annual enrollment of 350 students or more, with graduating classes of more than 100 annually since 1927. The total number of graduates exceeds 1900, and they now live, and are, in large part, engaged in newspaper work, in 43 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, the Philippines, and 12 foreign countries. Fourteen Chinese are among the graduates living in that country. The faculty has 15 members.

Placed Graduates in Jobs.

Dean Williams was successful, almost from the first, in placing graduates in positions in various parts of the country, and he sent a number to selected positions, some temporary and some permanent, in the field of American periodicals in foreign lands, particularly Japan, China and Australia.

Each of the dean's foreign tours established new connections for the school and its graduates. An educational mission took him around the world in 1913-14. He was president of the World's Press Congress several years, presiding over its meetings in Honolulu, Geneva, Switzerland, and Mexico, D. F. He aided in the establishment, a few years ago, of the first Asiatic School of Journalism, at Yenching University, Peiping, China.

Journalism week has been held at the school almost every May since its establishment. Dean Williams annually made up a list of leading editors and noted public men, as well as active news workers from the ranks, who were invited to visit and inspect the school, and to speak on assigned topics. The students listened and took notes, but often it was the visitors who seemed to learn the most. The chief treat, for most of them, was the hospitality, and the cosmopolitan outlook of the dean, host for the week's functions.

Seen at discussion meetings or in social gatherings, the dean seemed a mixture of the Oriental sage and the modern stage director. As a speaker, he had the skill of an entertainer, and the charm of unfeigned friendliness.

Those who heard him speak in his middle and later years would not have suspected that, up to 1905, he had a major vocal disability, a high falsetto tone. He strove earnestly to overcome this handicap, and fate gave him unexpected aid when, after a severe attack of typhoid fever, he found himself possessed of the rather deep and wholly adequate voice which afterward remained with him.

Although having no earned collegiate degree, Dean Williams received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Washington University and two other mid-western institutions.

Succeeded Dr. Brooks.

He was advanced to the presidency after the resignation, in 1930, of Dr. Stratton D. Brooks as president. The Board of Curators conferred with Gov. Henry S. Caulfield before making its selection final.

Failing health limited his work in his latest office, but President Williams gave his best efforts to the university's relations with the State Government. He was highly successful in getting legislators to see the need for maintenance of the university's functions, and support of its activities, in depression days.

He retained the deanship of the School of Journalism, which he did not relinquish until he also retired from the presidency. Frank Lee Martin, his chief lieutenant in the school for all but the first few months since its founding, succeeded him as dean.

Dean Frederick A. Middlebush, acting president for the past year, was elected July 1 as Dr. Williams' successor in the presidency.

Refused U. S. Senatorship.

Repeated suggestions were made, in election years, that Dr. Williams should run, or should be drafted by the Democratic party, for Governor or United States Senator. He disregarded these suggestions, and in 1918, when Gov. Gardner offered him the appointment as United States Senator, following Senator Stone's death, he declined. The fact of the offer did not become publicly known until it was told in a Journalism week talk at the school in 1926.

Was Married Twice.

His first marriage, in 1892, was to Miss Hulda Harned of Vermont, Mo. She died in 1918, survived by two of their three children. A son, Walter Jr., died while a student in the university. In 1927 Dean Williams was married to Miss Lockwood, a graduate of the School of Journalism, later an instructor there.

Besides his World's Fair book, Dr. Williams was author of "How the Captain Saved the Day," "Some Saints and Some Sinners in the Holy Land," "Missouri Since the Civil War," "Eloquent Sons of the South," "From Missouri to the Isle of Mull," "The Practice of Journalism," in collaboration with Prof. Martin; "The World's Journalism," and "Journalism — the Newest Weapon of Democracy."

While serving as president of the university, Dr. Williams contributed biographical sketches of several journalists to the Dictionary of American Biography, 20-volume reference work now nearing completion. The subjects of his sketches included Louis Richard Cortambert, William M. Grosvenor, George Knapp, Joseph B. McCullagh and Henry King, all of St. Louis.

Comment in London on Death of Walter Williams.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30. — Alan Pitt Robbins, president of the British Institute of Journalists, said today that Dr. Walter Williams "is mourned by newspaper men the world over. He was an honored fellow of our institute for many years."

Senator Capper Pays Tribute to Dr. Williams.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas today called Dr. Walter Williams "one of the greatest teachers this country ever had."

"Few ever were as able to inspire youth as he was," the Kansas Senator and publisher said.

BILL FOR BONNEVILLE POWER PLANT OFFERED

Measure, Backed by President, Introduced by Senators McNary and Steiwer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — Two Senate Republicans, with the backing of President Roosevelt, introduced a bill yesterday for starting a Government power project at Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon.

The measure was introduced by Senators McNary and Steiwer of Oregon. It would give the War Department, under guidance of the Federal Power Commission, authority to install power equipment and sell electricity to governmental and private organizations at cost plus amortization.

"Early and favorable consideration" was requested by the President in a letter to Chairman Copeland (Dem.), New York, of the Commerce Committee. Steiwer said the project, inaugurated more than a year ago to improve navigation on the Columbia above Portland, will be completed in about two years.

President's Letter on Bill.

In his letter the President said:

"Senator McNary has introduced a bill authorizing the completion, maintenance and operation of certain navigation facilities on the Columbia River, now under construction, known as the Bonneville Dam.

"The bill has been considered by the Chief of Engineers, the Federal Power Commission and the Attorney-General. All agree that the proposed legislation is desirable and necessary to the development of the project.

"In view of this I concur."

Entire Cost $35,000,000.

The entire project is to cost $35,000,000, Steiwer said, and the bill provides that rates shall be fixed by the Power Commission high enough to pay for operation of the power facilities, and to amortize the share attributable to power during the next 50 years.

"The Federal Power Commission," the measure states, "shall determine the part of the cost of the entire project allowable to power development, shall fix and determine all rates and allocations to purchasers of the power to be sold, and all provisions of contracts affecting rates shall be subject to the approval of the commission."

To prevent purchasers of the power from hiking prices to consumers, the bill provides: "If any distributer of power under any contract entered into pursuant to this act shall charge the ultimate consumer a rate for power in excess of a rate approved by the Federal Power Commission, the contract for such sale for redistribution shall be void at the election of the FPC."

Powers for Secretary of War.

The bill would give the Secretary of War power to construct and operate "such trunk transmission lines, substations and other facilities as he may deem essential to the disposal of power at wholesale," and "may acquire by purchase, condemnation or donation any real or personal property or any interest therein as he may deem necessary in the carrying out of any provisions of this act."

The states of Washington and Oregon are given an opportunity to benefit in a provision that any time earnings exceed operating and amortization expenses, each state will receive 18¾ per cent of the surplus revenue.

WINS BET BY HOAX ON POLICE

Man Falsely Reports He Was Kidnaped; Fined $50.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, July 30.—Robert C. Byers, 42 years old, Columbus sales counselor, who went to jail for a kidnaping hoax to win a dinner bet, was freed from the Warrensville workhouse yesterday. A money order for $60, from George Byers Sr. of Columbus gained him his freedom.

The prisoner went to jail in preference to paying a $50 fine assessed in Municipal Court here for making a false police report. Byers said that "on a dinner bet with Al Gorham, a Jacksonville, Fla., Elk, that he could get front-page publicity at a cost of less than $100," he told Cleveland police that he was kidnaped. Byers apparently has won his bet, having paid personally only $50 which he was fined in Columbus Municipal Court.

DETECTIVE QUESTIONED ABOUT DETROIT MURDER CONFESSIONS

He Denies at Trial of Four Alleged Conspirators That Police Used Coercion.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 30.—Defense attorneys in the trial of William Ferris and three women companions for the murder of Howard Carter Dickinson of New York indicated today that police methods of obtaining confessions would be emphasized by the defense.

Counsel for Ferris and his three co-defendants asked Detective Leo P. Doyle yesterday how long the prisoners were questioned in getting statements from them.

The prosecution has told the jury that each of the defendants made confessions detailing how they plotted to kill Dickinson for his money, hoping to get enough to start a road show. Two of Ferris' co-defendants, Florence and Loretta Jackson, had danced in burlesque entertainment.

Detective Doyle denied that the defendants had been coerced into making statements and said they told several stories, even a suicide version, before admitting Dickinson, a nephew of Chief Justice Hughes, was killed in a robbery plot.

SPECTATORS HURT IN RUSH AT PEORIA MURDER TRIAL

Crowd Storms Courthouse After Report Diary of Attacks on Girls Is to Be Read.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., July 30.—A report that Gerald Thompson's diary was to be introduced into evidence today caused a crowd to storm the courthouse where the young machinist is on trial for the murder of Mildred Hallmark. The spectators trampled one another in their mad dash into the courtroom.

The diary has been the source of much speculation since the start of Thompson's trial for the murder of the 19-year-old cafeteria hostess. In it, the State has said, are accounts of attacks on 16 girls.

Defense Attorney Ren Thurman announced that Mrs. Florence Whiteside, the defendant's mother, would be his chief witness, but would not be called today.

Sam Sprinkle, Morton, Ill., told the Court he had known Thompson four years, as a fellow worker for a year, and had been on hunting and fishing trips with him. He said Thompson "talked all the time of sex" while on these trips.

Killed in Testing Plane.

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., July 30.—Private Otho Flippen, 25 years old, of the Army Air Service was killed, and Lieut. E. R. Stewart, pilot, was injured yesterday by the fall of a civilian biplane they were testing with the view of buying. Observers said the craft crashed after a flat spin from an altitude of 800 feet. The flyers were attached to Hensley Field, at Dallas, Tex.

3 SHIFTS (a single start) can use ⅓ of a mile of gasoline

Today's short trips waste your money unless your gasoline has these Three Kinds of Power...

YOU wouldn't like to drive 3 MILES in low gear... yet you often do just that in an average week's stop-and-go driving!

Figure out the number of times you shift gears in those daily "errand drives"—to the office... the bank... the school... the club!

Then remember that the rapid acceleration of your motor as you "shift" can use 33% more gasoline than steady running.

Also, you move over a TON starting from a dead stop... and you often do this 30 times a day! So your gasoline must have power for HARD PULLING.

But for economy in today's stop-and-go driving, just one kind of power—PULLING—isn't enough! You must also have power for QUICK STARTING... for STEADY RUNNING. And these 3 kinds of power must be in PERFECT BALANCE!

Super-Shell is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline. With its 3 kinds of power, it cuts driving costs 3 ways:—

STARTING—With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline on every "cold" start.

PULLING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline in 10 minutes of hard pulling, or rapid accelerating, or on hills.

RUNNING—With its abundant heat units, it can save up to a cupful in every hour of steady running, many motorists report.

Remember, when you save 16 cupfuls you save a whole gallon of gasoline.

There are over 30,000 Shell stations to serve you from Coast to Coast. Stop at one of these stations, and start saving TODAY!

By the Associated Press.

MALONE, N. Y., July 30.—The Government rested its income tax evasion case against Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer today, after Rocco di Larmi, Schultz henchman, was sentenced to six months in jail for refusing to testify.

Di Larmi was taken before Federal Judge Bryant just before the Government closed its case.

Burke asked him the question which last week Di Larmi refused to answer: "Do you know Joseph Burke asked him the question which last week Di Larmi refused to answer: "Do you know Joseph Harmon?" Di Larmi again refused to answer.

"You may step down," Judge Bryant said. "I have tried to protect your constitutional rights in every way. You have been given an opportunity to purge yourself of contempt of court by answering certain questions which in no way incriminated you. You refuse to do so. Therefore, the court directs that you be confined in the Franklin County jail for a period of six months."

Di Larmi was one of four Schultz aids subpenaed by the Government as "hostile" witnesses.

"Joseph Harmon" was one of the several aliases which Schultz used in maintaining bank accounts as head of a Bronx beer syndicate.

RED CROSS RECOVERING BODIES FROM YANGTZE

1500 Crude Coffins Stacked by River at Hankow—Flood Waters Receding.

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, China, July 30.—While crude wooden coffins are being stacked in great piles on the banks of the Yangtze River near here, Red Cross workers are pursuing their task of recovering the bodies of flood victims swept down from the inundated up-river districts. Carpenters are working feverishly to provide the coffins needed.

Each body must be cared for in accordance with the Chinese belief that the spirits of the dead are doomed to eternal restlessness unless their bodies are interred.

Already 1500 unpainted coffins are stacked along the banks and hundreds of others are needed.

The bodies recovered are believed to represent only a fraction of the total loss of life in the floods. It is known that tens of thousands of victims were trapped inside the walls of cities and behind dikes or were swept seaward.

Crest Apparently Past.

Although the crest of the floods was believed to have passed and the waters were receding today, details of the devastation are only beginning to filter in.

The Rev. Adolph Koehler of Nicolett, Minn., returning from a 70-mile journey up the overflowing Han River, said he saw only one town that had escaped inundation.

"High spots on the dikes and other patches of dry land were literally black with humanity," he said. "When we stopped, they crowded around by the hundreds pleading for medicines and food.

"Many of them are subsisting entirely on the occasional watermelons which are floating down the river. Hundreds are ravaged by dysentry, typhoid and other epidemic diseases."

At Chung Hsiang, north of here, where an avalanche of water poured into the city, missionaries saved many lives by rescuing victims from treetops and the roofs of submerged houses.

Fishing for Belongings.

In some of the flooded districts, the people have retured to their ruined homes and now are fishing from boats for sacks of rice, beans and other possessions.

Survivors from Miehyang said that 1000 of their townspeople were swept away while laboring to repair a weakened dike. The workers on the dike were marooned when both ends of the abutment were swept away. Then they too were carried into the flood before the eyes of their neighbors and relatives.

SENATE VOTES TO KEEP OPEN OLD ST. LOUIS POSTOFFICE

Officials Had Intended to Close It After Completion of New Structure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Senate yesterday approved a bill by Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, intended to prevent closing of the downtown postoffice at Eighth and Olive streets in St. Louis. Postoffice officials, unwilling to assume entire responsibility for the building, had intended closing it when the new St. Louis postoffice is completed.

The Clark bill provides that the building, as well as similar buildings throughout the United States, be turned over to the procurement division of the Treasury Department, which would be empowered to assign space to Federal agencies, the rent to be divided among the various agencies occupying space. Postoffice officials have expressed willingness to continue the downtown postoffice provided an arrangement could be made for the sharing of the cost.

Various Federal agencies now rent space in St. Louis, and Senator Clark said that placing them in the downtown postoffice building would result in considerable saving to the Government.

The bill now goes to the House.

PARACHUTE JUMPER DROWNED

Falls in Lake Erie When Performing for 10,000 Picnickers.

By the Associated Press.

MONROE, Mich., July 30.—Paul McLeod, 21 years old, fell in Lake Erie and drowned in a parachute drop for 10,000 picnickers yesterday.

The jump, from an airplane piloted by Richard Stophet of Toledo, was part of an aerial show for Toledo employes of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Co. McLeod had expected to alight close to shore and motorboats were held in readiness to pick him up. The wind, however, carried him three-quarters of a mile off shore and when the boats reached the parachute, McLeod could not be found.

FLYERS LEAVE JULIANEHAAB

Men Retracing Leif Ericson's Route Take Off for East Greenland.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, July 30.—Thor Solberg, Danish-American, and Paul Oscanyan, Armenian-American, took off in their plane, Leif Ericson, from Julianehaab, Greenland, at 11:15 a. m. today for East Greenland.

They are attempting to retrace the route of the old Norse discoverer across the ocean in easy stages. They left New York last week.

HOUSE VOTES TO PAY OWNERS OF LAND FOR FLOWAGE RIGHTS

Compensation for Inundation Due to Moving Back Mississippi Levees.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The House today passed and sent to the Senate the Wilson setback levee bill which provides Government compensation to landowners for flowage rights over land subject to inundation by moving back levees to widen the Mississippi River.

The vote was announced as 216 to 119.

The bill by Chairman Wilson (Dem.), Louisiana, of the House Flood Control Committee is an amendment to the flood control act of 1928 and affects approximately 74,000 acres in Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Cost of the flowage rights is estimated at $4,000,000, which would come out of the regular flood control appropriation and not require additional appropriation. Amount of compensation to landowners and agencies would be based on what the chief of army engineers would recommend as reasonable.

He bequeathed his estate, the value of which was not estimated, to his widow, Mrs. Mary Metcalfe, 5433 Vernon avenue, creating a trust for her benefit. She and the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. were appointed executors.

STOLEN TRUCK LOADED WITH PRODUCE RECOVERED

Driver Arrested and Police Say He Has Confessed Theft and Named Companion.

A truck loaded with 112 chickens and a quantity of butter and eggs was identified yesterday by Louis Junod, poultry dealer at Greenville, Ill., as having been stolen from his place of business early last Sunday morning. Police arrested the driver of the truck early yesterday at Ninth street and Allen avenue. They found a loaded revolver on the seat of the truck.

The driver, who is being held for Federal authorities, told police he went to Greenville with an ex-convict, who is being sought, and stole the truck and contents. He was waiting to meet the ex-convict when arrested, and denied knowing anything about a previous theft of chickens from another Greenville dealer.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 30.—Thousands of peasants who camped in the courtyard of King Christian's Amallenborg Palace to call attention to their demands for relief, prepared to return to their farms today.

Prime Minister Theodore Staunning, after receiving a committee of the peasants, assured them the Cabinet would study their resolution for minimum prices for their produce, reduction of taxes and a new moratorium on their debts.

62,000 IN STATE IDLE WHILE WORK RELIEF IS HELD UP

Matthew S. Murray, WPA Administrator, Says Decision on Resumption of Aid Is Expected Soon.

MANY APPLICATIONS FOR HELP RECEIVED

Status of Farmers Under New Set-up Still Uncertain—May Be Certified for Jobs After Harvest.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30. — Matthew S. Murray, Works Progress Administrator, said that he expects a decision soon from Howard O. Hunter, regional Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, on whether work relief projects, particularly in the large urban centers, would be continued in Missouri until the WPA organization could be established.

Murray has advised Hunter, he said, that this should be done. Meanwhile the 62,000 persons affected in the State remained idle following a week's suspension of activities ordered by Wallace Crossley, State Relief Administrator, because of an expected reduction in the Federal allotment for August. The suspension took effect Friday.

Later Crossley said he did not know whether the program could be resumed during August. He also has explained that new applicants for relief would not be certified to the WPA until they have been on direct relief for 30 days. He explained this ruling was to prevent inflation of relief roles and eliminate any possibility of the "underserving getting aid under the new program."

Many New Applications.

Crossley said his office was receiving hundreds of applications for relief. He said that persons on relief who "without good cause" refused employment would be removed from the rolls. He also added that chances of new relief applicants getting jobs were exceedingly remote because of the 30-day rule.

In explaining his plans for resuming the works relief program for at least two weeks Murray said:

"I hope we will be able to work out some arrangement whereby the work relief projects in the cities can be carried on until the works progress administration can take them over. There the unemployed have nothing else to do while in the rural areas they will not have so much trouble finding something to tide them over."

Crossley, it was understood, has expressed the opinion that if the work relief program should be resumed in the urban centers, it should be resumed throughout the State.

Propects Awaiting Approval.

Murray's organization will begin its big task of creating employment for some hundred thousand Missourians with a Federal allotment of $95,000,000 as soon as the Federal allotment board approves the projects.

The puzzling problem concerning the status of the farmer in relation to the public works administration was partly cleared up when Murray said the farmer would probably be given employment under the program, but likely not until late this fall or winter.

Reports coming from the State relief administration and its county and district organizations have been contradictory. Some were that the farmer would not be certified for WPA jobs, and others were that they would.

"We want to avoid the situation that arose in South Dakota and other states to the Northwest," Murray said.

In those states, farmers and others on relief refused to go out in the harvest fields and do other farm work, preferring to remain in the cities on dole.

Murray added that the farmer would be taken care of in time.

Phone Company Denied Rehearing.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—The State Supreme Court overruled today a motion to rehear the case of the Missouri Standard Telephone Co. which was ordered ousted from Lebanon, Mo., because its expired franchise was not renewed. "We find nothing presented for our consideration that warrants us in modifying or altering the conclusions heretofore announced," Judge Walter D. Coles held in a memorandum opinion. The Court had held that the company's "right to use the streets and alleys of Lebanon for the maintenance of its telephone poles and wires ceased when its franchise expired."

PRISON GUARD QUITS JOB TO HELP FORMER CONVICTS

Kansan to Head Humanitarian Association With Program for First Offenders.

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., July 30. —Lawrence Laws, a prison guard who saw the need of rehabilitating first offenders, has resigned after 11 years as a guard at Kansas State penitentiary, to head the Kansas Humanitarian Association, with plans to help first offenders start anew after release from prison.

Laws said he will purchase a large communal farm in Elk County and another in Shawnee County. Dependents of first offenders may stay in cottages on the farms during the prison term if the organization decides they need help. When the offender is released, Laws proposes he should work on one of the farms for a year. Then efforts will be made to place him in his particular field of employment. If no job can be found, he will be given $100 and sent to hunt work. His family may remain on the farm.

Directors for the association include Clyde N. Row, Larned; L. A. Hartman, Topeka; E. C. Landes, retired chief clerk at the State penitentiary; Keefe O'Keefe, Leavenworth attorney, and Victor Jasperson, Topeka.

ELECTRICIAN HURT WHEN HE FALLS AGAINST SWITCHBOARD

Accident Due to Slight Shock Which Caused Him to Lose Balance.

Miles Myers, 38 years old, an electrician employed by the E. A. Koeneman Electric Co., suffered a shock when he accidentally came in contact with a switchboard in the remote control room adjoining the stage at Municipal Auditorium yesterday. With another man, he was running wires through a duct as part of the process of completing the auditorium electrical equipment, when he leaned against a copper bus bar on the switchboard.

This gave him a slight shock, which caused him to lose his balance and fall against the switchboard. In the second contact he was more severely shocked, falling unconscious. He suffered minor lacerations of the right arm, which was in the duct, and of the face. At a first-aid station adjoining the auditorium at 21 South Fifteenth street he was revived without use of an inhalator and taken to a hospital.

AMERICAN AT RED MEETING PREDICTS WEST COAST STRIKE

Proposes That Comintern Seek Cooperation of Port Workers of World in Labor Struggle.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 30.—Further labor troubles among seamen and port workers on the Pacific Coast of the United States were predicted today by an American delegate, Sam Darcy of San Francisco, speaking before the Communist Interna-tional.

A bitter struggle is likely in September, when an agreement between workers and shipowners expires, he said, declaring it could well start an unprecedented strike.

The outcome will depend, he said, "not only on our work on the Western coast but on the efforts of all sections of the Comintern to obtain the co-operation of seamen and port workers in all countries in a general and decisive fight against the bourgeoisie."

TO BEGIN JERSEY COUNTY WILD TURKEY RANGE SIGN-UP

Sponsors Expect to Have Protected Tract Five Miles Long and Three Wide.

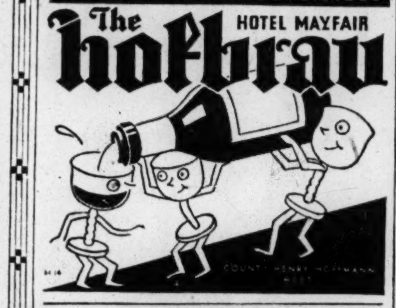

Signing of protected acreage for a wild turkey range will begin this week in Western Jersey County, Illinois. Assurance has been given by the Department of Conservation through its director, C. F. Thompson, that a quota of the birds will be forthcoming for Jersey County if the protected range is obtained.

Early in May a suggested range for wild turkeys was first given consideration, and tracts totaling 2000 acres were suggested for inclusion in the contemplated area.

The locality selected was in the vicinity southwest of Fieldon which afforded a natural habitat for wild turkeys.

Famous Taxidermist in His Shop

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

J. KIRKE KELLER.

J. KIRKE KELLER DIES, NOTED TAXIDERMIST

70 of His 90 Years Devoted to Art He Learned in Days of the Indians.

J. Kirke Keller, a taxidermist for 70 years, died of the infirmities of age yesterday at his home, 5811A Gravois avenue. He was 90 years old.

For many years Mr. Keller had his shop at 30A South Fourth street. He closed it recently because of dwindling business and his advanced age. Ten years or so ago the shop was a busy establishment, where he and his assistants mounted as many as 7000 animals a year.

He learned his art in a day when wild game was plentiful in the United States, when bison roamed the plains. Indians taught him to shoot and a Government taxidermist who visited his father's 1000-acre farm in Michigan when he was a boy of 14 taught him to mount animals during the long winter nights when they were snowbound in the log farmhouse.

Drummer Boy in Civil War.

The Civil War delayed his start as a professional taxidermist, for he went to Ohio and enlisted as a drummer boy in the Twenty-seventh Ohio Volunteers. After the war he settled in Chicago, but his shop was destroyed in the great fire of 1873 and he came to St. Louis.

Sportsmen from England, France, Germany, Belgium and Canada, as well as the United States, knew of Mr. Keller's skill and sent their most prized specimens to him for preservation. Lions, tigers, deer, moose, buffalo, wildcats, bears and virtually every species of domestic fish and fowl passed through his shop. About 10 years ago he had one order for 5000 specimens from a museum in Pennsylvania.

His Method Kept Secret.

He had his own method of working, and guarded his formula jealously. "That is a professional secret," he told a Post-Dispatch reporter five years ago, "but it is well to note that the actual mounting of the subject is the easiest part. It is the preservation that counts."

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Daisy Keller, who resided at the Gravois avenue address, survives. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at the McLaughlin undertaking establishment, 2301 Lafayette avenue.

The body will be at Kurrus Undertaking Co., 2525 State street, East St. Louis, until 10:30 o'clock tonight.

MISS MARY HOXSEY, FOUNDER OF QUEEN'S DAUGHTERS, IS 90

Anniversary Observed With Special Mass and Exercises at Organization's Quarters.

The ninetieth birthday of Miss Mary Hoxsey, founder of the Queen's Daughters, national Catholic organization, was celebrated yesterday with special mass and exercises at the Queen's Daughters' Home, 3730 Lindell boulevard. Following the religious services, breakfast was served and Miss Hoxsey, the Rev. James I. Douglas and others spoke.

Miss Hoxsey received a medal from Pope Pius XI several years ago in recognition of her service in founding the Queen's Daughters 47 years ago. Miss Hoxsey reviewed the history of the organization from its inception at the old St. John's Church, to establishment of the Lindell boulevard quarters.

157 PCT. INCREASE IN FINES PAID BY TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

$31,038 Collected in Three Months Ending July 9—$12,073 in Corresponding Period Last Year.

'FIXING' SAID TO BE ABOUT ELIMINATED

This Is Opinion of City Counselor Hay, Whose Office Handles Police Court Prosecutions.

Fines collected in the Police Courts and the Traffic Violations Bureau in the three-month period ending July 9 were $31,038, compared with $12,073 in the corresponding quarter last year, an increase of 157 per cent, Budget Director Meyers reported today. The amount paid at the bureau by traffic offenders pleading guilty was not separated from the amount paid in court. Figures were not available for fines assessed but not paid.

In Police Court No. 1, covering territory south of Washington avenue, and in the bureau for the same territory, fines in the quarter this year were $23,840, compared with $7412 last year, an increase of 221 per cent. Joseph L. Simpson has been Judge of this court by appointment of Mayor Dickmann since the first of this year. He succeeded James P. Finnegan, who made a successful campaign last year for election as Prosecuting Attorney.

Fines in Police Court No. 2, covering the northern part of the city, and in the bureau for the same area were $7198 in the quarter this year, compared with $4661 last year, an increase of 54 per cent. George G. Vest has been Judge of this court since the Dickmann administration took office in 1933.

City Counselor Hay, whose office directs Police Court prosecutions, expressed the opinion today that "fixing" of cases—meaning dismissal of offenders, chiefly in traffic cases, without penalty—had been largely eliminated. Hay and the Mayor have demanded the cessation of "fixing" as one means of meeting the automobile accident problem.

Detailed Record of Cases.

Reports by the prosecutors in the two courts for the week ending last Saturday gave the latest detailed record of the handling of cases.

For Police Court No. 1 Associate Counselor Andrew J. Reis reported that 426 offenders paid $823 in fines at the Traffic Violations Bureau while 822 cases went to court. In court, 219 defendants were fined $1296, of which $1097 was collected, the rest being stayed for various reasons.

Two defendants were sentenced to a total of 39 days in the workhouse. Disposition of other cases was: Sent to traffic school, 14; paroled, 69; appeals, 6; arrest ordered of defendants failing to appear, 121; discharged or fines stayed during good behavior, 52; continued generally or dismissed for want of prosecution, 24; continued to later dates, 303.

In Police Court No. 2.

For Police Court No. 2, in which Frank Ramacciotti was Provisional Judge for the week, Associate Counselor Fred R. Rodgers reported that 170 offenders paid $315 in fines at the Traffic Violations Bureau, while 438 cases went to the court. Forty-nine defendants in court were fined $306, of which $163 was collected.

Disposition of other cases was: Not called in open court and no penalty imposed, 5; sent to traffic school, 40; paroled, 4; appeals, 3; arrests ordered for failure to appear, 31; continued generally or dismissed for want of prosecution, 19; discharged or fines stayed during good behavior, 204; continued to later dates, 84.

In connection with the city's campaign against automobile speeding, it was noted that all of the 146 speeders in Police Court No. 1 last week were fined, while 69 speeders were fined and 69 were discharged in No. 2. Fines of some of these defendants were stayed.

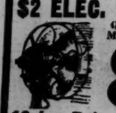

Counselor Hay wrote to Judge Simpson today, commending the record of his court for the last week and the last several months.

Bryan Upset in Invitation Tennis Meet in East

By the Associated Press.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 30.—Robert Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., southpaw and eighth seeded favorite, was upset today in the second round of the Meadow Club's annual invitation tennis tournament.

The nineteenth ranking player of the country followed his doublesmate and closest friend, John McDiarmid, out of the tourney when Martin Buxby of Miami, Fla., took advantage of his wildness to hand him a 6—2, 7—5 trimming.

Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., recent Seabright finalist and sixth seeded star, won from Norcross Tilney, Princeton University's Eastern intercollegiate champion, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

Another seeded favorite came through when Gil Hall, Orange (N. J.) veteran, listed fifth, disposed of Bill Feibleman, former Harvard captain, at 6—2, 8—6.

When Giants and Dodgers Met—Did They Raise a Lot of Dust!

There were no casualties when Second Baseman Buche r of the Dodgers—on his feet, in the picture—sidestepped and avoided spiking his team-mate, Shortstop Jimmy Jordan (on t he ground at left), when the latter fell in fielding Bill Terry's grounder. Jimmy held the ball and rolled across second base to complete this unique forceout. Joe Moore of the Giants was the victim. The play occurred in the first game of the double-header Sunday.

EDDIE DONAHOE HAS 81 FOR 158 IN PARKS GOLF

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30.—Albert "Scotty" Campbell of Seattle made a strong bid for his second successive medal in the National Public Links golf tournament today by scoring a second round par 70 for a 36-hole aggregate of 146. Campbell's score was the first par shot in the tournament.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30.—Dave Mitchell, Indianapolis stoker salesman, easily qualified to defend his national public links golf championship at the Cobbin Course today by coming back with a 73 to add to his shaky 77 of yesterday for a final total of 150 strokes.

The "poor men" of golf, who acted the role of spendthrifts yesterday as scores ranged from 71 upwards to 100, tightened up today as they fought for the medal and a place among the 64 qualifiers for the match play battle.

Charles Ferrara, San Francisco steel worker and twice champion, also recovered to qualify, leaping from the danger line from his first round 80 with a 74 today for a 154 total. Indications were that a pair of 79's would be needed to qualify.

Eddie Donahoe, St. Louisan who had 77 yesterday to be low among the representatives of the Missouri city, slipped four strokes to 81 today and had a total of 158.

University City, Mo., players scored as follows: Frank Maloney, 86-79—165; Walter Ambo, 79-80—159; Herb Lueke, 86-87—173.

Joe Fedor, fourth U. City player, came in with 86, which gave him a two-day total of 171.

Lloyd Nordstrom, the strapping Nordic from Davenport, Ia., who escaped the pitfalls yesterday to lead the scoring parade with a 71, one over par, was among the late starters in today's round.

One hundred and ninety-three players remained in the field and chances were that the last threesome would be lucky to get in by nightfall.

A slight breeze swept the course for the second round, but the sun again beat down on the field, slowing up the players.

Louis Cyr, Portland (Ore.), car inspector, one of the seven who tied for second yesterday with a 74, scored a 75 today for a 149 total.

The United States Golf Association today announced a change in the match play pairings. Instead of seeding the players, the U. S. G. A. decided to pull the names of the qualifiers out of a hat, thus favor-

ENGLISH SWEEP DAVIS CUP MATCHES WITH AMERICAN TEAM

AUSTIN DEFEATS BUDGE, PERRY BEATS ALLISON FOR SHUTOUT

By the Associated Press.

WIMBLEDON, England, July 30.—The United States was whitewashed in the Davis Cup tennis challenge round for the first time in 24 years today when Fred Perry defeated Wilmer Allison, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5, 6—3, and H. W. (Bunny) Austin conquered Don Budge, 6—2, 6—4, 6—8, 7—5.

Great Britain thus swept all five matches of the series and completed a magnificent second defense of the cup won from France in 1933.

The victory represents England's eighth triumph since the international competition was instituted in 1900 and the third time sons of John Bull have swamped the United States. They did it before in 1905 and 1906. In addition to doing it in 1911, Australia also blanked the United States in 1909. All in all, it was the eleventh time the cup has been won in a sweep of five matches.

It was America's most humiliating defeat since Australia blanked Uncle Sam's court representatives in 1911 and it marked the end of the sixth challenge round bid to recapture the coveted trophy since it was lost by the United States to France in 1927.

Defeat in Doubles an Upset.

Perry and Austin, who accounted for four points between them, shared the honors of the sweeping victory with the veteran George Patrick Hughes and the young and powerful Raymond Tuckey, who sprang a major surprise yesterday when they toppled the highly favored U. S. combination of Allison and Johnny Van Ryn in a stirring five-set doubles match.

Their victory over the American team, coupled with Perry's triumph over Budge and Austin's win from Allison on Saturday, clinched the series for England. As the result today's matches actually were meaningless exhibitions carried out merely to determine the size of England's winning margin.

Princess Presents Trophy.

Immediately after the Allison-Perry match was over members of the rival Davis cup team watched the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack carried to the middle of the somewhat barren center court for presentation of the trophy by Princess Helena Victoria, sister of King George.

All members of the team, their captains and Gene Mako and Sidney B. Wood Jr., American players who did not get into action, lined up and made their bow to the Princess before she handed the big trophy to Roper Barrett, captain of the winning team.

The crowd then joined in three rousing hip hip hurrahs and officially closed the open season on American Davis cuppers.

"Through," Says Allison.

The veterans, Allison and Van Ryn, took the shellacking to heart. While packing to leave the stadium Allison said he had played his last game of Davis Cup tennis and that he "won't be back." Van Ryn said it was very doubtful if he would be a candidate for the team again.

"When my service, which always has been my most dependable point, goes back on me, it's time to quit," said Allison dejectedly. He was referring to the 12 double faults he served against Perry today.

Perry called on the Americans in their dressing room. He was welcomed by non-playing Captain Joe Wear, who said:

"Congratulations, Fred. The best team won."

Wear reaffirmed his belief that America had played the best men available and said: "I would not make a change if I had to do it over again."

Temes Defeats Bernard.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Joe Temes, 123 pounds, of Tampa, Fla., punched out a 10-round decision over Roger Bernard, 127, Flint, Mich., in the main event of a Griffith Stadium boxing card last night. Patsy Severo, 131, New York, outpointed Andy Martin, 126, Boston, in the eight-round semi-windup.

KING LEVINSKY AND JOE LOUIS IN FINE SHAPE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Joe Louis, Detroit's sensational Negro, and King Levinsky of Chicago today headed into the stretch drive of preparation for their 10-round bout at Comiskey Park, Aug. 7.

Each took a day off yesterday before going into the final week of training. Both appeared in excellent condition, and Levinsky, at 199 pounds, looked ready to fight on a moment's notice. During his training siege Levinsky has pared off more than 20 pounds.

Louis also is under 200 pounds and has been punching with his usual deadliness. Promoter Joe Foley said the advance sale for the battle has passed the $60,000 mark.

FLORIDA BOXER NAMED FOR BOUT WITH PUHSE

Ralph Puhse, Madison (Ill.) bantamweight, and Eddie O'Brien, Florida and South Athletic A. A. U. 118-pound monarch, have been signed to trade blows in one of the five inter-state matches between Florida and local scrappers on Benny Kessler's amateur boxing card Thursday night, Aug. 7, at the Coliseum. The feature matches will be supported by an equal number of preliminaries.

O'Brien, in 48 bouts, has scored 40 victories, it is reported. Before he put on weight he wore the Florida flyweight crown. Puhse, a consistent winner here all season, owns a pair of victories over Lou Wallach, Ozark A. A. U. bantamweight monarch.

In another interstate match, Jimmy Webb, North Side socker, and Bud Millis, another Florida champion, will be the contestants.

Yacht Enterprise, Successful Defender of Cup, Sold for Junk

By the Associated Press.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 30.—The path to glory traveled by a defender of the America's Cup, most highly prized all yachting trophies, can be an amazingly brief journey to the scrap heap.

This fact was vividly emphasized today when Carl Haffenreffer, general manager of the Herreshoff company, which built Enterprise, successful defender of 1930, confirmed her sale for a paltry $5000 to Louis Lubchansky of New London, Conn., junk dealer.

In 1930, when Enterprise turned back Shamrock V, last of the late Sir Thomas Lipton's green-hulled challengers, she represented an investment estimated at between $400,000 and $500,000.

W. W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of directors of the Chase National Bank of New York, manager of the syndicate of millionaires which built Enterprise, signed the papers for her sale. Other members of the syndicate were Harold S. Vanderbilt, her skipper; Vincent Astor, Floyd Carlisle, George F. Baker Jr., E. W. Clark and George Whitney.

This, roughly, is what Lubchansky is getting for his $5000: Eighty tons of lead, 30 tons of bronze and 30 tons of steel.

In her glory Enterprise was the pampered darling of wealth. She had 10 suits of sail, costing as much as her hull which, kept constantly burnished, gleamed like 18-carat gold. But now she is outmoded, and it is understood all efforts to sell her as a yacht failed.

WRAY'S COLUMN

He Made Her What She Is Today.

STELLA WALSH, still officially world champion woman sprinter at 100 meters, is firing broadsides from Poland at Helen Stephens, Fulton's gift to the athletic world. But from what we learn about Helen's progress, the Polish flyer will have to do more than talk when she meets her rival.

Stella is fast, but recent races proved Helen is faster in both short and long sprints. In fact, her coach, Burt Moore, the man to whom Miss Stephens and the world owes much for bringing to light this remarkable runner, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch declares Helen has not yet reached her top.

BURT MOORE

"Miss Stephens has not struck her peak yet," he writes. "Her time of 11:06 in the 100 meters undoubtedly will be approved as the world record; but, in my opinion she will knock two or three tenths off of this time, some day.

"Regarding her rival, Stella Walsh, whose suspension is being considered by the A. A. U., I hope they allow her to run. If she wants to stay out of the Olympics next year to keep from getting beat, that is her lookout."

* * *

Give the Boy a Hand.

STRANGE to say, very little has been said of Moore, the young man who holds the post of director of physical education at Fulton High School. Moore, himself a former athlete and a pupil of Brutus Hamilton, former Missouri University star, when Hamilton coached at Westminster College, must be given credit for uncovering that long-striding Helen.

He saw possibilities in her before she had had any coaching, and undertook to start her on the right road by developing her running style.

Had it not been for Moore, Helen probably would have remained unknown to fame, as he not only brought out her latent ability, but saw to it that she entered in the National Indoor meet here—an occasion on which she surprised the world both by her victory over the champion and by her naive remark after winning: "Who is Stella Walsh?" Moore has, at his own expense, made it possible for Helen to keep in condition.

He also put in a lot of time developing her temperatment for competition and believes he has done a good job of it.

* * *

Coaches Football Also.

LEST you get the idea that Moore's sole coaching responsibility has been Miss Stephens, we may mention that he has coached football and track, first at Pleasant Hill, Mo., and later at Fulton.

In 1929 his football eleven not only was undefeated, but was scored upon only once during the year. His teams have ranged high in Missouri athletics, and some of his athletes made the grade in the National Interscholastics.

* * *

She Was So Excited!

IF temperament is to play a part in the Stephens-Walsh championship race, when it occurs, it probably will be the Polish girl that cracks.

This Helen, while not exactly the poker-face type of that other Helen, Mrs. Moody, seems a very well-poised person.

In action Miss Stephens strides more like a boy than a girl. Nevertheless her features are not at all masculine, and leave you entirely unprepared for the deep contralto voice with which she converses.

"What prompted you to ask that question, 'Who is Stella Walsh?' after winning the woman's national championship?" we asked Miss Stephens. "Were you kidding her or didn't you really know her?"

"Of course, I knew of her," was the response. "And I wasn't consciously sarcastic. I guess I was so excited I didn't know what I was saying. I have no distinct recollection of what I said, although they told me about it afterwards."

* * *

Return Match Her Goal.

THE Fulton girl will continue training all summer. Her next appearance probably will be in a meet in Canada. In the meantime a return match with Miss Walsh is the engagement she seeks most.

"I hope to meet Miss Walsh in a race soon," continued Fulton's wonder sprinter. "I am ready to run against her any time but it seems that I just can't catch up with her."

Miss Walsh, in Poland today, may return to this country for fall events. If she does, the rivals will have a chance to settle the argument as to which is entitled to be called the "fastest woman in the world."

* * *

The A. A. U. is considering complaints that Miss Walsh ran out of two events after entering. One of these was an official A. A. U. meet and therefore Miss Walsh is liable to suspension.

Probably the A. A. U. would forego any suspension, provided Miss Walsh consented to return here and meet Miss Stephens, as promised.

In any event, Helen and Stella will come together in Berlin in 1936, when the Cleveland girl, who is still not a naturalized U. S. citizen, probably will represent Poland, while Miss Stephens will run for America.

That will be the world's greatest grudge match. Helen then may learn who Stella really is.

* * *

Women Gaining Ground.

ATHLETIC records show that women are gaining rapidly on men, in the matter of athletic performance.

In the last 20 years during which women have been actively engaged in athletic competition, the girls have improved their marks amazingly, due, of course, to the poor figures achieved in early efforts.

Women, it must be remembered, had no athletic outlook for centuries. About 25 years ago the A. A. U., with great reluctance and in the face of a storm of criticism, decided to recognize women's swimming events. A storm of protest arose. Shocked purists, horrified at the thought of women appearing in public competition clad in mere trunks, tried to discourage this A. A. U. innovation. But the girls stood fast, and won.

Recognizing swimming broke the dyke and let in all other sports by degrees. Today, women take part in almost every sport—in their own feminine sphere. No mixed contests have been arranged as yet.

Inevitably, however, these will come to pass, especially in swimming. This is the sphere in which women are farthest advanced. Handicap events will be devised if necessary.

But whether women will ever develop far enough to compete on equal terms with man in any purely physical effort, is doubtful.

Man has been built up during the centuries when woman was immured—or at least not given proper opportunity for physical development.

Even without differences of structure due to sex, women can't hope to overcome those centuries of specialization by the male of the species—at least not for generations to come.

By Davison Obear.

Favorites advanced under a burning sun yesterday in the fifth annual University City open tennis championship in progress on the Lewis Park courts, 7100 Delmar boulevard.

Atta Charley!

THERE was a young feller named Grimm
Whose chances were thought to be slim;
But when picking your clubs
Keep one eye on the Cubs,
And center the other on him.

On Again, Off Again.

After hitting a home run with the bases full in the second inning the other day, Lefty Grove lost the game in the fifteenth by one run. That just shows how much you can depend on Lady Luck in a pinch!

OLD Lady Luck, well known "first aid,"
One moment on you grins,
And then the next the fickle jade
Will kick you on the shins.

Net Cash.

See where Max Schmeling stopped himself in the first round of the promoters' battle of the century by a demand for $150,000 free of taxes, 35 per cent of the gate, also tax free, and $5000 for training expenses.

"SOAK if you must the rich," said Max,
"But I'll not pay one cent of tax.
So don't forget, already yet,
The figures that I quote are net."

Yoicks! Tallyho! Etc.

See by the papers where London has gone to the "demnition bow wows." Next thing they'll be putting on synthetic fox hunts with the hounds in full cry after an electrically operated reynard.

"Chick" Evans played golf for 20 years before making a hole-in-one. Shows what perseverance will do.

It doesn't necessarily follow that a man who makes a hole-in-one is a crack golfer but it is a good talking point.

Boots and Saddles.

A HUNTING we will go!
A hunting we will go!
In case you'd like to know,
A hunting we will go!
An electric fox we'll use,
And the scent we'll never lose
If he doesn't blow a fuse—
A hunting we will go!
Tan tivy, tan tivy, tan tivy,
A hunting we will go.

Al Bejma had a big day Sunday. His Polish friends gave him a clock-radio, an electric sewing machine, and a food mixer. Entering into the spirit of the occasion, the Browns gave him the gate and a ticket to San Antonio. And to make it a perfect day, they let him umpire the second game of the doubleheader.

Strange as it may seem, just at a time when it would have been most appropriate, Br'er Bejma's friends didn't present him with the customary traveling bag.

Beau Bell will accompany Bejma to San Antonio, which reduces the Browns' roster to 19 men, enough to win the pennant in any man's league, barring accidents. But accidents will happen on the best regulated ball teams.

After knocking his sparring partners hither and yon, Joe Louis boxes several spirited rounds with his shadow. And how that shadow can take it!

POPPIN' OFF by Dizzy Dean

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 30.

I THOUGHT I'd mention today some of the "Mosts" of the season that I have noticed. The most outstanding come-back of the year, I'd say, Was Wesley Ferrell, who not only is pitchin' great ball but has won himself several games by hittin' home runs. The most valuable young infielders I've seen this season is Floyd Young of the Pirates, who gives us many headaches, and Jimmy Bucher of the Dodgers, who I have mentioned before.

The most dangerous left-handed batters against left-handed pitchers that I have noticed are the Waners, Woody Jensen, Floyd Vaughan and Gussie Suhr, all of the Pittsburg club, and I reckon our left-handers will vote the same way.

The most disappointing work of the year, I guess, is that of Lefty Gomez, who could have the Yankees in first place if it wasn't for the Tigers and the tough time Lefty's havin' with the left and right-handed hitters.

Baseball is sure an uncertain game. We never know whether the Pirates is gonna beat us by a big score or just nose us out.

FUCHS TO LOSE HIS CONTROL OF BRAVES; ADAMS WILL TAKE CLUB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Charles F. Adams takes over the direction of the Boston Braves tomorrow and Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the club for several years, fades out of the picture with nothing to show for his baseball venture except a vast deficit.

Two different groups of New England men are bidding for the Braves again, now that the Fuchs equity is about to be taken over by Adams to protect notes due Aug. 1 and which Fuchs admits he cannot meet.

Adams is prepared to turn the club over at a bargain price, for he has never found it profitable, and he has not time to devote to its operation. Ford Frick, president of the National League, is in Boston attending to the league's interests.

Prospective buyers did not fancy buying out both Fuchs and Adams and have been waiting until they have only Adams to deal with. Unless the Judge can dispose of his holdings before Thursday he faces a total loss. Since it seems certain now that Adams will complete his long-threatened "foreclosure," the men originally interested as bidders are reopening negotiations.

FUCHS TO LOSE HIS CONTROL OF BRAVES; ADAMS WILL TAKE CLUB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Charles F. Adams takes over the direction of the Boston Braves tomorrow and Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the club for several years, fades out of the picture with nothing to show for his baseball venture except a vast deficit.

Two different groups of New England men are bidding for the Braves again, now that the Fuchs equity is about to be taken over by Adams to protect notes due Aug. 1 and which Fuchs admits he cannot meet.

Adams is prepared to turn the club over at a bargain price, for he has never found it profitable, and he has not time to devote to its operation. Ford Frick, president of the National League, is in Boston attending to the league's interests.

Prospective buyers did not fancy buying out both Fuchs and Adams and have been waiting until they have only Adams to deal with. Unless the Judge can dispose of his holdings before Thursday he faces a total loss. Since it seems certain now that Adams will complete his long-threatened "foreclosure," the men originally interested as bidders are reopening negotiations.

The Aubuchon-Dennison Post team won the Eastern Missouri title in the American Legion junior baseball competition yesterday afternoon by defeating the Emmett J. Shields Post nine of Hannibal, 20—0, at Sherman Park. It was the second one-sided victory in two days for the Aubuchons, as they defeated Hannibal, 24—1, in the first game of the series Sunday.

Yesterday's game, shortened by agreement, was an easy afternoon for the Aubuchons. While Byrne held Hannibal to one hit, a single by Jim Hickerson, in the fifth inning, Aubuchon had no trouble in hitting the deliveries of three Hannibal pitchers, and scored in every inning. Among the 21 hits for the winners were four home runs, by Larry O'Connell, Richard Egan, Clayton Mudd and Byrne.

Aubuchon's next game in the American Legion junior baseball competition will be with the Western Missouri champion for the State title.

The Aubuchons' record indicates that they have an excellent chance to go far in the eliminations. In the three games played in the State meet, they have scored 74 runs, made 63 hits, and held the opposition to six hits and one run. The Aubuchons won two games from the Hannibal team and one from Ironton.

From this time forward, teams will be eliminated after the loss of one game. This means that in the regional and Western tourneys, where teams play two or three games in as many days, pitching will be an important factor. The Aubuchons are well provided for in this department, for they have three good hurlers.

St. Joseph to Meet Kansas City for Right to Play Aubuchon.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 30.—St. Joseph Central High's team became Northwest Missouri's junior American Legion baseball champion today when Trenton, beaten in the first game of the sectional series Sunday, 19 to 3, forfeited the second game.

St. Joseph and the O'Shaughnessy Post team of Kansas City will meet tomorrow afternoon in a game which will decide the Western Missouri champions and the team which will play the Aubuchon-Dennison Post team of St. Louis in St. Louis Saturday for the State championship.

Frisch Fines De Lancey $50 For Loafing; Criticises Other Members of Club

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, July 30. — Frank Francis Frisch, usually placid and good natured, with a Pollyanna disposition, is on the war path. He fined Bill DeLancey $50 yesterday for not running out an infield grounder and he served notice on the Cardinals today that there would be other and larger subtractions from salary checks for players who failed to show the proper interest in their work.

"I can't understand it," Frank stormed. "I've played on some good ball clubs and I never saw anything like the exhibition in our last game with the Pirates. Singing on the bench and loafing on the base lines. I have two bad legs, but I can't be as bad as some of the humpty-dumpties I've been watching the last few days and I'm going to play against the Reds if my legs fall apart.

"How I wish I were young again. It burns me up to see players a year or a year and a half in the big league thinking that they know it all and without enough ambition to make them hustle. You'd think young men would welcome the chance to be big league ball players. But they don't. They just nonchalant along and laugh and sing and lose ball games."

DeLancey's Offense.

Frisch really had cause for complaint about the Cardinals in the final game of the Pittsburgh series. The team played with the dash, verve and devastating attack of a bloomer girl outfit. DeLancey was fined because he loafed running out a grounder. In the fifth inning Bill's bat broke as he grounded to Young. He stopped a few yards from the plate and cursed as he banged the cracked bat on the ground. It so happened that Young fumbled the ball, but because DeLancey stopped to rant and swear, the second baseman still had plenty of time to recover the ball and throw out DeLancey by six feet.

"That'll cost you $50," Frisch barked as DeLancey returned to the dugout.

"It ought to cost me $50," DeLancey replied.

"And it will be $100 the next time," Frisch announced.

DeLancey was not the only offender. Other players merely went through the motions of playing baseball and misplays and missed opportunities meant the difference between a possible victory and the actual 3-2 defeat at the hands of the Pirates, a reverse that increased the Giants' lead to five games.

SHIRKY TO SUCCEED LEE-CARL OVERSTREET ON BOARD AT M. U.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., July 30.—Sam Shirky, former University of Missouri basketball star, will succeed Prof. Lee-Carl Overstreet as a member of the university's committee on intercollegiate athletics Sept. 1.

The change was announced yesterday by Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush, president of the university, in revealing committee assignments.

Dr. Dudley Conley and Dr. F. F. Stephens, other faculty members of the Athletic Committee, were reappointed.

WALKER LOSES TO ANDERSEN IN COMEBACK BOUT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The comeback of Mickey Walker, former middleweight champion, was halted at its outset last night, when the chunky Irishman from Rumson, N. J., lost a six-round decision to John Andersen, light-heavyweight champion of Sweden. Walker weighed 168½ pounds, Andersen 171¼.

Walker started off in the first round by staggering the Swedish fighter with a right cross, but Andersen came back to drive the Rumson Bulldog to the ropes with a series of rights and lefts.

In the second round, Andersen opened an old cut over Walker's right eye and it bled for the remainder of the battle. In the fifth round, the pair stood toe-to-toe and swapped blows, but the aging Walker got the worst of the exchange. In the sixth, Andersen hit Walker at will, and when the final gong sounded, Mickey was covered with blood, two more cuts having been opened under his right eye.

After the fight, Walker was asked if he intended to continue in the ring.

"Not if it's going to be like this," the old warrior answered.

$3,450,000 FROM WORKS FUND FOR DISEASE SURVEY

Public Health Service to Employ 3500 Persons for Year in Study of Chronic Ailments.

$132,000 TO BE SPENT IN MISSOURI

Hopkins Announces Adult Education Will Be Continued Under Work Relief Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—President Roosevelt allotted $3,450,000 of work relief funds today to the Public Health Service for a survey of chronic diseases.

Surgeon-General Hugh S. Cumming estimated that the study would give a year's employment to 3500 people now on relief rolls. The project will include:

A house-to-house canvass in selected urban and rural communities to ascertain the prevalence of long-standing illnesses among rich, poor and middle class families.

Physical examinations in a few instances to check the accuracy of the canvass reports.

A survey of medical facilities, particularly for chronic diseases.

The proposed expenditures for the health survey by states includes: Illinois, $425,000, and Missouri, $132,000.

Adult Education.

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, announced that adult education classes would be continued under the work relief program.

Twelve hundred teachers are to attend summer schools in preparation for classes to be resumed in the fall, and Hopkins estimated that 2,000,000 adults — not necessarily from relief rolls—would take advantage of the academic and vocational training.

"Because of our experience during the past year and a half, the education program should be better fitted than ever to provide the types of service urgently needed to help people improve themselves so as to be able to regain their place in society as self-sustaining citizens," said a statement by the works program's press agents.

It added that at a cost of $21,014,220 during the last two school years, work had been provided for 44,000 needy teachers who instructed 2,000,000 adults and 60,000 kindergarten-age children of destitute families.

Supplementary Program.

Although relief funds were advanced to a few states for payment of rural teachers, Hopkins said that in general he avoided use of Federal funds for the regular public school system "lest local initiative in supporting schools be broken down, or employed people thrown out of jobs in order to give relief teachers their places."

"Under the works program," he said, "the same policy will be applied, so that the emergency education program will supplement and not supplant school facilities and personnel."

Five types of instruction are offered: General education for citizenship; classes in reading and writing English; vocational education; rehabilitation of the physically handicapped and nursery schools.

Limit on PWA Money.

A $500,000,000 limit on funds available for state and local public works projects is reported to have been adopted by the administration. If enforced, this would mean a $400,000,000 reduction in the $900,000,000 originally contemplated for non-Federal PWA projects.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced that $501,114,249 in local applications had been filed with state PWA directors. Of this total, projects amounting to $58,262,672 had been approved and forwarded to Washington.

President Roosevelt's decision to supply only 45 per cent of total public works expenditures from the works relief appropriation, leaving the other 55 per cent to be borrowed, has offset, partly, the effect of the large cost of materials on the PWA program.

On a 45 per cent basis, each $959 supplies a year-long job. The $500,000,000 which would be donated by the Government was said by officials to mean construction totaling more than twice that amount.

With $250,000,000 to spend on low-cost housing projects, Ickes will have only $750,000,000 for the two programs, a reduction of one billion dollars from the amount originally expected.

RFC Security Sale.

A recent sale of securities to the RFC supplied PWA with more than $250,000,000 for loans on non-Federal projects. Because of the limited supply of funds, however, the PWA interest rate recently was boosted back to 4 per cent to induce cities to borrow from private sources where possible.

The President authorized Hopkins to revise boundaries of areas by which the $19 to $94 a month is determined to "permit the ironing out of inequalities since the regulations were set up."

Hopkins' wage regulations established varying pay levels for five different areas, with the highest rates in the Northwest and the lowest in the South. Officials insisted that the latest action was not prompted by protests of the American Federation of Labor against reducing the prevailing wage rate, but was to adjust a few isolated cases of inequality.

MRS. JAYNE SHADDUCK KIRKLAND.

JACK KIRKLAND, PLAYWRIGHT, FORMER ST. LOUISAN, DIVORCED

Decree Was Granted at Closed Door Hearing on Ground of Cruelty.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., July 30.—Jack Kirkland, playwright and former husband of Nancy Carroll, actress, was divorced yesterday by Mrs. Jayne Shadduck Kirkland. The decree was granted at a closed door hearing on grounds of cruelty.

Miss Carroll is now here to divorce her present husband, Thomas Bolton Mallory, former magazine editor. She said she did not plan to remarry.

Friends of Mrs. Kirkland, noting she won an interlocutory decree of divorce from Kirkland in Los Angeles in February, said they understood she brought the Reno action in order to be wed this year to Henry Topping Jr. of New York.

The Kirklands married in Jersey City, N. J., March 23, 1934.

Kirkland was employed on St. Louis newspapers about 13 years ago. He is author of several plays, one of which, an adaption of Erskine Caldwell's novel, "Tobacco Road," is enjoying a protracted run in New York.

PART THREE

FLETCHER SAYS ISSUE IS NEW DEAL VS. CONSTITUTION

Republican Chairman Declares One Must Give Way, and That Party Is Ready for Challenge.

'COVERT ATTACK ON BASIC LAW'

Declares This Is More Dangerous Than "Crazy Patchwork" of Decrees by Present Administration

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Breaking his silence, Chairman Fletcher of the Republican National Committee last night declared that "either the Constitution must give way to the New Deal or the New Deal must give way to the Constitution." Speaking to a radio audience, he said that the Republican party was ready to meet this challenge and welcomed the aid and support of every patriotic voter in the struggle to preserve the present form of government and free institutions.

The speech revealed the lines on which the coservative Republicans would like to conduct the 1936 presidential campaign. It was based on the assumption that the Supreme Court would hold unconstitutional more legislation enacted since March, 1933, and followed the recent political observations of former President Hoover.

Fletcher said that President Roosevelt's historic press conference relating to the Supreme Court's NRA decision and the political development since then indicated that the Democratic administration had thought it had found a scapegoat in the Constitution.

"Open Attack" Predicted.

"This covert, but soon to be open, attack on our basic law," Fletcher said, "is even more dangerous and menacing than the crazy patchwork of laws and decrees which have gone by the name of the New Deal."

The NRA decision, Fletcher continued; undermined the entire New Deal but the jubilation of persons who hailed it as a guaranty of security was destined to be short-lived.

"Many of the New Deal laws and pending bills," Fletcher said, "which the President has ordered Congress to pass whether they like it or not, still have to undergo the final test of constitutionality. The nearly uniform decisions in the lower courts forecast the ultimate result. Most of this legislation will not square with the fundamental law of our Government.

"The Roosevelt administration realizes this. So what is the result? The constitutional barriers to 'planned economy' are to be removed. Why? Because they stand in the way of a centralized, socialistic state, governed without restraint or limit, by a president and a subservient congress.

"Resilient" Constitution Recalled.

"We need not doubt for one moment that if the safeguards of the Constitution are removed, all subsequent congresses will be subservient to the executive. No congress, however able, independent and self-respecting could legislate for the daily needs and control the lives of our widespread citizenry. It would have to set up commissions and bureaus for that purpose and delegate its power and authority to them. The Supreme Court has said this cannot now be done.

"Should the New Dealers succeed in fomenting sufficient dissatisfaction and opposition to the Constitution to bring about its change," Fletcher declared, "the barriers can be pushed aside and the things which the administration has tried unsuccessfully and indirectly to do, might then be accomplished."

Fletcher recalled that the President a year ago "spoke lightly" of the Constitution as "resilent."

"The President," Fletcher continued, "has solemnly sworn to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, but his political dreams and desires are embodied in the New Deal. He was at the crossroads on the last of May. He could then have reaffirmed his devotion to our fundamental law. But he did not. He showed clearly his preference for his New Deal, which neither he, nor anyone else, had sworn to preserve, protect and defend, and which was never heard of until after his inauguration.

"What proofs is there the President desires to push the New Deal over or through the Constitution? First: When opportunity was presented to him to uphold the Constitution as interpreted by the Federal judiciary he turned away. Second: Ordering Congress to pass a batch of laws which are of doubtful constitutionality and recognized as such even by the President; that legislation which the President said must be enacted before Congress can get away from Washington, including the Wagner bill, the TVA amendments,

FLETCHER SAYS ISSUE IS NEW DEAL VS. CONSTITUTION

Republican Chairman Declares One Must Give Way, and That Party Is Ready for Challenge.

'COVERT ATTACK ON BASIC LAW'

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Breaking his silence, Chairman Fletcher of the Republican National Committee last night declared that "either the Constitution must give way to the New Deal or the New Deal must give way to the Constitution." Speaking to a radio audience, he said that the Republican party was ready to meet this challenge and welcomed the aid and support of every patriotic voter in the struggle to preserve the present form of government and free institutions.

The speech revealed the lines on which the coservative Republicans would like to conduct the 1936 presidential campaign. It was based on the assumption that the Supreme Court would hold unconstitutional more legislation enacted since March, 1933, and followed the recent political observations of former President Hoover.

Fletcher said that President Roosevelt's historic press conference relating to the Supreme Court's NRA decision and the political development since then indicated that the Democratic administration had thought it had found a scapegoat in the Constitution.

"Open Attack" Predicted.

"This covert, but soon to be open, attack on our basic law," Fletcher said, "is even more dangerous and menacing than the crazy patchwork of laws and decrees which have gone by the name of the New Deal."

The NRA decision, Fletcher continued; undermined the entire New Deal but the jubilation of persons who hailed it as a guaranty of security was destined to be short-lived.

"Many of the New Deal laws and pending bills," Fletcher said, "which the President has ordered Congress to pass whether they like it or not, still have to undergo the final test of constitutionality. The nearly uniform decisions in the lower courts forecast the ultimate result. Most of this legislation will not square with the fundamental law of our Government.

"The Roosevelt administration realizes this. So what is the result? The constitutional barriers to 'planned economy' are to be removed. Why? Because they stand in the way of a centralized, socialistic state, governed without restraint or limit, by a president and a subservient congress.

"Resilient" Constitution Recalled.

"We need not doubt for one moment that if the safeguards of the Constitution are removed, all subsequent congresses will be subservient to the executive. No congress, however able, independent and self-respecting could legislate for the daily needs and control the lives of our widespread citizenry. It would have to set up commissions and bureaus for that purpose and delegate its power and authority to them. The Supreme Court has said this cannot now be done.

"Should the New Dealers succeed in fomenting sufficient dissatisfaction and opposition to the Constitution to bring about its change," Fletcher declared, "the barriers can be pushed aside and the things which the administration has tried unsuccessfully and indirectly to do, might then be accomplished."

Fletcher recalled that the President a year ago "spoke lightly" of the Constitution as "resilent."

"The President," Fletcher continued, "has solemnly sworn to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, but his political dreams and desires are embodied in the New Deal. He was at the crossroads on the last of May. He could then have reaffirmed his devotion to our fundamental law. But he did not. He showed clearly his preference for his New Deal, which neither he, nor anyone else, had sworn to preserve, protect and defend, and which was never heard of until after his inauguration.

"What proofs is there the President desires to push the New Deal over or through the Constitution? First: When opportunity was presented to him to uphold the Constitution as interpreted by the Federal judiciary he turned away. Second: Ordering Congress to pass a batch of laws which are of doubtful constitutionality and recognized as such even by the President; that legislation which the President said must be enacted before Congress can get away from Washington, including the Wagner bill, the TVA amendments, the AAA amendment, and the Guffey bill.

"The President's purpose seems clear from the letter he wrote to Representative Hill, chairman of the House sub-committee in charge of the Guffey bill, in which he said: "I hope your committee will not permit doubts as to constitutionality, however reasonable, to block the suggested legislation."

Fletcher declared that those who try to brush aside the Constitution, "if it stands between us and a newer and brighter day" take a light view of conditions.

Only Guarantees Rights.

"It has been said," he observed, "that you cannot eat the Constitution. You can't and you don't eat the Bible, the golden rule or the Ten Commandments, the deed to your property, your life insurance policy or the laborer's contract with his employers, whether made individually or by collective bargaining.

"The Constitution does not grant you and me any rights. It merely guarantees and protects our rights, and these guarantees are valid against the Government or any officer of it or any one else. Should these guaarntees be taken away there will be neither human rights or property rights which the Government need respect."

In conclusion, Fletcher said that the Republican party believed with Abraham Lincoln that "the people of these United States are the rightful masters of both Congress and the courts—not to overthrow the Constitution, but to overthrow the men who pervert the Constitution."

It is doubtful whether this quotation from Lincoln was well-chosen. Quick research indicated that this was spoken by Lincoln in 1859 when he apparently was criticising the Supreme Court for its decision in the Dred Scott case.

HOUSE SENDS THREE MORE MAJOR BILLS TO CONFERENCE

They Are Omnibus Banking, Farm Adjustment Amendments and Deficiency Appropriation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Three more big bills—omnibus banking, the farm adjustment amendments and the second deficiency appropriation—were sent to conference yesterday by the House. They raised to eight the number of major measures in the hands of conferees.

Only four more primary bills, wanted by the White House and regarded as virtually sure of reaching votes this session, remain on the legislative slate.

These are the tax, Guffey coal, gold clause damage suit ban, and bus and truck regulation measures.

Conferees already have agreed on an administration air mail bill, but neither house has accepted their compromise yet. They decided to retain the present maximum rate of 33 1-3 cents a mile for carrying the mail and recommended an inquiry to determine whether an upward adjustment was warranted.

NEW PROMISE BY ITALY TO PAY BRITISH CREDITORS

Delay Causes Some London Concerns, Especially Coal Companies, to Refuse Further Sales.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30.—Protests by British creditors against the delay in payments by Italy brought new assurances from the Italian Government today, financial quarters were informed, that the provisions for an Anglo-Italian exchange agreement would be fulfilled.

Delays in payments for shipments caused some concerns here, especially coal companies, to refuse further sales until old accounts were settled. Some Italian ships were reported to have been refused coal at Welsh ports.

A number of delegations protested to the Board of Trade and these protests were communicated to Italy.

It was understood that the recent Italian gold decree will facilitate payments to Great Britain. British credit accounts with Italy totaled £1,500,000—about $7,500,000.

BANDITS RELEASE GERMAN CORRESPONDENT IN MONGOLIA

Left Naked, Dr. Herbert Mueller Reaches Paochang; British Newspaper Man Still Held.

By the Associated Press.

KALGAN, Inner Mongolia, July 30.—Dr. Herbert Mueller, German newspaper man, who was kidnaped by bandits three weeks ago, reached Paochang, northeast of here, today. He had been left naked by his captors.

His former companion, Gareth Jones, correspondent for the Manchester Guardian and former secretary to David Lloyd George, still is held. He is believed in great danger since the time limit set by the bandits for payment of ransom has expired.

British authorities are trying to communicate with the kidnapers.

NAZIS ORDER CURB IN ATTACK ON 'STATE ENEMIES'

Foreign Reaction Prompts Decision of Hitler and Other Leaders to Put Brake on Drive.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 30.—The Nazi Government paying heed to foreign opinion, slackened its campaign against "state enemies" today, and turned its attention instead to communism—especially in the United States.

A high source said Nazi leaders, in council with Reichsfuehrer Hitler, decided to curb radical activities against Jews, "political Catholicism" and other "subversive elements," because of the reaction abroad.

The Saxon Interior Minister, however, late today decreed dissolution of the Steel Helmet war veterans organization in Saxony, accusing its members of transgressions against the state and people. His action came shortly after Joseph Buerckel, Governor o fthe Saar, ordered Saar confessional youth organizations henceforth to limit strictly their religious activities and abandon uniforms, insignia and banners. All confessional youth groups with sport, political and military aims in the Saar were disbanded.

Attack by Hitler's Paper.

Hitler's own newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, carried dispatches and photographs in connection with the tearing of the German flag from the liner Bremen at New York Friday, and the Seventh Communist Internationale at Moscow. Two photographs of strikers clashing at Sioux Falls, S. D., were displayed on the front page, and another of a lynching of a Negro at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on an inside page.

The caption over the strike picture said: "Workers at peace in Germany—turbulence abroad."

Beneath the photograph was: "Here must union strikers fight strikebreakers and members of their own nation with sticks and stones because in the freest state in the world it is not possible to organize a general labor front such as Hitler's peaceful Germany has."

Other newspapers advised the United States to take care of its Communists as it will, but said: "America has a duty to prevent them from disturbing friendly relations between the United States and Germany."

Comment on U. S. Editorials.

Editorials from the United States press, condemning the Bremen incident and the refusal by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York of a masseur's license to a German on the grounds of discrimination against Americans in Germany, were reproduced by German newspapers.

The Reich press insisted, however, that there was a general feeling that such editorials were not a sufficient excuse to prevent the Propaganda Ministry from apparently holding out for a formal apology from the State Department at Washington.

A high source said a national police campaign against individual acts of terrorism was planned, with any further pressure against Jews, Bolshevism and other "reactionaries" to be in the State's hands.

Signs of Moderation in Drive.

Evidence that the Nazi leaders were putting a brake on the campaign, however, was seen in the removal of "don't buy from Jews" stickers from Jewish shops. Jews yesterday were ordered to be considered for military enlistment if they had only two Jewish grandparents.

An authoritative source said the council at which moderation of the campaign was ordered was held at the Obersalzberg Mountain retreat of Hitler, with Gen. Werner von Blomberg and Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering present. This source said the Nazi leaders considered the possibility of calling a national plebiscite to demonstrate the nation's confidence in its Nazi administration.

FRANCE SEEKING COMPROMISE IN ETHIOPIAN ROW

Would Give Mussolini a Protectorate Over African Empire and Keep Haile Selassie on Throne.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30.—The Exchange Telegraph Agency correspondent at Addis Ababa reports that Emperor Haile Selassie has received a proposal that Ethiopia be placed under an international European mandate of the League of Nations. The proposal, it is said, would grant special economic concessions to Italy.

The Emperor is quoted by the correspondent as saying: "I don't object to the principle of European influence provided it is purely economic and not accompanied by political inspiration and control."

The proposal is said to provide for the preservation of Ethiopian integrity and the safeguarding of the country from foreign aggression.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 30.—Official sources said today that France was trying to save Ethiopia from war by arranging for that empire the mildest form of protectorate acceptable to Premier Mussolini of Italy.

These same authorities said Premier Laval told the French Cabinet that war seemed inevitable unless Mussolini gets what he wants.

Laval received from the Cabinet the power to negotiate a settlement at the League of Nations Council meeting which opens at Geneva tomorrow.

On today's program of French action in the Italian-Ethiopian dispute was a conference between the French Premier and Capt. Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs. The two were to leave together for Geneva to night.

King Would Keep Throne.

Laval gave his ministers little hope that the League would be able to effect conciliation, but he said he thought it possible that Emperor Haile Selassie would agree to Italian control if he retains his throne and is spared too great a political humiliation.

Laval learned the Italian sentiment through Ambassador de Chambrun, the French envoy to Rome, then told the Cabinet that time must be gained through the resumption of the Conciliation Commission's discussion of the Ualual incident of last December. It was understood that Laval hoped he and Eden would be able to persuade Mussolini to take a disguised protectorate over Ethiopia instead of attempting the conquest of the African empire.

It was stated that Laval hoped Haile Selassie could be convinced it was wiser to accept Italian domination peaceably than to fight against overwhelming odds.

Eden Wants Showdown.

Eden took off from Croydon Air Field for Paris today and is expected at Geneva to demand an Italian pledge to explore every possible channel for a peaceful settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian controversy before resorting to war.

Eden intended otherwise to insist on a full dress debate at the League of Nations' Council session tomorrow of the entire dispute—a showdown which the Italian delegation is reported to have been instructed to avoid at all costs.

Only on this basis, it was understood, would the British Government agree to postpone discussion of the main issues at the Council session tomorrow and accede to Italy's desire to limit the Council's action to a routine appointment of a fifth arbitrator to the Conciliation Commission.

The commission, however, if Italy had its way, would be empowered to discuss only minor frontier incidents. A feeling prevailed in British circles that Mussolini was only playing for time and that his willingness to renew direct negotiations with Ethiopia was intended simply to delay League action in the crisis until too late.

Ethiopians Confirm Reports of Revolt in Italian Somaliland.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

ADDIS ABABA, July 30.—Authoritative Ethiopian sources said they received confirmation today of reports of a revolt of some native Somalis in Italian Somaliland.

A party of Italians, meanwhile, departed from Addis Ababa.

Details of the uprising were lacking. Previous reports, however, said the natives in Italy's colony of Italian Somaliland, southeast of this empire, had struck out for Ethiopia in the vicinity of Ualual, scene of a frontier incident.

Ethiopian troops, 10,000 strong and modernly equipped, marched away from the capital today under the command of the former Cabinet Minister, Dedjazmatch Haptemikael. Strict secrecy surrounded the troop movements. The War Office declined to confirm reports that the field army from Southern Ethiopia was headed for the frontier of Eritrea, Italian colony to the northeast.

The field army set out for its undisclosed destination after marching from its quarters at Gamu into the capital yesterday in the first evidence of large-scale military movements in the empire.

The soldiers of Emperor Haile Selassie, clad in khaki uniforms and bearing new rifles, aroused the people to fervent demonstrations.

Commander Haptemikael's wife, a member of Ethiopia's nobility, volunteered to join the army. Other women adopted her course, especially entering recruiting work. One woman said in an address to a throng in the public square:

"The Italians accuse us of being savages, which is a fact, inasmuch as we are the savages of a family of lions.' (Emperor Haile Selassie is known as "the conquering lion of Judah.")

STONINGTON, Conn., July 30.—The borough of Stonington went Republican at the annual election yesterday for the first time in 40 years. About 600 votes were cast. William Edgar defeated John E. Garity, Democrat, for Warden, 348 to 225.

30 POLICEMEN KILLED IN RIOT AGAINST HAT ORDER IN PERSIA

600 Arrested, According to Dispatches From Istanbul; Revolt Led by Priests.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 30. — Dispatches from Istanbul today said 30 policemen and several civilians were killed in a riot at Meshed, East Iran (formerly Mash-Had, Persia), following the denunciation by priests of a Government order that hats must replace the traditional native headgear. Six hundred persons were said to have been arrested.

Meshed is the principal town in the Province of Khorassan, the inhabitants of which are Mohammedans severely opposed to westernization.

The dispatches from Istanbul are similar to a Tass (Soviet) news agency report which reached Moscow July 21. It is possible they refer to the same incident.

VETERANS' BILL PASSED

Senate Approves Time Extension Under Compensation Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Harrison bill to extend for five years, from Jan. 2 last, the time in which applications may be made for benefits of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act was passed yesterday by the Senate and sent to the House.

The measure, which has the approval of the Veterans' Administration, would extend to men discharged from the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard who receive pensions for service-connected disabilities, the provisions of existing law providing for hospitalization and domiciliary care.

ARMY AIR DEPOT BILL SENT TO WHITE HOUSE

Stations Would Be Built for Training and Protection Against Invasion.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Congress completed action yesterday on the Wilcox bill giving blanket authority for the army to construct strategic air depots throughout the United States and its possessions. The Senate passed and sent to the White House the measure previously passed by the House. The bill has the approval of the War Department.

The air depots would be used for peace-time training of an expanded air force and protection against foreign invasion.

In selecting the areas for the new stations, the department is directed to consider the following regions for the purposes named:

Atlantic Northeast—To provide for training in cold weather and in fog.

Atlantic Southeast and Caribbean areas—To permit training in long-range operations, especially those incident to reinforcing the Panama Canal.

Southeastern States—To provide a depot essential to the maintenance of the general headquarters air force.

Pacific Northwest—To establish and maintain air communication with Alaska.

Alaska—For training under conditions of extreme cold.

Rocky Mountain Area—To provide a depot essential to the maintenance of the general headquarters air force, and to afford opportunity for training in operations from fields in high altitudes.

In addition to these new and permanent stations, the bill would authorize "such intermediate stations as will provide for transcontinental movements incident to the concentration of the headquarters force for maneuvers."

As the bill does not appropriate funds, progress will depend on the financial backing of the Public Works Allotment Board.

Senate Passes Tax Penalty Cut.

WASHINGTON, July 30. — The Senate passed yesterday and sent to the House a bill reducing from 12 to 6 per cent the interest on delinquent Federal taxes. The measure was described by the Treasury as intended to relieve small taxpayers forced into delinquency by hard times. It applied to "any delinquent internal revenue tax or customs duties."

ILLINOIS OFFICIALS PERPLEXED AT SALES TAX TOKEN SITUATION

Cummings Offered No Objection But U. S. Treasury Requests Circulation of Discs Be Stopped.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 30.—The much muddled Illinois sales tax token situation appeared even more muddled today as State Finance Department officials considered a request made by the United States Treasury that it cease circulation of the disputed aluminum 1½-mill discs.

This request, coming soon after the Department had been notified by the office of Attorney-General Homer Cummings that the Federal Government would neither interfere nor object to the circulation of the tokens, has caused confusion in the Department of Finance.

K. L. Ames Jr., director of the Finance Department, announced last week that the round aluminum discs which had been put in circulation would be gradually withdrawn as they were replaced by square tokens with round corners so as to avoid any possible confusion with dimes.

The Illinois tokens have been made of aluminum.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Self-Help as Depression Solution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I AM wondering what the present administration intends to accomplish by the New Deal. I am perfectly satisfied with our form of government and the Constitution, which has stood the test for over 150 years. I am not in favor of any one man running the Government.

I voted for Mr. Hoover and am thoroughly convinced I made no mistake. I believe that the people, if let alone, would have adjusted almost everything. They are endowed with common sense and would have quit raising crops that did not pay. I believe in each individual being given a chance to manage his own business and live his own life.

The poor farmer who owns a small farm and followed the plan of providing a living at home and staying out of debt, cannot draw a bonus and share in the work projects, nor borrow money to feed his cow. The big landlord who controls hundreds of acres of rich land, and who has borrowed from all the banks and loan companies, can draw several thousand dollars in bonus money and then let the share-cropper and renter starve or get on the relief rolls.

When Hoover went out of office, I could get 7 or 8 cents for cotton and buy 50 pounds of flour for 85 cents. Now it is selling for $1.85. I could buy overalls for 75 cents; now they cost $1.35 to $1.70. Most of the barns are empty; there is no hay or corn; there are not many hogs and more people are on relief than ever.

When Grover Cleveland was President, we had hard times; cotton sold for 4 or 5 cents; corn for 15 cents; barns were full, clothes were cheap; there was plenty of meat; the people had liberty and soon got on their feet. Necessity is the mother of invention. We found a way out, everybody worked and made his living by the sweat of his brow. We had no Government agents to manage crops or feed us, either. We worked or starved. We could work for a neighbor and get plenty of corn or meat.

I never heard of any government destroying stuff in order to create prosperity. The Bible, I think, condemns the whole thing.

Let's all get back to normal, lay our own plans and go to work, and, at the first chance, vote against all these experiments. W. O. SPRINGER.

Barber, Ark.

Radio Fan's Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

BECAUSE of the new and more powerful radios that are coming out, your efforts will be appreciated by many thousands of fans if you will initiate a movement to have the various North American broadcasters annunciate their call letters in French, Spanish and English.

On several occasions in the past week, I have listened to foreign stations which I could not identify. This happened on both standard and short wave. You might start the ball rolling by having Station KSD announce in the previously suggested languages, thereby encouraging stations in Mexico, for example, to announce in English. JOHN F. KLOHR.

Judges, Laws and Liberty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING the life of the so-called Labor Government in Great Britain, an act was passed providing for a central coal-selling scheme, fixing the price and the amounts to be produced by each district, all under control of committees.

Since then, all coal produced in England, Wales and Scotland is produced and sold in conformity with that act. Wages and hours of work for miners are also fixed by that act.

I am not advocating the passage of the Guffey bill, nor am I opposing it. I simply want to point out that a similar act has been in operation in Great Britain for years; that no Judge can set that act aside, yet freedom of speech and meeting and personal liberty exist in Britain.

Why it should be declared that only as Judges assume the right to declare laws invalid can liberty be maintained, in view of the fact that liberty "still lives" in Britain, where no Judge has the right to veto law, is something to ponder. ARTHUR KEEFE.

Says Utilities Have Hanged Themselves.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN one reviews the conditions brought to light by the investigating committee relative to the utility bill, it is hardly possible to imagine the final vote on the bill being other than for the famous death sentence. The utilities have been given plenty of rope and have finally hanged themselves.

The utilities have made fools not only of the Senators and Representatives, but also of the very ones they pretended to protect—their investors!

Their stand was all bunk and so it has been proved. If they would go to such expense, spending about a million dollars of the investors' and consumers' money to retain their present management of the business, the utility business must be a veritable mint to the holding companies.

Was it necessary to spend about $100,000 to get opinions from several Senators and Representatives (not lawyers, mind you) relative to whether the Government project, the TVA, was legal? It's legal all right; their only worry is that the people will soon learn just how little it costs to produce electricity and awaken to the way the utilities are robbing them through high rates. S. N.

SPEED THE NEUTRALITY PROGRAM.

It is disheartening and well-nigh incredible news that Washington dispatches bring about the course of the measures under consideration for safeguarding American neutrality in the event of war abroad. The State and Navy departments, it is related, are opposed to the measures. They are working behind the scenes, the correspondents say, not only to sabotage the neutrality measures before the Senate, but also those designed to take the profit out of war. Secretary Hull is depicted as following a dilatory if not obstructionist course with reference to the proposals.

If a referendum could be taken among the American people as to the immediate need for such legislation, the response would be overwhelming approval. The precise form of the measures could not be determined, of course, by such a poll, but the mandate to Washington to work out suitable laws would be unmistakable. Yet what we now find is officials who apparently misread the temper of the people, who seem content to do nothing to prevent repetition of World War history.

While specious objections block the working out of a program, war clouds lower over Europe, Asia and Africa, and we are little better prepared to deal with the problems they create for America than in 1915. Americans traveling in the war zone, destruction of American ships, foreign propaganda here, financing of belligerents by financial houses—all these will present problems no less perplexing and dangerous than they did in those days. Unless we take steps to block these possible roads to war, the outcome can only be the same.

Official Washington needs to be informed emphatically that the people want to keep out of the next war, if and when it occurs. If they must sacrifice, the sacrifice can be endured better than the burdens and broken homes of another war. President Roosevelt said at a press conference last week that he desired Congress to enact neutrality legislation at the present session. He realizes, and others should awaken to the fact, that this is no time for trifling with one of our most urgent problems.

SUBSIDIES FOR CHISELERS.

By a coincidence that indicates the gravity of the problem, both the Nation and New Republic this week carry articles on a little-discussed phase of relief. This is the matter of relief payments to persons who are employed, full or part-time, but who are paid so little that they must get part of their maintenance from public funds. "Who gets supplementary relief?" asks the Nation writer, C. Hartley Grattan, and answers by showing that although the worker gets the money, "The person whose income is supplemented is the employer." Thus an employer who does not pay his workers a living wage is in effect subsidized by the Government, which makes up the deficit from taxes paid by the people.

The New Republic article, by Esther M. Douty, consists of six case histories from a Southern city that illustrate this unspeakable practice. One is that of a fashionable and wealthy hostess, who pays her Negro cook "depression wages" so low that the cook must go to the relief office for clothing. A tobacco grower gives his domestic help free rent and firewood, but no rations or pay, so they become relief charges. A cotton mill's part-time workers can't live on their wages, and perforce resort to the FERA.

The humanitarianism that guides relief expenditures thus is used by conscienceless employers to evade an expense that is a legitimate charge on their business. The practice may be comparatively rare, but it is certain to spread if the collapse of NRA is followed by general lowering of employment standards. As we have often shown, business prosperity can be maintained only by a fair wage policy, so that workers may also be consumers of the goods they produce. The opposite tendency, to chisel wages so that workers become public charges, will result in disaster if it becomes general. If employers are wise, they will aid the Government in stopping this unjust practice.

A NEW BOOK.

Columbia University has made a whole in one. There's a golfish tang to that expression, but the feat, let us hasten to say, is intellectual. The announcement reports the completion of an American Encyclopedia in a single vloume. The book is described as "a compendium of human knowledge" which will answer satisfactorily any question occurring to normal curiosity. The specialist, it is conceded, may turn up a disdainful nose at the paucity of data which, for most of us, will be a treasure trove, or, anyhow, a sumptuous spread.

Dimensionally, the book will be three inches thick, or about half the embonpoint of a full-fledged dictionary. Its compactness, it is believed, will invite consultation. Nothing is said about the reputation for erudition that may be acquired by putting in a paltry 15 minutes a day on its fecund pages, but the industrious wight who does it will astound almost any company with his profound knowledge of his country's history. He will know a lot of things, too, about the who's who and what's what of other lands.

A word of kindly warning may be given to persons contemplating possession of this book. The thieves that ply their foul trade, laying their larcenous hands on works of reference, will be inclined to gaze covetously on this easily misappropriated jewel. Perhaps these public enemies can be frustrated by sitting up nights with the book.

A REFRESHING ACTION.

In a world where repudiation of legal obligations, both public and private, has reached a point perhaps unparalleled in history, it is refreshing to dwell upon a nation which insists upon discharging a debt of honor. This nation is the Irish Free State, whose President, Eamonn de Valera, came to the United States some 15 years ago to solicit funds to advance the cause of the "Irish Republic." He collected several million dollars, for which bonds were given, but most contributors were moved by sentiment and had no idea of being repaid.

Now, the money is being returned, plus interest totaling 25 per cent, as the Irish Free State proudly acknowledges the gifts as a debt of honor. The ideal of an "Irish Republic" has not been achieved, but, after 700 years of subjection to England, the Irish now are a self-governing unit within the British Empire, with approximately the same freedom of action as is possessed by Canada, Australia and South Africa.

It must be with the greatest spiritual satisfaction that Dr. R. Emmett Kane, Archbishop Glennon and other St. Louisans find their faith in De Valera and his colleagues fully borne out, as they receive checks returning their contributions. A nation so sensitive to its obligations should have a fine destiny. Erin go bragh!

AN INDEFENSIBLE POLITICAL SWAP.

Attorney-General Cummings only last month defended the Federal parole system and assailed those of the states, citing as a significant reason for their weakness: "One of the troubles has been too much politics in paroles." Obviously, the best way to prevent politics in paroles is to bar political appointments to parole boards. Yet now we see Mr. Cummings asking for and obtaining the resignation of a non-political appointee, Dr. Amy N. Stannard, in order to make possible the payment of a political debt by giving the post to T. Webber Wilson, lately Federal Judge in the Virgin Islands and a central figure in the dispute recently settled by a juggling of appointments.

The criticism that has been occasioned by Dr. Stannard's ouster is wholly justified. As a psychiatrist of no political connections, she has served ably since the board was formed in 1930 by President Hoover. A greater abuse than the injustice to Dr. Stannard, however, is this extension of spoils politics to a field from which, according to Mr. Cummings himself, it should be rigidly excluded. Mr. Wilson may give excellent service here, but his background and his career in the Virgin Islands argue against it.

Mr. Cummings' defense of his action is weak. The Parole Board post is not suitable for a woman, he says, since only 4.3 per cent of the prisoners eligible for parole are women. A capable psychiatrist (which Mr. Wilson is not) is an asset to such a board, and sex should be of no consideration. What Mr. Cummings attempts to defend is an indefensible political trade, an inroad upon civil service and the merit system, of which the immediate results, the example to the states and the precedent it sets can be nothing other than harmful to the public interest.

CABINET INNOVATION.

One party leader has just formed a new Cabinet in the Netherlands after another had failed, and France recently went through the same ordeal. These facts, together with the hot weather, germinate an idea for countries where the Cabinet system prevails. Why not a league to swap Cabinet Ministers, after the fashion of exchange professors in the colleges? Just now, France could use a little Dutch thrift in her financial crisis, and the Netherlands would be helped by a bit of French finesse. When the task of forming a new Cabinet becomes a matter of house-to-house canvassing, a new face at the door may help make the sale. Cabinet-making also resembles the organizing of a picnic with half the invitation list not on speaking terms with the others, and an imported host might get a more representative turnout.

This won't be quite so silly as it may sound when some cabinet-system nation (our eye is on France) is forced to send out for help because it runs out of candidates at home.

ST. LOUIS COUNTY'S LITTLE RFC.

Unfeeling auditors, working on St. Louis County finances, have unearthed the fact that county politicians, for the last 27 years, have had a little RFC of their very own. All they needed to tap the reservoir—consisting of money belonging to the schools—was to get permission of the County Court, and this, evidently, has not been difficult to do. Moreover, once a politician got a loan from the school fund, he could let it run for years without being harassed for payment. Some borrowers have paid interest charges; others have not even bothered to do that.

Some of the details are illuminating. Of loans aggregating $301,675, delinquencies total $120,000. Paul Kammerer, co-owner of a roadhouse, borrowed $16,770 four years ago, and still owes principal of $16,500 and interest of $2974. George T. Heege, former State Representative, has paid no interest on a loan of $3000 made in January, 1932. County Jailer Heinrich got $5500 three years ago and has paid no interest. Three loans, totaling $15,500, made in 1908 to William H. Tegethoff, former State Representative, are still outstanding, though the interest is paid. And so on.

The loans are secured by real estate, on a good deal of which the owners are delinquent in tax payments. If the borrowers had gone to private financing companies, they not only would have been charged higher interest rates, but they would have been forced to pay periodical renewal commissions. Besides, private financing companies have an embarrassing habit of demanding reduction of principal.

We presume the auditors' disclosure is enough of itself to break up the county politicians' little RFC. Certainly, county taxpayers, who have no such delightful way of financing their real estate ventures, will hold the County Court to strict accountability in clearing up the mess.

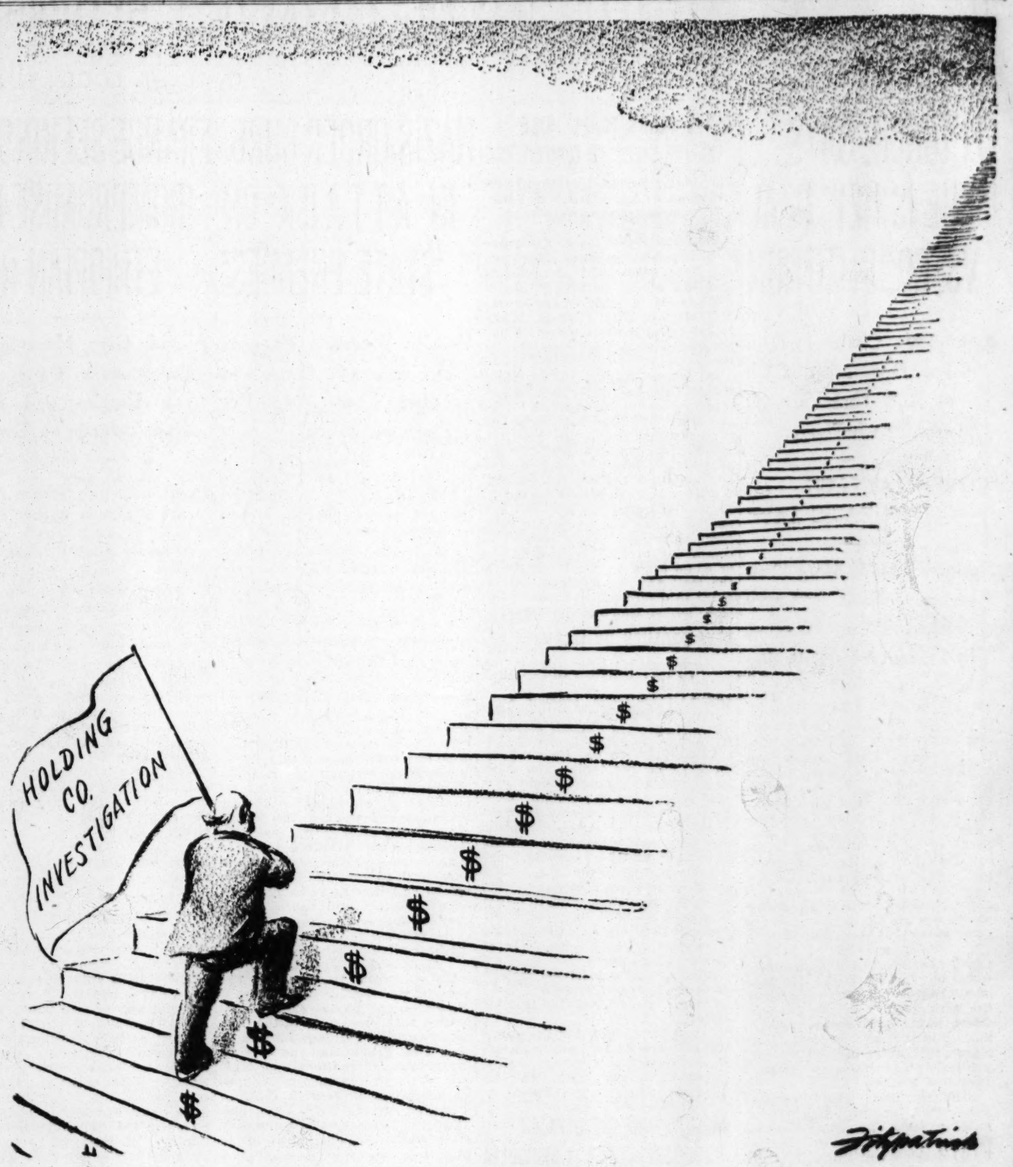

Mussolini was 52 yesterday. Napoleon, after doing his stuff, met his Waterloo at 46.

VICTORY FOR FREE SPEECH.

The Chicago Park Board, in denying the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin the right to rent Soldier Field for a meeting, seemingly was moved by its members' opposition to the radio priest and his doctrines. They have succeeded only in giving him valuable advertising and have failed to prevent the meeting, for a Superior Court order has now been issued granting him use of the field. So, unless the board continues its misguided fight and wins an appeal, Father Coughlin will speak in Chicago amid a fanfare of publicity such as he has had nowhere else.

Father Coughlin's doctrines were not properly the issue here, but his right—any citizen's right—to free speech. The excuse that his speech would probably be on controversial subjects and would "create discord" was ridiculed by Judge James J. Kelly, who made the decision. As he pointed out, the field has been used for speeches by ex-Senator James A. Reed, ex-Gov. Murray, Gen. Johnson, Postmaster-General Farley and others, for celebrations in honor of Alfred E. Smith and William Randolph Hearst, for the Dempsey-Tunney fight. If Chicago was not rent by discord after these events, it can assuredly stand an address by Father Coughlin. Free speech on public property, rather than the Detroit priest, is vindicated by the decision.

Before passing judgment on Mr. Hopson, let's give him a chance to say he did it for the widows and orphans

ON TO THE BLUE.

How China Absorbs Its Conquerors

Wave after wave of invasion and immigration has swept over China, but newcomers have always been swallowed up in the mass, becoming at last Chinese in culture and appearance; writer predicts similar fate for Japanese if they try to hold conquests by force; thinks military will plunge into "ethnological swamp."

Rodney Gilbert in Today.

HAVING abandoned all hope of Occidental intervention on her side, and being only too clearly aware that the use of her several million armed men in the defense of her independence and honor would be a suicidal act, there are only two courses open to China.

The first is to embarrass Japan by depriving her of every reasonable excuse for further action. That is what the Chinese are doing just now with a restraint that is without parallel in their modern foreign relations (proving, incidentally, how easily officialdom can hold in leash "spontaneous popular demonstrations" against the alien when it wants to).

If this fails, the desperate alternative for China is to provoke a Japanese invasion on the biggest possible scale, convert herself into a vast morass and literally swamp as great an army as Japan can be induced to deliver up to the demoralizing job of policing chaos.

The Chinese will have no doubt of the result. Their history teaches them that they have a power of absorption and assimilation which no Asiatic race can resist. They know that if Japan could be teased into moving into China, the process of digestion might be somewhat painful but the result of it would be China's gain—an infusion of virility and aggressiveness, while they lasted—and the end of the Japanese menace for all time.

* * *

Over an enormous area, and under a greater variety of climatic conditions than are to be found in the United States, the Chinese are a remarkably homogeneous people. But this is not because they are, in either the scientific or the popular sense, a "pure" race. It is because the prehistoric aboriginal element is "dominant" in a cross with any of the dozen other elements that have gone to make up China's population.

Even a so-called "half-caste" who is seven parts Northern European and only one part Chinese, in nine cases out of 10 will have the straight black hair, sallow complexion and short round head of "the 400,000,000 brothers." In three cases out of five, he will also have the low-bridged nose, and "Mongoloid fold" of the upper eyelid, which make him indistinguishable in Chinese clothes from any "pure" Chinese.

Two thousand five hundred years ago, China was already an ethnological swamp. Into it a hundred streams of virile barbarians have flowed to freshen it in spots for a few generations, but to no lasting effect on its waters but their steady extension. Between the time of Confucius and the Christian era, the Turkish-speaking Huns from the Altai began to roll in, each tide ruffling the serenity of the pool for a time and helping to push its boundaries farther south, making millions of new Chinese, but reducing all, Huns included, to the one dominant type.

In the south at that time, the aboriginal folk of the unalterable type were already proving their digestive power by soaking up an unknown body of black kinky-haired pygmies, like the Andaman islanders and the Sakai of the Malay peninsula, and by giving the offspring of this blend almond eyes, light skins and straight, black hair—though a curly head still appears occasionally in South China to tell the tale.

China has understood and reveled in her power. She has realized that she enjoyed a racial integrity on which no infusion of alien blood could make an impression. In her assurance, China has often invited whole nations of Hunnish, Turkish and Tungusic peoples into her borders, to use them as the defenders of her frontiers against their savage kindred. She has then proceeded to make Chinese of them in language, manner of living, religious customs and superstitions, and finally in appearance.

The descendants in China of the big conquering armies of the Cathayans of the Middle Ages, of the Mongol and Turkish hordes of Kublai Khan, and of the Manchus, who so lately constituted the ruling caste in China, are all good conforming, slant-eyed Changs and Wangs now. I have seen in Kansu the descendants of the Arab mercenaries who were imported in the T'ang dynasty to fight the Tibetans, the Jews of Kaifeng and the Albazini Russians of Peking's northeast quarter, and in spite of long study of Chinese types, would have pronounced them as "pure" Chinese as any if I had not known their history.

* * *

Such experiences as these, living lessons to a history-conscious people, have convinced the Chinese that they can very shortly effect a cultural and then racial conquest of any Asiatic people that conquers China and moves in, as all conquerors in the past have had to do to make the conquest effective and farm China profitably. They do not feel this confidence, however, about Occidental intervention and exploitation. The contacts of the last few centuries have taught China that while the Occidental can impose very effective control by giving the Chinese people the peace and the local self-government which they cherish above all else, he is culturally a non-conformist and does not move in.

It is to just such absentee control in China that the Japanese aspire. The Japanese military want such a firm grip on a Chinese officialdom that there will be no possible chance of an effective Chinese diversion in the event of another Russo-Japanese war. Japanese big business men want in China an orderly and peaceful market and source of raw materials.

This perhaps answers one of the questions which intelligent long-range American observers of Japan's doings are asking: How far does Japan intend to go in China? The Japanese not only want but now must go far enough to insure that the Chinese are sufficiently cowed to submit to such absentee control on a big scale as the Occidentals have so successfully imposed in their colonies and concessions on a small scale. They have no desire to move in as a conquering, colonizing race, because they know from experience that their emigrants will not settle in any country where the lower standard of living of the natives puts them at a competitive disadvantage.

Since the Japanese have a very intimate knowledge of Chinese history, they certainly do not look forward to permanent maintenance of a big army of occupation; for if the Chinese could force Japan to keep a great, expensive force there, the "farm" would not pay, the army would go to seed (or go Chinese, which is the same thing) and its maintenance there would be an invitation to Soviet Russia, or any other potential enemy, to pounce upon a hopelessly bogged Japan.

I do not believe that the Japanese, having gone as far as they have, can stand still; they must either go forward or back. They must go on into the vast and bottomless swamp that China will become as they advance, dissipating their military power and their financial resources; or they must get out altogether (back to Manchuria at any rate), and leave behind them a thoroughly hostile China in which Japan's commerce will go begging and in which Soviet Russia or any other enemy of Japan will have a zealous and resourceful guerrilla ally.

This is all guesswork, of course, but it is guesswork under the guidance of Chinese precedent and tradition; and the Chinese are truer than almost any other people on earth to their traditions and precedents.

In my mind, the only question that remains to be answered is whether the Japanese will be stupid and obstinate enough to go trudging on into the futile, ruinous and perhaps fatal conquest of an ethnological quagmire. The answer is that if the military retain control of Japanese policy, they will; for the Japanese military are just that stupid and obstinate. They would put a million men in China and keep them there long enough to grow queues, though it reduced Dai Nippon's population to a chaff diet, before they would admit their mistake.

Traditions in Reverse

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

IT is interesting to observe the response of various Senators to the Roosevelt tax message. The Hamiltonian tendency of the message—that is, its assumption that taxation may be, and should be, not only a means of raising revenue, but an important instrumentality of social control—is carefully avoided by such traditional Jeffersonians as Senators Harrison and Robinson. They confine themselves to the budget-balancing features of the message.

Likewise Senator Byrd, hitherto regarded as rather opposed to the administration, on this occasion comes out promptly in favor of one feature of it—namely, the abolition of tax-exempt securities. As this has been advocated in the past by personalities as different as Carter Glass and Andrew Mellon, it can hardly be said to have any partisan significance, and Byrd's support of it is no indication that he favors the use of the taxing power to reduce the concentration of wealth.

The man who instantly accepted the whole philosophy of the message was Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who has announced his intention of introducing bills putting much of it into effect. But as Senator La Follette is neither a Democrat nor a Republican, his action has no significance as regards the attitudes of the two great parties.

Most interesting of all, though, is not what anybody said, but what the stalwarts of the Republican party didn't say. Here is a Democratic President offering the essence of Hamiltonian doctrine. But if it is welcomed joyfully by any of the theoretical Hamiltonians in the Senate, they have been remarkably successful in concealing their delight.

Well, it is not the first time the country has been given reason to believe that if the founders of the two big parties should come back to life, they would greatly embarrass some of their ostensible followers.

WASHINGTON, July 30.

THE works-relief program has entered a new phase.

For months it remained a mere unused Act of Congress, during which inner circle master minds heaved and rocked over who was to be the boss and what rules and regulations they should promulgate.

Now the program is getting under way. And the system of red tape conceived during the months of master minding is having its effect.

The result—some of the most fantastic inconsistencies so far hatched by the New Deal.

The following two examples illustrate:

NUMBER ONE.

All construction projects over $25,000 are placed under the jurisdiction of the PWA, ruled by Harold Ickes, while projects under that figure are turned over to a new agency—the Works Progress Division, run by Harry Hopkins.

Ickes decided that PWA jobs as in the past would pay prevailing wages. Hopkins laid down the rule of "security" wages. These range from $19 to $94 a month.

In New York City the PWA and WPD are now preparing to launch construction projects. On Ickes' PWA jobs workers will receive prevailing union wages. But on Hopkins' WPD jobs they will be paid a maximum of $85 a month.

In other words, a bricklayer working for the Government on one side of the street will receive a $12-a-day wage, while another doing the same kind of work on the other side will receive a Government pay check of $4.85 a day.

NUMBER TWO.

One of the basic rules of Hopkins' Works Progress Division is that all contractors under its jurisdiction employ at least 90 per cent from the relief rolls.

For more than 30 years workers on Great Lakes dredges have done business with their employers on a union contract basis.

Several weeks ago their contract expired. They proposed a renewal. The barge owners shook their heads.

"We would like to, boys," they said, "but we can't."

"Why not?"

"For this reason: We are going to work under Government contracts, and under the terms of these contracts we have to employ 90 per cent of the labor from relief rolls. It looks like you boys will have to go on the bum."

Sea Rights in Wartime
He Says, Urging Declar

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, July 30.

SOMETHING about the sea has sucked us into war more than once and near it often. The revolution was brought to a head by a British racket on the exports and imports of the colonies. The war of 1812 was due to interference with our merchant ships.

In the Civil War, our removal of two Confederate agents from a British ship brought us too close for comfort to a war with England. Our Spanish war broke out because the Maine was torpedoed in Havana harbor.

German submarines, sinking our ships, brought us into the World War on the allied side. But England had given us an equal cause for war by high-handed invasion of our neutral rights on all the Seven Seas. Allied propaganda was better and our Ambassador at London had "gone British on us." So we let ourselves be bunked into a war where we had no business to be.

Many commentators believe the world to be on the verge of a new war. I don't! But war is always a possibility and from the moment it begins, we shall be in terrible danger. Neutral rights were defined when trade was but an incident to war. Now trade is an instrument of war. Economic strangulation is now the principal weapon of embattled nations.

In 1918, the torpedoing of a tramp steamer rolling up from Chile with a cargo of nitrates was a greater blow than the loss of an infantry division on the Western front. England was almost forced to her knees by submarine sinkings and Germany finally failed through starvation of "the home front" long before the Hindenburg line crumbled.

Modern war is a death struggle of economic systems. As the greatest producer of both raw and finished products, the holder of much of the earth's gold, the guardian of the short route between the oceans, and Honor Guest.

THE star attraction at Prof. Rex Tugwell's recent social welfare conference at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In honor of the First Lady Prof. Tugwell threw a dance. The event was widely ballyhooed and a large crowd attended.

But Mrs. Roosevelt failed to appear.

Her absence aroused much curiosity and next morning one of her local friends commented on the fact to her.

"We all missed you very much," she said.

"I would have liked very much to have come," Mrs. Roosevelt replied.

"Well, why didn't you?"

"Because I was not invited."

No Transients.

AT Clarendon, Va., across the Potomac from Washington, there has just been completed the Colonial Arms Apartments.

Financed through the Federal Housing Administration, the purpose of the project was to provide low-cost housing for Government workers.

With Capital rentals sky-high, the demand for these 250 apartments has far exceeded their number, and the other day a group of applicants descended on the superintendent in person.

It was hot. The small office was filled to overflowing. The superintendent glared, then climbed up on a chair and made this remarkable announcement:

"Listen. Get this. If any of you work for any of these alphabet agencies, the AAA, FERA, PW.., NRA, etc., there is no use of your trying to get an apartment here. Your jobs are just temporary, and we won't accept applications from you."

Merry-Go-Round.

THE Postoffice Department soon will announce issuance of two special commemorative stamps: The centennial of the first State government in Michigan and the completion of Boulder Dam. . . . To cool off after the utilities row, Maine's Congressman Ralph O. Brewster took a long week-end Down East. . . . It was not only to cool off but to celebrate his fifty-sixth birthday that Congressman Charles W. Tobey last week took himself back to the New Hampshire hills where he was born. . . . The Government's four-acre tract of red and pink roses near the tidal basin is about to get a curious color innovation. It is the Black Rose of Sangerhausen, creation of German rosarians. It will bloom next spring.

"SHE didn't say yes, she didn't say no—"

Jerome Kern's artful melodies for "The Cat and the Fiddle," again are ringing in many minds, as a result of the revival of his musical romance in Forest Park last night.

For here in the late innings of the Municipal Opera season, when the production end gets down to heavy slugging, time is taken out for an exhibition of tuneful monkey shines.

As such, "The Cat and the Fiddle" is most welcome. Sophisticated yet wholesome, worldly-wise yet charming and delightful, it is the only thing of its kind to be offered this season. In its 15-scene sequence, which likely will set a record for the summer, it has a refreshing tempo which has belonged to nothing else.

What it offers for the great mass of customers is difficult to say. Two years ago, when it was new, it attracted 69,500 persons to the park; last night it started off well with 9000. That would seem to be all the proof required that it furnishes something.

Many lines are not heard, even after the late comers decide they have the right seats; "hit" songs are sung so casually that applause never tears the house down; the revolving stage contributes its traffic noises back of scenes, but the audience likes "The Cat and the Fiddle."

* * *

THAT popularity may be laid to the community humming inspired or to the extremely clever lines which do manage to get through the microphones. More probable it is that the audience of today, having become accustomed to the flexibility of motion picture art, likes a romantic story told directly against many changes of background.

This production of "The Cat and the Fiddle" is, in every way, quite trim and satisfactory. Robert Halliday, as the young Rumanian composer, is permitted more emotions than in any of his other roles; Nancy McCord is, if anything, a little excessively dramatic in a role with which she is utterly familiar. Both handle their song numbers most amiably.

Odette Myrtil, the original in the part she plays, makes a triple-threat debut in Forest Park as singer, comedienne and violinist. Her voice and violin have the same kind of delicacy and range. Always remembered as one of the most devilishly funny people in the indoor theater, she finds herself at a comparative disadvantage with the big hillside, where her sly winks and crafty grandstand play go hardly back of the box seats.

William Hain, as the recurrent troubadour, Pompineau; Audrey Christie's hard-boiled Angie and Bobby Jarvis' Alexander, are among the delights as the show frolics along. The dancing choruses get in a little tap work on a pyramid of portmanteaus, and in a modern fantasy timed to much drum-beating and handkerchief-waving.

A fluttery dance specialty by the popular Rosemary Deering, a few blackout lines here and there, a pompous prologue by Frank Hazzard and Sheila Dille, complete the character of the offering.

* * *

A GREAT deal of credit must go to Edith Gordon, who as accompanist at rehearsals does much work that the audience never knows about. In "The Cat and the Fiddle" she plays the piano music from the orchestra pit for the two young composers and handles her dual role skilfully.

The very movement of the show requires that the scenic effects be scanty and easily moved, and the annual budget, which took such splurges as those of last week without a whimper, probably finds occasion to enjoy parsimony this week. Regardless of such a situation, the final courtyard set is one of the loveliest things Raymond Sovey has done, fitting the stage better than anything this season.

Such is "The Cat and the Fiddle." On being asked if it were a great show this year, or even one of the best of the season, a reviewer wouldn't say yes and wouldn't say no. To be asked if it offers a very, very pleasant evening, he certainly would say yes.

JOHN G. ROBINSON 3RD, FORMER CIRCUS MAN, DIES

Disposed of Show in 1916, But Kept His Four Elephants.

CINCINNATI, July 30.—John G. Robinson, III, 62 years old, who until 1916 carried on the circus established by his family 100 years ago, died at his home here today.

After disposing of his circus interests in 1916, he was secretary of the United States Playing Card Co. here. His death was due tod a throat ailment.

Robinson learned circus management from his grandfather and his father and carried on until 1916. Then, though he disposed of animals and wagons, he kept the four famous Robinson military elephants whose drills had delighted thousands.

"Tillie," most famous of the four, died soon afterward at the age of 110 years, and hundreds flocked to the public funeral given here. Her three companions were kept at times at the Cincinnati Zoo and at the Robinson farm in the suburbs, where children flocked to see the elephants plowing ground. A new circus is to be built by a son around the three—Tony, Pit and Clara—now performing in Cleveland.

General Johnson's Article

Sea Rights in Wartime Not Worth Fighting for, He Says, Urging Declaration of Policy.

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, July 30.

SOMETHING about the sea has sucked us into war more than once and near it often. The revolution was brought to a head by a British racket on the exports and imports of the colonies. The war of 1812 was due to interference with our merchant ships.

In the Civil War, our removal of two Confederate agents from a British ship brought us too close for comfort to a war with England. Our Spanish war broke out because the Maine was torpedoed in Havana harbor.

German submarines, sinking our ships, brought us into the World War on the allied side. But England had given us an equal cause for war by high-handed invasion of our neutral rights on all the Seven Seas. Allied propaganda was better and our Ambassador at London had "gone British on us." So we let ourselves be bunked into a war where we had no business to be.

Many commentators believe the world to be on the verge of a new war. I don't! But war is always a possibility and from the moment it begins, we shall be in terrible danger. Neutral rights were defined when trade was but an incident to war. Now trade is an instrument of war. Economic strangulation is now the principal weapon of embattled nations.

In 1918, the torpedoing of a tramp steamer rolling up from Chile with a cargo of nitrates was a greater blow than the loss of an infantry division on the Western front. England was almost forced to her knees by submarine sinkings and Germany finally failed through starvation of "the home front" long before the Hindenburg line crumbled.

Modern war is a death struggle of economic systems. As the greatest producer of both raw and finished products, the holder of much of the earth's gold, the guardian of the short route between the oceans, and the only nation with substantial credit, we shall be the fat boy with the bag of candy among all the bad, belligerent urchins of the world.

Armed isolation or bellicose assertion of all ancient rights on the ocean! There is no middle ground and the latter course means war for us as sure as war comes to the world.

The principal rights of a neutral used to be that the vessels might sail the seas subject to visit and search by ships of either belligerent and seizure of "contraband of war," which means supplies for the enemy—formerly only war-like material.

But there can be no "paper blockade"—the proclamation of a zone in which ships will be sunk without warning. Unarmed merchant men, even of a belligerent, may be captured, but not sunk and our citizens sailing on them are entitled to that security.

In the World War, all these rights were respected by nobody. They will be violated in any new war. Are they worth fighting for?

War is now world conflagration. Patriotism is the most inflammable of materials. You can't put it inside the fire lines without getting burnt.

Our foreign business is less than six per cent of our total business. In modern war old neutral rights in the zone of operations are impossible. Some fraction of six per cent of our business is not worth risking all our business in an attempt to perform a miracle. We had better say so now while we can still say it without being called a coward.

STOCK RISE IS CHECKED; BROAD TRADE ON SELLING

Traders With Profits Cash In at Outset—Temporary Upturn With Closing Heavy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The stock market wavered under a profit-taking blow to the chin today, but failed to go down for the full count.

While heavy selling unsettled the list in the early proceedings, a later buying flurry in the aircrafts, oils, rails and specialties brought some support to the sagging leaders. In the final hour the lower drift was resumed and the close was somewhat heavy. Transfers approximated 1,650,000 shares.

The list was at its weakest in the first hour, when large blocks of the recent favorites were unloaded by traders who apparently thought the advance had been a bit too rapid. The ticker tape dropped behind floor transactions at one time.

The activity soon dwindled, however, and buying orders began to appear for selected issues. U. S. Steel, off a point in the morning, came back to establish a new high for the year by a minor fraction. A number of other new 1935 tops were also noted.

Stocks got no help from grains, wheat and corn yielding a cent or so a bushel. Cotton was hesitant. Low-priced carrier bonds improved as carrier equities displayed resistance. Foreign exchanges were quiet.

Shares finishing steady to fractionally higher included Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Standards Oils of New Jersey and California, Atlantic Refining, Seaboard Oil. Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, New York Central, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum and Inland Steel.

American Can lost 2 points and among other casualties of fractions to a point or so were Westinghouse, Case, Continental Can, Columbian Carbon, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Smelting, Goodyear, U. S. Smelting, American Telephone, Western Union and Consolidated Gas. U. S. Steel was under water a major fraction at the close.

Guilders are Lower.

In late dealings sterling was unchanged at $4.96¼ and the French franc was up .00¼ of a cent at 6.61½ cents. Guilders were off .10 of a cent at 67¾ cents, but Swiss francs firmed .02 of a cent. Canadian dollars were unchanged.

Wheat ended ½ to 1⅜ cents a bushel lower and corn was down ¼ to 1. Oats were ⅛ lower to 3 cents higher, the July option closing with the maximum gain permitted for one day. Cotton was off 5 to 25 cents a bale.

Overnight Developments.

Encouragement was derived from the latest batch of quarterly earnings reports of mercantile and industrial companies, the majority of which showed improvement.

On the other hand, Wall street compilations of income for Class 1 railroads tended to inspire caution. Statements issued thus far for June showed that these roads failed to cover fixed charges in that month by approximately $3,400,000 and that their aggregate net loss for the first six months was about $60,000,000, compared with a deficit of $24,853,-000 in the like period of last year.

Wall street studied closely the June sales of chain store systems reporting to the Federal Reserve agent at New York. The total, which was about 2½ per cent under a year ago, contrasted with a slight gain in the business of wholesale concerns.

In the foreign exchange market the pound sterling opened down ⅜ of a cent at $4.95⅞. The guilder was off .08 of a cent at 67.77 cents. The French franc was .00¼ of a cent lower at 6.61 cents.

WHEAT MARKET RULES LOWER WITH LIVERPOOL

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 30.—Wheat and corn were quoted fractionally lower at the close today, the forenoon market being influenced by declines at Liverpool and Winnipeg.

Winnipeg opened ⅝@¾c lower. The close was ⅜@½c net lower. Liverpool wheat came 1⅞@2½d lower in one cable, following 1⅛@⅜c lower opening. The close was 1¾ to 2⅛c net lower.

PROFIT-TAKING CUTS DOWN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Profit taking and hedging pressure forced wheat prices lower today.

Buying interest was relatively small, with bulls discouraged by weakness in wheat values at Liverpool and Winnipeg. Crop pessimism in spring wheat territory continued.

Corn and oats followed wheat action to large extent, although dearth of available supplies caused heavy short covering in July oats, which expires tomorrow. Corn firing in Kansa and of need of moisture of moisture in Nebraska were reported. Provisions eased with grain.

Wheat closed ½ to 1⅜ cents below yesterday's finish, September, 91¾@91⅞c; corn was ¼ to 1 cent off, September, 76⅛@76¼c. Oats closed ⅛ lower to 3 cents higher, with July at 39⅞c, the maximum gain permitted for one day. Rye lost ¾ to 1¾ cents. Barley was unchanged to a cent up, and provisions eased.

Selling predominated in the wheat pit early today and lower prices resulted.

Bearish sentiment was based largely on extreme weakness at Liverpool, where traders, cables said, sold on private forecasts of Argentine rain. Hedging and profit-taking were other factors in liquidation here.

Opening ½@1½ cent lower, September 91¾@92, Chicago wheat later rallied fractionally. Corn started ⅜ off to ½ up, September 76¾@⅞, and then held near this range.

The break in the British market was described also as being partly influenced by offerings of Russian wheat and the anticipated movement of Balkan grain. Prices here held within a narrow range during the first hour, working up gradually to around the previous close.

There was no news to alter the domestic crop outlook and many traders were inclined to await the announcement of Government and private appraisals of the situation. That damage has been done spring wheat by rust is generally recognized.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 51,787,000 bushels, 8,728,000. Open interest in wheat was 82,652,000 bushels and in corn 28,408,000.

Canadian Wheat Movement.

FORT WILLIAM, July 30.—One of the largest grain movements the port of Fort William-Port Arthur has seen in years is in progress, shipping men said here.

For the last 11 days of July the movement will average in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 bushels daily, James A. Speers, general manager of the Lake Shippers Clearance Association, said.

Transfer of local stocks to Eastern port elevators to be accessible should European demand increase, and a normal lowering of lakehead stocks prior to harvest, are given as the principal reasons for the heavy shipments.

RAILS LEND SUPPORT TO QUIET BOND LIST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Low-priced rail bonds lent support to a quiet bond market today. Some of the utilities also were in demand at slightly higher prices.

Many of the industrials were virtually unchanged and a number finished a shade lower. Few issues, however, were under any severe pressure. The U. S. Government list was relatively dull but most of the Federals displayed a better tone. The foreign department was irregular, although Italian obligations rallied substantially.

Among the best of the carrier liens, up fractions to a point or more, were Baltimore & Ohio 6s at 78¼, Erie General 4s at 77½, Great Northern 4½s at 87¼, Nickel Plate 5½s at 7, New Haven collateral 6s at 45¾ and N. Y. Ontario & Western refunding 4s at 48.

Utilities that improved included Columbia Gas 5s at 93, Laclede Gas 5½s at 77⅜ and Montana Power refunding 5s at 105¾. Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s edged slightly higher at 111⅜ and International Paper 5s were up a fraction at 74½.

Mussolini Waiting?
England Building.
Why Japan Advances.
Match This, Mr. Swope.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

THE London Times and a news service announced a clash between Ethiopians and Italians, 20 Ethiopians and 40 Italians killed, a stream supplying the Italian camp turned in a new direction and the Italians compelled to retreat.

Rome "has no information" on this incident. Perhaps Mussolini, who knows that war should supply only good news, is waiting to add something such as: "Air bombardment of Addis Ababa has inflicted swift retribution for the killing of 40 Italians."

England apparently thinks something is about to happen and something unpleasant. She will spend $750,000,000 on more fighting ships. The "secret plans" will include 12 battleships, 33 cruisers, 3 destroyers, 21 new submarines and 3 aircraft carriers. One hundred and thirty is the total of new warships to be built by the British.

All this Britain thinks she needs to keep open her sea lanes for food supplies, that her islands may not be starved, and to defend her commercial ships afloat. We have an advantage in possessing practically no commercial ships afloat, but we have cities that could be gassed and bombed, very conveniently.

We also have $8,000,000,000 worth of gold buried in a hole somewhere that could easily be extracted by gentlemen with a big enough air fleet over Washington, D. C.

Everybody knows that Japan has accomplished wonders since Perry sailed his ship to the Japanese capital, was politely received, and opened Japan to the Western world.

If you ask WHY has Japan gone ahead, so fast? Here are two answers, incomplete, but important.

First: No Japanese child is brutally punished as children are punished in "Christian" countries. No Japanese father or mother beats a child. If you raise your hand to a Western "Christian" child, the child will scream and run. Do that to a Japanese child and it will smile in your face. It knows that men never strike children.

Second: Japan leads all other nations in "literacy," the ability to read, which means ability to absorb knowledge. It can't be done without reading.

In 1925, 99.4 of all children in Japan attended school. In 1927, 93 per cent of all Japanese could read. All nations repeat the saying: "Give light and the people will find their own way." The Japanese give light through education.

The safest thing would be to send tens of thousands of cars now running to the junk pile, get new cars and live longer. Modern tires give miraculous mileage, but often they look "good for 10,000 miles more" when they have reached the danger point.

Mr. W. A. James of Detroit suggests wisely that drivers "analyze their own driving for habitual mistakes." The worst mistake is too high speed, the next worst is turning your head away from the road. It takes less than a second to be killed.

It is suggested that the League of Nations take over control of Ethiopia and run that fertile country. Some Ethiopians, probably, would prefer to be run by Mussolini. Under his direction they might "get somewhere." They would probably not do that under League of Nations control.

A Pirate In HIS LAIR

By Alexander Woollcott

Alexander Woollcott

WHEN I read in the cabled obituaries that the cantankerous Frank Harris had spent his last months writing a biography of his erstwhile hireling, Bernard Shaw, I found myself thinking of the last time I ever saw that stormy petrel. It was in the summer of 1928. I had known him first when he was spending the war years here in resentful exile from the London of his lost heyday, lecturing angrily on Shakespeare to sparse audiences at the St. Regis and, after failing to persuade any publisher to sponsor his life of Wilde, putting it out himself with money advanced by Otto Kahn. His carefully plastered hair and his bushy mustache were of a blackness suspect in a man already 60. There was a distinct air of skulduggery about him, and he looked like nothing in the world so much as a riverboat card shark of a bygone day. Then, a dozen years later, I went to call upon him in his frowzy flat on the Cimiez Hill in Nice, where he was coming to the end of his days, and had come, I think, to the end of his rope. He was surrounded by bits of Roman statuary unearthed in ruins thereabouts, and these disputed what space there was with unsold stacks of his own more contraband works, from which any caller might purchase as many volumes as he could carry away. He was a frail and frightened old man then, with the scorn gone out of his voice and pathetically glad to see any caller to whom he could talk of the great days when, in the '90s, he had edited the Saturday Review in London, and launched Shaw as a dramatic critic at £6 a week. What was left of his hair was still firmly black, and with his high, shiny collar, his striped, starched shirt front, and his tan shoes with uppers of white velour, he looked more like a Mississippi gambler than ever. But his youthfulness had something synthetic and implausible about it. One had the uneasy notion that he was being held together by adhesive tape and might come apart at any minute.

Shaw was much on his mind just then, for every issue of the Nice Eclaireur was agitated by the circumstance that the great Socialist was spending his vacation on the Riviera that summer. Each arriving train disgorged a French journalist hurrying, porte-plume reservoir in hand, in quest of an interview, and the hostess of every villa on the azure coast tossed under her rented moustiquaire in night-long speculation as to how she could get Bernard Shaw to come to dinner. Harris knew that his whilom colleague had already been stopping for three weeks at a little hotel at Antibes, less than an hour's motor ride away along the white road to Marseilles, but he had not yet come to pay his respects to his old chief.

It was easy to see that this hurt Harris grievously and that he ascribed the neglect to the influence of the disapproving Mrs. Shaw who, as a form of literary criticism, had been known to burn one of Harris' later works in the Shavian fireplace at Adelphi-Terrace. Wherefore there was a gleam of malice in his reminiscence of the days when Shaw was courting "the Irish millionairess with green eyes." Shaw's already published letters of that period are full of indecision on the subject of the ample Miss Townshend, and I remember Harris' twinkling account of the actual proposal. In those days Shaw was a passionate cyclist and as he was also uncommonly brittle, one or another of his valuable bones was usually in splints. One such catastrophe of the highway deposited him in front of Miss Townshend's home with a broken leg.

"Well," Harris said, "there he lay being nursed within an inch of his life and simply terrified by a conviction that if he lingered another day in that softening atmosphere, he would ask the woman to marry him. So before he had learned how to manage his crutches, he attempted flight. But he slipped on the top step and crashed to the bottom, not only breaking his fool leg again, but cracking the other as well. The next thing he knew, his fair protectress was engulfing him in her solicitude. He had just strength enough left to lift his head and murmur,, 'Will you marry me?' 'Yes,' she said. Then he fainted. And that," said Harris, "was that."

I remember that while we sat at tea that afternoon in Nice, he started to illustrate a point by quoting from Antony and Cleopatra. But the argument was forgotten, for the sheer music of the line seduced him. With eyes half closed, he went on with the scene, speaking each verse with a voice that had an ancient magic in it. In no time, he had forgotten that I was there, and I felt I ought to take my hat and slip out of the temple unnoticed. If I did not do so, it may have been because I knew that, when he came back to earth, he would be excessively vexed to find that I had got away without a parcel of books.

Frank Nash and His Associates Arrange a Break for Their Friends in Leavenworth.

The Federal Agents' War on Crime
By COURTNEY RYLEY COOPER

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

KEATING, Holden and Frank Nash conducted quite an inquiry in the underworld, at last assuring themselves that no one was squealing and that the growth of Government heat was largely a myth. There was quite a party when at last they met "Monk" Fontaine, lately of Leavenworth Penitentiary, at the O. P. inn. This person described the details of the projected Leavenworth break as the convicts themselves had conceived it.

If they could only get guns and cartridges and explosives, everything would be easy. Holden ran a hand through his bushy hair, now bright with henna.

"I guess we can get the artillery easy enough," he said. That night Harold Fontaine sent a telegram which, in its seeming innocence, passed the censorship and reached Harry Brown, one of the plotting convicts:

"Mother and Frances are well. I will leave next week.
Love.
MARGARET M. BROWN."

In the code, this meant that the contact between Fontaine and the escaped convicts had been established, and that the guns and dynamite soon would be on their way.

In all fairness to penal institutions in general, certain previously stated facts must be remembered: the scheming ability of incarcerated men, the constant plotting and conspiracies, the temptations which constantly confront underpaid guards, the ever-present willingness of one convict to help another, even if he risks his own good time record to do it. Beyond this, it must be repeated that, with the exception of cell blocks and restrictions, a penitentary perforce is not a prison, in the old sense of the word, but a guarded factory where workers are held against their will, performing labor which they do not intend to repeat in civil life. Therefore a portion of Leavenworth seethed as the news of the telegram was passed along.

A day later, there was a purchase of guns and ammunition at a shop in Peoria, Ill., including a sawed-off 20-gauge shotgun, four revolvers and ammunition, 17 sticks of dynamite and 100 nitro caps and fuses, by which this explosive could be fashioned into hand grenades.

On that same day a man called at the office of a shoe paste manufacturer in St. Louis and ordered a 30-gallon barrel of paste to be shipped to Joliet, Ill. This was Harold Fontaine. The barrel was taken from the express office at Joliet to a place of hiding. There the four conspirators wrapped the revolvers in a pillow slip, pushed this into a piece of automobile inner tube, then, after vulcanizing the ends, shoved the parcel deep into the paste. The same procedure followed with the shotgun, the caps and dynamite and cartridges. The barrel was resealed. It was painted the peculiar color of red which containers from this factory bore when they arrived at the penitentiary. Then, early the next morning, the four men started in a truck for St. Louis.

The truck rattled into St. Louis and to a freight station there. The prosaic-appearing barrel was rolled off the rear and into the depot; the shipping tag was made out, the usual receipts given. That afternoon, a second telegram traveled into Leavenworth. This one read:

"Aunt Emma very ill. Leaving St. Louis tonight.
Margaret M. Brown."

"Aunt Emma" was the barrel of shoe paste. No wonder she was ill., with that arsenal in her gizzard. Convicts watched every arrival of the prison truck following the telegram.

The duties of John Kulick, the convict volunteer, included the receiving of all supplies. At last, on Dec. 9, the prison truck drove up to the warehouse platform with a red barrel among its other freight. A guard made the usual inspection, necessarily a cursory one. Then the red barrel was dumped off and the truck rumbled on to another part of the factory. Kulick turned the container on its side and, with pushing kicks, rolled it around to what is known as the oil house. Then the word passed, from convict to convict, that the guns were here.

One by one, under various pretexts, they left their work. The oil house was not guarded. Here they dug deeply into the paste and brought forth the heavily loaded pieces of inner tubing. Then, with guns concealed under their convict clothing, they rolled the barrel into the factory, down into the plumbing shop, where they emptied it and burned the barrel and tubes in the stove. That done, they hid the dynamite and caps and ammunition under a pile of waste materials. Two days later, the break came.

Under various pretexts, the conspiring inmates left their posts, while a perfect shout of silence wished them well. A little later three of the convicts, followed at a distance by the other four, moved toward the rear gate. There three forged passes were presented, all they had. The guard let them through, only to see one of the convicts suddenly whirl upon him and press a revolver into his stomach.

"Give me those keys," the inmate demanded. The guard obeyed. Again the gate was unlocked and the four other convicts came through. After that, the gates were locked, to hold remaining guards captive; the one at the rear gate was taken along as a hostage.

* * *

THE two preceding convicts had leaped into the warden's office with guns leveled and kidnaped the warden. Now they joined the other men at the front gate. Here they commanded the warden to produce his keys. He refused. Dynamite was forthcoming.

"We'll blow the gate, you and everything else to hell!" the men threatened. "Give us those keys!"

At last the warden acquiesced. The gates swung wide. Members of the convict band made a rush for the warden's car, upon which they had planned for their get-away. It was locked. They demanded the keys. The warden replied that they were in his office.

Herein lay the tiny fault which turned this escape from a prison break to a prison fatality. There was no time to return for the keys; already the siren was screaming its eerie warning of a crush-out. A car filled with negro hunters was passing. The convicts rushed at it. White-eyed darkies flooded forth, scrambling in all directions, their guns abandoned. Into the car piled the convicts, forcing the warden to accompany them.

The day which followed was one of horror. There had been incessant thaws and freezes; unfamiliar with the thoroughfares, the convicts drove off the main highway and onto a slimy "cat" road, where the car slithered and finally crashed. They commandeered another and wrecked it. Finally, in their madness, as it became evident that posses would soon be upon them, they shot the warden, severely wounding him, commandeered still another car and made a last attempt at liberty.

A dozen posses now had formed. Airplanes took off from nearby fields. Soldiers were rushed from Fort Leavenworth. Soon a part of the gang was cornered in a farmhouse, with law-enforcement bullets crashing the windows and tear-gas bombs flooding the interior with choking fumes. But when at last posse members rushed the place, they found that their shots had been in vain. The guns which Nash and Keating, Holden and Fontaine had shipped in the shoe-paste barrel had been used for suicide. In an upstairs room, their bodies sprawled one atop the other, lay the inanimate, blood-spiotched forms of Green, Durrill and Curtis.

Brown, Berta and Underwood, three more of the escaped convicts, had stolen horses from a farm and headed across the fields. Airplanes roared over them, spotting them for the posses. Soldiers and deputies were approaching from all sides. Meekly the men held up their hands.

Only one man was free. For three days, Earl Thayer, of the old Al Spencer gang, stuck it out in corn shocks, desperately striving to discover a method by which he might make his get-away and join his old partner, Frank Nash. At last he forewent his dreams. Delirious and half-frozen, he staggered into the outskirts of Leavenworth, a thirty-thirty rifle which he had stolen from a farmhouse dragging from one clutched hand. There he surrendered. Back in Chicago, four men made ready for much traveling. In the spring of 1932, after many miles, they met again in Hot Springs, Ark.

New coalitions were formed. Freddie Barker and Alvin Karpis were young, but they were cold, fearless and calculating. Frank Nash always had liked Freddie, ever since that first meeting down at Herb Farmer's. Harvey Bailey liked him too and appraised Alvin Karpis as a deadly man with a gun.

Finally the inevitable urge to move hit everybody. They scattered, returning to Chicago, where on May third, there was a birthday party for Frances Nash; two murderers personally brought her presents to the Nash apartment. After that the incessant movement began again. But most of them got together again in Kansas City, making numerous forays against banks in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa. Returning, they played golf. Always they played golf.

Those patient Special Agents had not relaxed their vigilant search for an instant. Still checking, still asking questions, they went the rounds. A St. Paul bootlegger attempted to sell some bonds at a Minneapolis bank. The numbers were checked, and the collateral found to have been stolen from two messengers of the First American National Bank of Duluth.

The Bureau of Investigation was notified. The bootlegger broke down and confessed the names of the hot bond shovers from whom he had received the securities. They also talked, telling what they knew, which was not much.

* * *

FINALLY they found a lead. Kansas City special agents, picking up the information which St. Paul had forwarded, visited a manufacturer of handmade golf clubs. It seems that Charlie Harmon had telephoned this place, long-distance, from St. Paul the summer before.

The manufacturer couldn't remember the call; he got so many. They showed the pictures. At last, however, his gaze centered. He was quite sure about Keating and Holden; they had been here recently. Holden had bought a golf hat only the day before.

Every golf course now became a place of surveillance. At one, the Old Mission, special agents got good news.

The next day out on the course, Jimmy Keating, Thomas Holden and Harvey Bailey moved along the fairway; iron shots had been excellent, laying all three balls on the green. Far in the rear, Bernard Phillips dubbed along. Suddenly he looked up, his attention centered on a widespread circle of men, converging upon the fairway. He ran.

Keating, Holden and Bailey knew nothing of this until that circle of men had closed in. Automatics appeared in the hands of police and special agents. The three men raised their hands. A long hunt was over.

Frank Nash read of it in the Chicago newspapers. Keating and Holden already were headed back for Leavenworth. Old Harvey Bailey was in for trouble down there at Fort Scott. Frank Nash took many drinks that night. Usually this procedure was because he liked whisky. Tonight it was because he never had liked golf.

"Thank You" Is Always in Proper Form

Expression of Appreciation to Hostess for Dinner Is Good Taste.

By Emily Post

Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

A FRIEND of mine always says "Thank you" when he leaves a hostess' dining table. I have always been under the impression that we do not thank people for our dinner, but instead for their hospitality upon leaving. What is the rule?

Answer: Correctly one says thank you for a very pleasant evening, or a most delicious dinner, or whatever it may be natural to say when leaving the house later. It is not usual to say thank you when leaving the table, but perhaps in the house of a hostess who prepared the meal herself there could certainly be no objection to saying thank you for a very delicious meal.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it such a terrible breach of etiquette t thank waitresses or bell boys or anyone who serves, even though we tip or pay them for their services?

Answer: On the contrary, it is never wrong to say thank you for any personal service that is rendered. To be rude to those who serve you is the hall-mark of an upstart. However, you do not say thank you for dishes passed to you at table, but you say "No, thank you," when you decline.

Dear Mrs. Post: My employer's father has just died and I am wondering what I may do about sending flowers. I didn't know the father but I've been in my employer's office for many years and would like to show some feeling.

Answer: There should be no impropriety in your sending flowers to the funeral. If this is beyond your means, then express your sympathy to your employer and ask if there is anything you can do. Since quite likely he will not be in the office for several days, you may have to write this expression of condolence in a note addressed to his house.

Chicago is seriously afflicted with counterfeiters, and secret service men say that putting Capone in jail stimulated the counterfeit racket. What Capone said "went" in his days of power, and while he was underworld boss in Chicago he forbade counterfeiting because "I don't want this town to have a bad name." He did not want counterfeiters to attract Government agents that might interfere with his "honest beer racket."

The Associated Press says a saloon in Dallas, Tex., advertises, "Sixty cents an hour for beer drinking." You pay one cent a minute and may have as much beer as you can drink in 60 minutes for 60 cents. What line would you add to that statement?

Parents Need Holidays From Their Children

Besides Being Relaxation, Youngsters Learn to Look After Selves.

By Angelo Patri

FATHERS and mothers need holidays—days off, when they should not even see their children. How often these holidays should be taken I do not know. It would depend entirely upon the sort of people the family were. Some children try some parents to the breaking point weekly, and their parents ought to have relief weekly. Other children are not so trying and other parents are not so tried, but all fathers and mothers need time out.

Angelo Patri

Many mothers think it is impossible for them to leave home even for an hour, much less a weekend, or a fortnight, but often they are mistaken. There is usually some way to care for the children. Some beloved aunt or granny, will enjoy doing so. Of course things will not be just the same. The cereal may be cooked too much or not quite enough, and granny may slip in a grain of sugar against the rules and regulations, but that really will not matter. The children will slip easily into the old way the minute their mother returns.

Susie insisted on sitting on father's knee while eating her evening meal and sometimes it was anything but a restful experience for father who was a bit tired at night. Once in a while was one thing, but every night was too many. If father said, "No," Susie refused to eat her supper. While father and mother were on vacation Susie ate her evening meal sitting in her chair at the table with no mention of father's knee. The night he got back she scrambled off her chair and up to her place quite as if there had been no interruption. But when father said, "No, not any more. You sit in your place like the rest of us," there was very little resistance.

I think it is good to accustom children to look after themselves a bit, and to get along with other people, in other ways than their usual habit. Children who never get their own supper, never wash their own dishes, never tie their own shoes or buy their own toothpaste grow up helpless. Nobody likes to have such helpless people about and everybody becomes skilful in ridding himself of their presence. The self-helpful child will have more friends, and better ones, than the mother-tied helpless one.

This means training and, of course, work for father and mother. It is far easier to get the Sunday evening supper than to teach the children to get it. But the time is put to good use. Before long they can get and serve the meal without help, and you know that should the occasion arise they can do for themselves nicely. There are emergencies in every family and the children ought to be prepared a little so they can carry on as usual in time of need.

Then once in a while take the car without the children. Once in a while let father and mother leave home for a few days' vacation without thought of what will happen to the children. There is always a way to provide for them if one plans to do so. All it needs is thought in the beginning while the children are still babies and easily trained to trust people to care for them in the absence of their parents. Parental health is precious and must be safeguarded. Time off is essential to personal fitness and family peace.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

THIS may all be foolish, but I'm always so lonesome, so I will try my luck in writing to you and I feel that you will be able to give me an answer. The truth is, that sometimes I am so blue I don't know what to do with myself. I very seldom have dates with boys, in fact I did not care for any at first, but now that I am by myself, I would like to have dates again, but not with the ones I used to know.

There is one boy who comes to the house and I am always hoping that he will be interested in me. I do not talk much and neither does he. Do you think he would be interested in a girl like me?

M. E.

It is perfectly natural for a girl who is young in her tastes to want to meet young people and to have a good time. But it is the height of foolishness and inanity for any girl to sit around and do nothing and be nothing and to languish, asking that good fortune send her some stranger she has seen only a few times (good fortune?). Do I think he would be attracted to a girl like you? No, I do not. If he appears only when he delivers the vegetables or meat or ice or brings the paper, or what have you, he probably has not the time to gaze at the "face against the pane." But he may be attracted to a lively girl who is playing tennis or ball or who is digging in the garden or beating up the eggs for cake. Everybody like busy people; that is, one who is busy about their own business. Activity, mental and physical, charitable, unselfish; one who helps the world move and who is attractive and charming when they do it.

If you care all this about a boy you have hardly spoken to, for goodness' sake, don't let him know it. When he delivers the coffee next door, he and the girl there, the lively one, will likely shriek with laughter (as mean as that would be) over the love-lorn girl next door.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THIS is the first time I have been on the begging list. We've been having a mighty hard time getting along. My husband and I are just 22 and 23 years old and we have done any work we could get to do; in this way, we have managed to get along without running too many bills. Each pay day we pay some of those we are indebted to. So we do not expect to have an extra dollar soon, as this work we have now will not last very long.

We have a vegetable garden and I would like to can some things, so that it will not be so hard getting by next winter; but I just cannot afford to buy any jars. If you will publish part of this letter, some kind person might offer to let me have some jars they are not using. Of course, I could call for them, if you will let me know where.

I would also appreciate any toys for my year-old boy. MRS. C. F.

I wouldn't be surprised if we have some offers; it has happened before and I think people like to help those who are trying hard to help themselves. Meanwhile, send me good references, so that I can pass them on to the persons who may make offers. There are so many deserving persons now that everyone, naturally, likes to give help where it is most needed.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ "Discouraged's" letter in your column a few weeks ago. And I am in the same boat. I took some medicine for about six months and I have a terrible forehead that I am ashamed of.

My wrinkles are not crosswise ones; they are lengthwise. They are not real deep but are terribly noticeable, as there are so many of them. I alsd have a few swollen veins that look awful. Is there any way I can get rid of these?

I am only 21 years old. My grandmother, who is 79, hasn't wrinkles like mine in her forehead. Is it ever possible to get them removed by special care?

A friend wants to know if there is a place in St. Louis where you can have your face lifted?

ASHAMED.

The wrinkles between your eyes may be caused by frowning and those aches by continually lifting the eyebrows. Both of these habits are due, sometimes to eye strain. For this reason, it would be well for you to see an oculist. You may need glasses, or perhaps a simple treatment and eye wash. Wear hats for some time, that shade your eyes, not those turned back from the face, and do not read by artificial light until you see someone who can tell you about the condition of your eyes. Ask him about the veins and if they may be contracted; as varicose veins are sometimes treated now.

SNAPSHOTS FROM HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 29.

IF YOU want to take a tip from me, keep your eye on Josephine Hutchinson who, in my opinion, is one of the greatest emotional actresses on the screen. Jack Warner has been searching frantically to find a vehicle which will give Josephine just the right emotional outlet to follow "Oil for the Lamps of China." He has decided on "A Present From Margate." This is the play by Ian Hay and A. E. W. Mason, which was originally purchased for Kay Francis. But Kay will be tied up on "I Found Stella Parrish" and since F. Hugh Herbert has completed the screen play, "Present From Margate" will be put into production within 10 days. Warren William will play opposite Miss Hutchinson in one of the best roles he has had in a long time and the moment a director is chosen and Miss Hutchinson completes "The Melody Lingers On" at Reliance, the picture will be on its way.

JOSEPHINE HUTCHINSON . . . gets another role.

Our old friend, Victor McLaglen, can come pretty near writing his own ticket these days. He is a little bewildered himself at all the attention he is getting from film producers since his work in "The Informer." Michael Balcon is paging Vic frantically to come to England to play that old meanie Mulvaney in "Soldiers Three," Kipling's well known story. Al Kaufman of the Selznick-Joyce office, who is a Kipling enthusiast, is trying to arrange the McLaglen engagement so that Vic can make this picture.

I often wonder how stars with the appeal of Charles Farrell can suddenly disappear from the screen horizon. Charlie at one time was one of the most important young leading men in our town. Then the team of Charlie and Janet Gaynor split and things didn't go so well. But Charlie is coming back, and in this country, too, which is good news. He has the starring role in "offside," a football picture to be produced by Universal.

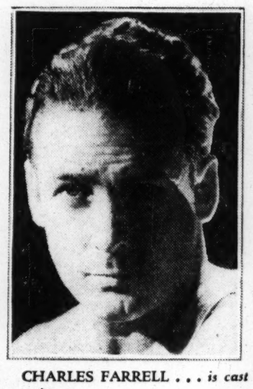

Chatter.

The new regime at the Twentieth Century-Fox has ideas on "Ramona." Instead of making it just a simple little program picture with Rita Cansino in the much beloved role, Darryl Zanuck made arrangements to produce Helen Hunt Jackson's novel as an epic, dedicated to California. He will seek a new Ramona, not because little Cansino hasn't ability but because Zanuck feels she is too inexperienced. He will put her into a smaller picture and let her serve her apprenticeship, before she is ready for stardom. The entire story will be rewritten and put into production with important star names, within the next five weeks.

The most disconsolate young man in our town is Edward Graham, known as Mecca to his intimates. Mecca had been given a marvelous part in the stage production, "Pocahontas Preferred" in Hollywood, with Theresa Maxwell Conover from the New York stage, in the lead. Then up came RKO and bought the rights to the play for Helen Broderick, with the stipulation that it be kept off the stage. So Mecca loses his big chance, for Edward Everett Horton will play Mecca's role on the screen and Randolph Scott will have the juvenile lead.

Snapshots.

Eddy Duchin, orchestra genius now at the Ambassador, is turning author—he has just completed a book of 30,000 words; W. C. Fields, isolated from all of his friends, gets word through by Tammany Young, his pal, that he will be back at work in four months; Josephine Dillon off for New York to coach Julie Haydon and Lyda Roberti in voice; Lawrence Tibbett will do his swimming pool singing in Tito Schipa's house in Beverly, where he is now living; Jack Oakie has given his sister and her children a trip to Hollywood as a little gift; they are here now and is Jack's ma, Mrs. Offield, happy; Estelle Taylor in training for the chance offered her by Gallo with the Chicago Opera Co.; Lee Tracy who gets star billing in an Arthur Hopkins play, making plans to marry Estelle Taylor and this is no idle rumor; Dick Foran and Patricia Ellis seen around a lot together these days; David Manners finishing a series of short stories on desert life; Alice Faye lunching every day and every day with Charles Locher; guess she's forgotten all about Rudy Vallee; Johnny McGuire, newcomer to the screen, smitten with Ann Shirley; Merle Oberon leaves in three weeks for England.

You will have to correct the frowning and raising the brows habits yourself. Sometimes as a reminder, while you are working, apply a lightweight court plaster across the wrinkles (a very light quality). At night pat on cold cream after washing your face.

A plastic surgeon can "lift the face," but this should be a last resort, especially if your friend happens to be a young girl. And she should go to one who has the backing of the medical profession.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. The Jungle in The Back of Every Spirit

All Humans Have It, but They Also Have an Escape.

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

JUNGLE!

Even the word moves you strangely. There you are, in your stuffy office or kitchen, hunched listlessly over your humdrum chores. And suddenly, at the sound of one short word, the Thing is upon you—

Like a dark hand, clutching—like a low voice, calling — like a black spell, coiling, coiling through your blood — plucking at your brain—pulling you back and back into a place of steaming shadow whose trails you once knew—Or did you?

Jungle? Why has that word such power over us? Is it because we were once part of it? Or is it because we still carry part of it within us?

Under this pallid, placid mask we call Civilization, there they still are—the Powers of Darkness—skulking, slithering, sliding through the secret runways of our blood—

FEAR, as strangling as any slimy snake—HATE, as poisonous as any scaly lizard—ENVY, as draining as sucking vampire—no wonder the tom-toms begin to beat within us when we hear the jungle's name.

No man has ever felt this truth more deeply or written about it more powerfully than a quiet Englishman named H. M. Tomlinson. And if you are sick of your limited life, there is a book of his called "THE SEA AND THE JUNGLE" (Harper & Bros., Publishers) which will open your jail doors and lift you out and away across great, roaring waters, into sleepy, singsong ports, until you come to a silent, shining beach and a brooding, black wall of forest, and a narrow, watery lane that slips, at a dip of the paddle, from flaming day to the endless midnight of the jungle.

Never has a man so caught, in the simplest words, the beauty and horror of that oozing solitude. There it all is, in its jeweled stagnation and perpetual gloom — the sun so remote that its light hardly penetrated the matted roof beneath; strange, polished trunks of trees, "gray columns that might have been of stone, upholding a darkness from which gray stuff suspended." Thickets with "tortured branches . . . hung about with fruit, pendant lamps, lit with a pale, greenish light." And bubbling pools of phosphorescent filth, above which swayed frail, fluttering veils of painted butterflies, as gay as tangled blossoms in an English lane in June!

There it all is—and there you are! For in discovering the jungle for you, Tomlinson has also given you news of your own dark and tangled self. One passage stands out—

"The roof of the world was far away. Somewhere was the sun, for occasionally there was a well which its light had filled, and a grove of green palms, standing at the bottom of the well, living and reasonable shapes. Or one of the morphos (a rare butterfly) would flicker among those spectral bastions, aerial and bright as a fairy in Hades. The sombre mind caught it at once, an unexpected gleam of hope, a bright blue thought to set among one's shapeless fears."

How often for you, too, in the jungle of some dark grief or despair, the roof of the world has seemed far away and the sun tragically remote! Perhaps it is so even as you read this. Yet never is the darkness so complete but that "some bright blue thought" may not come flickering through the shade — a "gleam of hope" against your "shapeless fears."

Jungle—always it is there, in the back of life, in the core of the spirit, black and brooding. And never are we quite free from its coiling terror. Yet—always—there is some gleam of hope, some flash of courage, some sudden, saving radiance of love. If you will have it so!

Odette Myrtil Is Perfectly Frank

Odette's autograph is much sought after.

ODETTE MYRTIL . . . with Foo and One-Two.

"Fantastic" She Says of Muny Opera, Where She Is Now Acting, Adding Her Views on "Phony French Women" and Divorce.

By VIRGINIA IRWIN

"THIS," said Odette Myrtil, waving her hand toward the Municipal Opera, "is the most fantastic thing I've ever seen. They turn out operas like they make sausages. It is marvelous."

She was seated on the grass under a big tree, mopping her high forehead and complaining about the heat. It was almost time for the afternoon rehearsal of "The Cat and The Fiddle," in which she will revive her original role of Odette. After "The Cat and The Fiddle" she will play Clementine, the Spanish lady in "The Desert Song," and then repeat her performance of the addlepated Scharwenka in "Roberta."

"Please do not have me say 'zis' and 'zat' in your story," she pleaded. "I am French and so I have a French accent, but do not have me say 'zis' and 'zat.' It makes me sick. I would love to have a perfect American accent, because then people would not expect me to do that 'Oo-la-la, oui oui' stuff. That also makes me sick. I am a French woman, but not your American's idea of a French woman."

Odette Myrtil is a Parisienne and a virtuoso of the violin. Her career began when she was 11 years old, on the concert stage.

"But I was too restless and the concert stage was too much work," she explained. "So, with my violin, I went into a review, which was much less exacting. Then the war broke out and there was nothing to do in Europe, so I came to America and after a while went into the Ziegfeld Follies." And then I went to England with Charlot's Review."

It was in London that Odette Myrtil met Bob Adams, her first husband, whose family, incidentally, lived in St. Louis. They were married for eight years and then divorced. Their son, Roger Adams, is now 16 years old and is in school at Andover, Mass., Odette says he is going to be a musician and composer.

"But to get me back in America," she resumed. "After Charlot's Review, I came back here for the Shuberts. First there was the "Countess Maritza," then "Love Song," then "White Lilacs" and then some reviews. And then I went into radio work. After that, there was vaudeville."

It was while she was in vaudeville that Odette Myrtil got the bird from a St. Louis audience. She says she thought it was a very good act, but they just booed her off the stage. After her vaudeville contract expired, Max Gordon gave her a part in "The Cat and The Fiddle" and another in "Roberta."

Odette Myrtil is Mrs. Stanley Logan in private life. Logan is a director with Warner Brothers, which necessitates their living in Hollywood. And Odette does not like Hollywood and says that nothing could persuade her to go into the films, because the movie magnates insist that she act like Fifi d'Orsay, chief exponent of the "Oo-la-la," idea.

"You cannot be yourself in the movies,' she explained. "You have to be like some director wants you to be and their idea of what a French woman in the movies should be makes me shudder. And after all, that is about all I could do, for I am too young for character parts and too old for ingenue roles.

"It would be horrible for me to have to say 'zis' and 'zat' and act like a phony French woman. It would be almost as horrible as having to stay married to a man to whom you did not want to be married."

And that remark started a little discussion of divorce. Odette says that she pities a woman who, for financial reasons, must continue to live with a man she does not love. She thinks professional people are fortunate because they have careers that make them financially independent and when they discover that their rosy ideas about their partner have vanished, they can call the bargain off, without the necessity of quibbling over monetary matters.

"It is sad to see a woman hang on to a man year after year, because he is her meal ticket," she said. "Actresses don't do that. They can make their own living. And you seldom see an actress, a real one, ask for alimony. Of course, I am not talking now of the lesser lights who act very much as any woman who cannot, or will not, make her own living.

She gives much of the credit for her ability to make a living to her violin. She says it was her fiddle that enabled her to get a start, but she is glad that she is versatile enough to handle other parts.

"It used to be that people did not think of Odette Myrtil without her violin," she pointed out. "It was Max Gordon who dislocated me from a violin and now I like to think that people hope I will play it again, instead of thinking 'What! Is she going to play it again!'"

• • •

VIOLIN playing will be included in Odette's next contract. She is going to New York immediately after the last performance of "Roberta" on a long-term radio contract. She will be the mainstay of a perfume advertising program and expects to change her act each week.

There was no need to ask questions of Odette Myrtil. She just rambled on from one subject to another, talking easily and laughing more than readily.

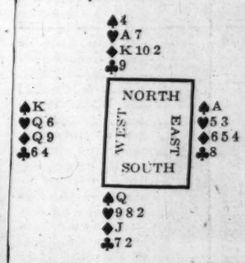

"And now I must get a bite of something to eat," she said, rising and calling to her two Chows. "I love to eat. I love good food with a Frenchman's love of good cuisine. I myself make the meanest salad dressing. And I adore garlic, so you see I am not a bit romantic."

Her two dogs are named "Foo" and "One-Two." She named the one Chow "One-Two" because he is her second dog.

While she was posing for the photographer, she was besieged by autograph hunters. She obliged them good-naturedly and kept up her stream of conversation, meanwhile. "You will notice my eyes don't match," she pointed out for no reason at all. "That's what gives me that wicked look."

7-Card Bridge Problem With Clubs Trumps

By P. Hal Sims

HERE is something a little different—a seven-card problem, Clubs are trumps. South is on lead, and North and South are to take all seven tricks against the best possible defense. You should work this problem out in seven minutes, maximum, but if you are unaccustomed to problem solving, and the lay-out seems to present some difficulties, drop me a postcard, care of this newspaper, and I will mail you the solution.

There being nothing further to say on the subject of problems, I am fortunately reminded of a rather chilly story that I heard a few weeks ago. Some one once made a list of remarks that were guaranteed to be unanswerable—such as your hostess saying out of a clear, blue sky, "I was going to have salad, but I decided not to"; and I hope the scientific compiler of that list reads this tale. It is definitely an effective stop to conversation.

For some years two men—let's call them Smith and Jones—had a battling partnership in duplicate circles. After each tournament, Smith (or it might be Jones) would vow that it would be a long, cold winter before he would ever sit across the table from "that idiot" again. And Jones (or Smith, as the case might be) would retort, "That goes double!"

As I intimated, they had been hurling these remarks at each other for years. Yet each tournament would find them together again. Thus it was with a distinct sense of shock that their bridge cronies saw Smith enter a minor duplicate event with another partner. The next week, the same thing happened. It was incredible. Smith and Jones had been as inseparable as ham and eggs.

An acquaintance, with more curiosity than discretion, bearded Old Man Smith on the subject.

"By the way," he said, casually beating around the bush, "I haven't seen Jonesy for some time. Where is he?"

"I don't know," responded Smith. Then, after a slight pause, "He's dead."

Consideration For the Patient Ladies of Wax

As a man grows older, wiser he can safely, then, adore
The dummies in the window of a big department store.
How patiently, how placidly they wait and wait and wait
And sweetly smile a welcome when you're sometimes hours late!
No bitter word. No gimlet eye. No tears. No comment tart.
No puzzling hysteries. Are they dummies—or, just smart?
It might be a great adventure if the dummy of your choice
Could walk right through the window glass, for better or for woise,
And take her place across from you at table; patiently
She'd listen while you talked and talked of "I," "Myself" and "Me":
Then, if of her you tired in a week, a month, a year—
Just set her in the boiling sun and she would disappear.

Raspberry Vinegar.

An old-time recipe that could well be popular now. Pour one quart vinegar over two quarts of raspberries and let stand, covered, over night. Strain off liquid through a muslin bag. Add one pound sugar to each pint of liquid. Boil slowly for five minutes, skim, cool, bottle and seal. When serving, it may be diluted with ice water until desired strength and served in tall glasses over crushed ice.

A little vineger in the rinsing water will keep black stockings a good color.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dr. Clendening

"OF COURSE," said my old friend, Dr. Adrain Gibbs, "you dietitians are just the same as any other kind of medical advisers. You have a cruel streak in you.

"Perhaps it is an unconscious cruel streak. Perhaps it is one that has been developed by the nature of your business.

"Of course, at times you are in a tough spot. As I say, like all doctors. You see, here is what happens to a doctor. If he is a good doctor he learns that there are certain patients that he can't do much for in the way of drugs or operations or X-ray. But they ought to be watched, and they have to be kept reminded that they are sick.

"Doctors have found that the only way to handle these patients is to make them uncomfortable. I mean with treatment. The treatment must make them uncomfortable.

"It is just the opposite of the technique in ordinary cases of sickness. The sickness makes the patient uncomfortable and the treatment makes them comfortable. In this group of cases the sickness does not make them uncomfortable, but the treatment does.

"It consists in the development of the technique of prohibitions. The doctor subtly inquires what pleasures the patient has, then he takes them away.

"'How much do you smoke?'

"'Five cigars a day.'

"'Cut it down to two. Do you ever drink?'

"'Yes, a highball now and then.'

"'Have you cut that clear out. What time do you get up in the morning?'

"'About nine.'

"'Make it seven, and take a cold bath first thing.'

"So you see, the poor guy is made perfectly miserable. But every time he wants a smoke or a drink he remembers the doctor, and that is what the doctor wants. That is the only good reason for the prohibitions.

"It is the same, as I said, with dietitians. I do not know at what precise date you all got together and composed that list of inedibles that is put on every diet list under the heading 'Allowed.' I don't know how you ever thought of them. Spinach was one; another is okra. Nobody ever found anything okra was bad for, so it goes into all diet lists.

"When you list foods in two columns, one of which describes what the dietitian thinks about the food, and the other what you think, here is the way it looks:

Dietitian's Opinion	Patient's Opinion
Best for you	Inedible
Good for you	Repulsive
Recommended	Can be gulped down
Allowed	Something you never heard of, the sight of which stirs vague suspicions
To be avoided	Appetizing
Bad for you	Tasty
Worst for you	Delicious

GOLDEN GODDESS

An Adventure Romance

By ROB EDEN

Troy Is at a Loss as to What He Can Do, Until a Voice From the Darkness Advises Him.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

"JUST looking for my lighter," Rian lied as he trained his flashlight under the bush of white orchids. "Dropped it somewhere around here—"

"Jose will look for it. Jose!" Julian called and the servant came running.

Troy described the lighter which he had purposely dropped and reluctantly put away his pocket flashlight. Another minute and he would have covered the whole bush again, each flower of which in the dim cool darkness of the patio seemed like a bit of white paper to him—even felt like paper to his fingers. As it was he wasn't sure. The note might be there, and again it might not. Inwardly as he walked away with Julian, he was damning him for coming up at that moment when the search was almost ended.

"Like to shoot some billiards?"

Troy said as politely as he could that he didn't. If he had to go into the living room and play billiads with Julian he surely would go mad. He was nearly mad now.

Before he left the patio, he looked around it once more for Cavanagh. No sign of him, and his room was still in darkness. In the living room he looked, too, but the Englishman was not there. Only Fay sitting at the piano and Chico getting the billiard cues from their rack.

As Troy reached the door, Fay started to play, and for some reason he couldn't define, the music that rippled from the piano didn't belong in the room, neither did it belong to the instrument. He missed Derger's masterful touch. Fay didn't play badly, he decided, as he shut the outside door after him. She played daintily, and the music she was making was soft and haunting.

He smiled to himself bitterly as he remembered how elated he had been when Derger hadn't appeared for dinner, and how quickly the elation had left. For Derger, whether he was present or absent from his table, was there regardless. The dinner without him had been a failure so far as Troy's nerves could be considered. The tension at the table had been greater than ever before with Julian and Fay taking no part in the conversation, Cavanagh looking so glum and Mattias trying his best to be cheerful.

Why had Cavanagh left so abruptly? Troy hadn't heard his excuse, hadn't asked it and no one else had, but in the middle of the meal the Englishman had mumbled something indistinctly, risen quickly, and was out of the room almost before Troy realized it.

He hadn't come back, although Rian had rather looked for him when the coffee came in. Two vacant chairs at the table, Derger's and Cavanagh's.

The night was scented with the heavy perfume of the garden, but Troy hardly noticed it as he walked aimlessly along the path that led to the guest house. He was still thinking about Cavanagh's peculiar departure, so hurried, so unexpected. Cavanagh's strange silence at the table—stranger tonight than it had ever been before. Cavanagh's eyes never lifting from his plate.

* * * *

WITH Derger gone, couldn't he have?— Troy shook his head. Apparently Cavanagh didn't dare say anything. After all, the secretary knew what he was doing. At least Troy hoped fervently that he did. Once during dinner Rian had purposely asked him a question. Cavanagh answered, but without looking up, without meeting Troy's eyes.

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

RIAN TROY, young engineer, meets blond LILLIS FARNOL while sailing to Rio de Janeiro, and both learn that they are new employes of DEREK DERGER, wealthy owner of a diamond mine in interior Brazil. Lillis is promptly thrust into an isolated guest house on their arrival at the mine and Rian is told she has jungle fever. Her only companion is MANUELA, a native woman.

Derger, cold, ruthless and bent on increasing his immense wealth, plans to use the girl as a fake goddess in order to gain the hidden treasure of a mountain tribe, the Iracs, who believe the appearance of a legendary golden-haired goddess is the signal to reveal their treasure. Derger intended to have Troy out of the way, but his secretary, CAVANAGH, learns that the small party is to leave for the mountains and with Troy's help secretly frustrates Derger's scheme. Derger is furious, but starts out with Lillis and a few natives. His aide, WALTER JULIAN, remains behind to keep an eye on Cavanagh and Troy. Cavanagh dares not be openly friendly to Troy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Rian walked on, puzzling. He had met two men on the path tonight, one of them walking along, a basket under his arm, the other just walking. Two men, both servants, although Troy didn't recognize them. Usually at night when he walked about there was no one in the garden. A third man he saw a moment later, a native, too, raking the path in front of him.

Why choose the dark of the night to rake a path?

The fourth native Troy saw when he reached Soames' door at the guest house. The man was standing near the entrance—also a man he had never seen before.

"Senhor Soames? Do you know if I can see him?"

The man shook his head. "Senhor Doctor busy tonight."

After that there was nothing for Troy to do but to turn around and leave. Why he had taken the path to the guest house he didn't know, except that he wanted to see Soames about Lillis. The native standing near the door seemed almost like a sentinel, he thought, as he chose another road that went to the main gate.

At the gate instead of the usual two guards, there were half a dozen, so Troy didn't stop. He waved at Tiburce whom he knew, and went on around the wall. As he walked along faster and faster, he thought that the garden seemed alive. Usually in the evenings it was a sleeping, drowsy garden. Tonight it was electric. Noises here, noises there. Little noises to be sure, the faint cracking of boughs, the gentle whisper of leaves brushing together. Noises that seemed part of the night and the garden, and yet not part of it.

Once he thought he heard footsteps behind him, and looked quickly around. He could see no one, but he was sure as he rounded another corner that someone was following him. Another man loomed ahead, also carrying a basket. Troy almost stumbled over him before he saw him, so soft were his steps on the gravel.

The path eventually led back to the house, so he went into the living room again. Cavanagh was not there, neither was he in the patio, and his room was dark. Jose was standing by his door, so Troy didn't go near the orchid vine. Instead he went into his own bedroom, looked around, saw nothing he had not seen before and went out again. This time he saw that besides Jose, Carlos was also in the patio.

Where was he going to find Cavanagh? How in the dark garden, teeming with natives, could he find him?

* * * *

FAY didn't look up as he passed, neither did Julian or Mattias pause from their billiard game. Once more outside, he again took the path to the guest house. Ten o'clock it had been when he was in the house. Time was going so fast. Dinner seemed only a moment ago, and yet it had been an hour since they had risen from the table. Earlier tonight because of Derger's absence, for they hadn't lingered over their coffee.

"Senhor!"

Was that the whisper of the slight night wind or someone actually calling him? Troy stopped, and taking out his cigaret case, fumbled for a smoke.

"Senhor—"

Not the wind, not the noises of the night, but a soft voice back of him—an almost inaudible voice.

"Senhor, do not turn, walk ahead slowly. At big tree sit on bench for cigarette—"

Rian selected a cigarette slowly, tapped it on the wood of his case, felt in his pockets for a match, and remembered that Jose had given him his lighter as he had left the patio. In the darkness the flame that tipped the metal was blue and then a deep yellow. Before he started on, he took a deep drag of the cigarette, and the smoke felt good in his lungs. He expelled it slowly and started.

The big tree—he knew where it was. He had sat under it often on the bamboo bench. The first time with Cavanagh, other times with Fay, more times by himself.

Ten steps, a dozen, 18—20. Here he was. He seated himself carefully, crossed his left knee over his right, and leaned back. Another long drag on his cigarette as he waited.

The voice—to whom did it belong? More of a long sigh than really a voice. Native, he knew from the inflection, but the English was good.

Very close behind him it had been, almost in his ear. Whoever it belonged to must have been standing directly back of the tree near the path.

The waiting was hard and although he tried to make the cigarette last as long as he could, it went out finally, and he crushed it under his heel in the gravel. He was taking out his case again when the voice returned, this time closer. He could feel the breath of the speaker on the back of his neck.

"Senhor Cavanagh want you come to him. First smoke cigarette, then go servants' fance along back path. Wait at end for me. I leave dark shawl here on bench. Take it, but do not put over coat until I tell you. No matter what you hear, stay by fence until I come." The voice ceased, and there was a slight movement that might have been leaves rubbing together, then silence.

Rian, without looking, put his hand on the bench, and touched something which felt like silk. Without changing his position he tucked it under his coat, and lighted his cigarette.

An Example Of Worrying Without Cause

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"A FEW nights ago," writes a reader, "I was sitting rather late in my chair, reading and thinking, chiefly about darkness, the things we associate with it in our minds, and how we react to it.

"But I was tired, and my thinking slipped into dozing, and in a state that was not waking and yet not quite sleeping, I had a dream—a picture flashed on the misty screen of my mind, dim but vivid.

"In my dream I saw an old man sitting by the wayside playing in the dust with something that glittered in the sunlight. Looking more closely, I saw that he was shuffling bits of broken glass.

"As I looked, he turned up a thin, wizened face to me, set with a pair of bright but wistful eyes, and said quietly, with a sigh of sadness, 'I am the man that lost the stars.' As I searched his face questioningly, it changed, and his expression softened under my gaze.

"Then I looked down again at the glass fragments in the dust, and I saw that there were little white flowers growing there, something like the dainty wood anemones which I have always admired.

"The picture faded, with that; I roused up from my doze, wondering a little at the curious dream—and went to bed. My dream haunted me next day, teasing me with suggestions, memories and ideas.

"It seemed to me that I am like that old man—as a town and city dweller I have lost the stars out of my common experience. There was a time when I knew them, watched them, lived with them."

Yes, that is the mischief; we can let our arc-lamp blot out the stars, until the sense of their quiet majesty fades; and with their fading we lose something which our electric lights can never give us

Of course, we try to make up for our loss. Light is light, after all, we say, whether in the stars or in a bulb. Besides, as for losing the stars, have we not found thousands of new ones?

But, alas, like my reader in his flitting dream, if stars are no more than shards of glass, they are lost and so are we.

Willy Nilly Is Ready To Attend To His Big Ears

By Mary Graham Bonner

"DOES anyone want to come along with me?" Willy Nilly asked, as he got out his automobile Two-Ways the first thing in the morning. It seemed almost beyond belief that Willy Nilly was actually about to do something for his sticking-out, pointed ears.

"I'm sure you've had enough traveling for a while," Willy Nilly smiled affectionately at his dog, Rip.

"Yes, I think I have," agreed Rip. "I'm not anxious to get away any distance from Puddle Muddle."

"You'd probably find me of little use," bleated Sweet Face, the lamb.

"That lamb," thought Christopher, "knows how to be lazy without any one except myself realizing it."

"We'd be too heavy if we all got into the car," growled Jelly Bear.

"Besides," agreed Top Notch, the rooster, in his practical fashion, "people who saw us might think we were a small-sized show or circus and would stop us to do tricks."

"That's true," growled Honey Bear. "Perhaps Willy Nilly would do better, really and truly, if none of us went. We might only be in the way."

"I'd like to go," quacked Mrs. Quacko Duck, thinking what fun it would be to go and see Mrs. Quacker later on and tell her that she had traveled over the countryside in Willy Nilly's car, and had called on a magician.

"All right, waddle in," said Willy Nilly, opening the door to admit her. She got in the front seat beside Willy Nilly, and Christopher Columbus got in the back seat to direct the way. They started off.

The best way to test the power of a Dr. Pepper is to take one when you are really all in. Then the "feel" of its energy-renewing effect flows over you like a glow. The sugar, fruit juice, etc., in Dr. Pepper is a highly concentrated form of energy, that acts right now. Try it, friend, and see.

[Everybody's asking, What IS that flavor?]

In such competent hands they sometimes reveal a little about your real self.

DOES anyone want to come along with me?" Willy Nilly asked, as he got out his automobile Two-Ways the first thing the morning. It seemed almost ond belief that Willy Nilly was ually about to do something for sticking-out, pointed ears.

'm sure you've had enough trav- g for a while," Willy Nilly ied affectionately at his dog, Yes, I think I have," agreed Rip. not anxious to get away any ance from Puddle Muddle." You'd probably find me of little ," bleated Sweet Face, the lamb. That lamb," thought Christopher, ows how to be lazy without any except myself realizing it." We'd be too heavy if we all got the car," growled Jelly Bear. Besides," agreed Top Notch, the ster, in his practical fashion, ople who saw us might think were a small-sized show or cir- and would stop us to do tricks." That's true," growled Honey ar. "Perhaps Willy Nilly would better, really and truly, if none us went. We might only be in way."

I'd like to go," quacked Mrs. acko Duck, thinking what fun would be to go and see Mrs. acker later on and tell her that had traveled over the country- e in Willy Nilly's car, and had led on a magician.

All right, waddle in," said Willy lly, opening the door to admit r. She got in the front seat be- e Willy Nilly, and Christopher lumbus got in the back seat to rect the way. They started off.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —I believe we may safely say that the interpretation of dreams as given in "dream books" are sheer nonsense, as given by many so-called psychoanalysts, mostly nonsense, and, as given by competent psychologists who have studied the Freudian psychology and its modifications after having been thoroughly trained in scientific experimental psychology, have a moderate significance. In such competent hands they sometimes reveal a little about your real self.

2. —Two of the highest authorities on rats, Dr. Hans Zinsser, author of "Rats, Lice and History," and Dr. C. J. Herrick, author of "The Brains of Rats and Men," can find no earthly or human use for rats—except perhaps to experiment with them in the laboratory. He points out the strongest weapon rats have in their struggles against man is that of carrying the lice that spread typhus fever, which has many times destroyed armies and even nations.

3. —More so, I think, because the modern ideal is much more realistic, if I may use such a term. Instead of the vague, exaggerated ideal of woman as some sort of ethereal being "too good for human nature's daily food," men and women are coming to know each other today for what they really are—flesh and blood creatures, with immense possibilities of both good and bad, and both realize, as never before, the highest good in each can only be achieved by working together in sympathetic understanding and co-operative companionship toward great life goals. I think the modern ideal is the truest, therefore, the most fruitful ideal of womanhood either sex has ever attained.

Tower of Hope

By Frank Kern Levin

ALAN stood in the basement of the museum and wiped his moist hands. His jacket hung loosely, his shirt collar was unbuttoned, he wasn't shaved, and his brown, curly hair needed combing.

He did advertising copy, and Ben was a poet, but Ben was far more practical in his unorthodox way. If Ben had seen Mr. Brocker hurrying out of his office with a brief case in one hand and his hat in the other, he wouldn't be dismally staring at a museum of dead things. Ben would have come to life, for everything depended on getting the Sayer account.

It wasn't fair of Mr. Brocker to go dashing about like that. Sayer's jewelry account was just another job to him. To Alan it meant everything. Or did it mean everything? By this time tomorrow Margaret would be married to somebody he had never seen, somebody with a 16-cylinder car and a yacht.

"Anyway, it will be all over before long." Alan had smiled desperately the night before as he sat with Ben, who was biting the curved stem of his pipe. Alan had gone to Ben last, the night before, after saying good-by to Margaret.

"I'll help you?" Ben had said those words with so much intensity. The funny thing was, Alan hadn't laughed. "Tomorrow night we'll do the logical thing, as illogical as it seems. We'll kidnap Margaret!"

"Benny—do you know what you are saying?"

But Ben kept on talking. Alan did not remember now whether he had laughed or had set his teeth. He must have done the latter. For he remembered he had agreed to meet Ben somewhere at some certain hour, and then, with everything carefully planned, they were going to kidnap Margaret!

Alan had gone home to sleep, but he had tossed restlessly and got up early. Then he went to his little office on the eleventh floor to get an idea for Sayer. No ideas would come to him, and as he was leaving the office he had seen fat little Mr. Brocker hurrying. Mr. Sayer had frankly told him that Brocker was after the jewelry account. Alan moistened his lips. Here he was standing in the basement of a museum looking at a girl who was peering down at one of the glass cases. Meanwhile, Mr. Brocker was tumbling in his roly-poly way to get the Sayer account; meanwhile, Ben was waiting for him at some appointed rendezvous all set and determined to kidnap Margaret.

Alan wondered what the girl, with hair so deeply black there seemed a bluish-green tint in it, was so intently held by.

"Isn't it strange and beautiful?" the girl said. Alan wondered how it was that he was standing next to her; how it was that he too was staring so entranced at a delicately carved tower of tourmaline.

"Tourmaline has strange qualities. When heated its crystals exhibit a remarkable polarity. It is used in measuring the intensity of radium emanation," Alan said as though he were trying to sell the tourmaline.

"I didn't know that," she said. "But if you look at those small towers long enough it does seem as if they grow real, and oneself unreal."

"Do you wander through the tourmaline tower alone?" Alan hazarded.

"There's luxury even in going alone. One goes into the tower of tourmaline as into mystery, into the strange but most real. One is at last with the rare, the preciously beautiful." She was looking at him with her very gray eyes.

"I'm glad you've been going alone," Alan said, and he asked what her name was, and she answered, "Elissa."

Alan saw that under the stained glass window was an archway that led somewhere, and he took Elissa's hand. He had been in the museum a half dozen times, but he had never known of the place. They were in a little garden with a fountain in the center. Alan looked up and around.

"I really believe"—— Alan began after a while.

"Things seem tinted with green," said Elissa, "as if really"——

Alan put his arm around her.

• • •

THEY met again the next evening. First they stared together at the tower of tourmaline. When they were out in the garden, Alan laughed. Elissa did not know why, but she smiled.

Alan was remembering how angry Ben had been that afternoon. Ben had waited at the rendezvous until 2:30 in the morning. Ben had shouted, and Alan tried to explain that Margaret had been a mistake all along, but it was hopeless.

"Though you don't know it, I got my first real account today because of something you said yesterday," he told Elissa.

"What did I say?"

It seemed something had gone wrong between Mr. Brocker and Mr. Sayer. Mr. Sayer had called Alan up that morning.

'The copy I have in mind will have distinct quality," Alan had explained enthusiastically to the smiling and gray-haired Mr. Sayer. "Show the people the unreal world of mystery and wonder to which precious and rare gems can lead them; the life which, though strange, is the most real, and the key to which is contained in the preciously beautiful."

Mr. Sayer had continued to smile as Alan finished breathlessly—Alan realized now that the idea was altogether unorthodox. But after a few minutes passed, Mr. Sayer told Alan to go ahead. . . .

"It's strange, but it seems when one really discovers wonder it becomes part of everything he does." Alan smiled by way of ending.

"I hadn't realized it"—— Elissa began.

Alan was looking at her. . . .

"But it had been lonely, being all alone in the tower of tourmaline," she finished.

The Kitchen Oilcloth

Put the white oilcloth on the kitchen table with ordinary flour paste instead of tacking it down. It will last longer. Another big help is to purchase brass ends for the corners. They are inexpensive, attractive and will last indefinitely.

Rust Spots

Iron rust can usually be removed from lace by using lemon juice and salt and exposing it to the strong sunlight. However, if this is not wholly successful, why not dip the lace in coffee and make it ecru, thus covering any remains of the rusted portion.

City Children in Summer

If you are one of the less fortunate mothers and have to stay in the hot city all summer with your brood of kiddies, let them have the hose and back yard to themselves in the afternoons. It will keep them cool, out of your way and give them a healthy coat of tan, not to mention a thorough cleansing.

Blueberry Jam.

Four and one-half cups prepared blueberries, seven cups sugar, one bottle fruit pectin. To prepare fruit crush about two quarts fully ripe berries, add juice and grated rind of one lemon. Put sugar and fruit into a preserving kettle, mix well and bring to a good boil, stirring constantly. Boil hard for two minutes. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Skim and pour quickly into sterilized jars. Cover with paraffin at once. Makes about 12 six-ounce glasses.

Stuffed Herrings.

Two tablespoons bread crumbs, one tablespoon chopped suet, two ounces butter, two tablespoons milk, one tablespoon minced parsley, one-half teaspoon powdered herbs. Split fish and remove back bone. Spread a thin layer of stuffing on each piece, then roll and tie. Lay the rolls on a greased baking dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven from 20 to 25 minutes.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETS TO TAKE UP ETHIOPIAN ROW

Italian Delegate Says at Private Session That He Will Discuss Nothing but Arbitration.

BRITISH, FRENCH TO SEEK ACCORD

Eden and Laval Instructed to Talk to Disputants Before the Next Meeting Tomorrow.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

GENEVA, July 31.—Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Premier Mussolini's representative in the League of Nations, told the League Council today that Italy would not discuss anything at this time except the arbitration question in its dispute with Ethiopia.

He was heard by the council meeting in a private session which lasted less than one hour. It adjourned until 5 p. m. tomorrow, when it will hold a public meeting. The object of the meeting is to seek some way of averting war.

In the less than 24 hours between the two sessions, the representatives of Great Britain and France must endeavor, by the recommendation of the council, to negotiate with both Italy and Ethiopia in an effort to find a basis for resumption of the arbitration and conciliation proceedings which were suspended several weeks ago.

Capt. Eden's Position.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs, agreed to Aloisi's position for a temporary restriction of the League's discussion to arbitration, on the condition, however, that this would be merely a temporary measure and would not prejudice the right of the Council to discuss other questions if such discussion seemed desirable.

Maxim Litvinoff, Russian Foreign Commissar and president of the council, agreed with Eden that the limitation of the discussion was merely a temporary decision and did not, in any way, bind the council's future activities.

Aloisi declared it was essential, first of all, that a full light be thrown on the Ualual incident of last December in which both Italians and Ethiopians were killed.

"Nothing can usefully be done until that incident is cleared up," he said, adding that the Council could not go outside this phase of the problem.

Aloisi said Italy could not agree to any wider debate and insisted that League procedure always called for the opportunity of arbitration to settle disputes.

Eden and Laval Named.

Eden and Premier Laval of France were asked to negotiate with Italy and Ethiopia because they represent the Powers most directly interested in the settlement of the conflict and are parties, with Italy, to the three-Power agreement of 1906 by which Ethiopia's independence was guaranteed.

The private session brought no tangible progress toward solving the difficulties of Italy and Ethiopia.

Laval, Eden and Litvinoff failed in a private meeting to reach an accord on the basis of a formula for an Italo-Ethopian peace move. The three diplomats are to meet again later tonight in another attempt at an accord. Any agreement they may reach will be submitted to the British and French Governments before they are discussed with representatives of Italy and Ethiopia.

Prof. Gaston Jeze, a Frenchman but representative of Ethiopia, told the Council the arbitration between the two countries had broken down and that "there seems no hope of its succeeding."

Said Prof. Jeze: "The general situation between Italy and Ethiopia is growing worse daily."

He declared there were two facts before the Council: Arbitration, which had collapsed; the general question of the dispute in its entirety, a question which is not settled and which should be settled.

Comment by Laval.

Laval commented that both parties seemed to agree that the arbitration had broken down, but they disagreed as to which was to blame.

"It is the duty of the council," he said, "to find a formula for the resumption of arbitration and, if possible, a peaceful solution for the dispute."

When Eden indicated that the agenda of the session must not be considered as permanently limited, Aloisi intervened: "I must ask permission to make a full reservation on this point. Italy can only discuss arbitration at this time."

Jeze accepted the postponement
